Japan's Good Excuse
Wall St. Responds
Not Without Fighting
Will the War Spread?

By Arthur Brisbane

"THRICE IS HE armed that hath his quarrel just." Japan knows that, and starts war cheerfully with a more or less imaginary attack on Japan by China.

The head of the Chinese army, says Japan (his name is General Mah), has attacked the Japanese in Manchuria, and asked other Chinese armies to join him.

Under these circumstances, what can poor Japan do but fight back, cruelly attacked without cause?

If you were in China or Japan now, reading newspapers, you might imagine yourself back in the Spanish war, or the beginning of the big war. Circulations are booming, large characters are ordered, savage cartoons printed.

In the United States, the circulation of Oriental newspapers has doubled. New York's Chinese newspaper, Sheng Tao, prints a sad cartoon. A savage Japanese soldier holds a virtuous Chinese by the throat and is beating out his brains with the butt end of a revolver.

More easily said than done, unfortunately for China.

War boom in Wall Street yesterday. Reports that Japan had declared war against China and China against Japan sent agitated bears scattering. Stocks and raw materials went up in price.

On Saturday, the Chinese big dealers in silver were selling silver in London.

On Sunday came rioting and bombardment in Tientsin, and yesterday morning the Chinese began buying silver, which went to the highest price in a long time.

As previously stated, here, it will go very much higher, probably to one dollar an ounce.

Having shipped many millions of gold to this country, preparing for necessary purchases in case of war, it is predicted by financiers that Japan will slide gently off the gold basis, in the course of a week or two.

The gold basis is fashionable, and nations, like individuals, wish to be in fashion. But if you haven't any gold, you can't stay on a gold basis.

Britain, ineptly, tried to force the gold basis on India, and, in consequence, had to abandon that basis herself. She discovered that India didn't want a piece of paper supposed to represent gold. The Hindus had a habit of taking their pieces of British paper and changing them for silver at the bank.

If Japan now joins India and China on a silver basis, as seems probable, the fashionable gold countries, America and France, will have to recognize silver in some way. They cannot ignore the buying power of one billion human beings.

Gandhi, warning England that fiery times are ahead, will take his loin cloth, shawl, goat, and sail for India on November 29.

He ignores the fact that no people ever won its freedom without FIGHTING. While Hindus fight Mohammedans, and vice versa, neither Hindus nor Mohammedans fight the British. Why should the British make concessions?

If the British would adopt a gold and silver currency, with a fair ratio for silver, which is the money of Asia, they would monopolize Asia's trade.

Our own business men, who find that China is not buying of us as she once did, need not wonder why.

Gold basis or none, Britain keeps going ahead in the air.

A flying boat, twice the size of the DO-X, is now under way to carry passengers and mail between England and Canada. It will be able to fly 2580 miles at 120 miles an hour, without taking fuel. Its engines develop 60,000 horse power.

This is being done by the British air minister. The British government, taken the initiative, not leaving to private enterprise that which is most important to national safety.

One pessimist said yesterday: "One thing is sure. If war starts, the United States will get into it, somehow or other."

The war is more apt to involve Europe than the United States, fortunately for this country. Poland has a big army, with financial support from France. If Russia found herself in a real war with Japan, that would seem to be

2000 Children Need State Care

POOR LITTLE EDITH RILEY, 4 YEARS IN A CLOSET

The pitiful story of the sufferings of this little 13-year-old girl, locked in a dark closet in Washington for four years, beaten and abused, has wrung the hearts of mothers and fathers everywhere.

The knowledge that this child may be a hopeless imbecile the rest of her days, and may never fully regain her sight as the result of the inhuman treatment fills the eyes of every mother and father with tears.

Yet there should come some good of this helpless child's horrible experience. Each State and community must check up at once to make certain there are no Edith Rileys locked in their closets, that there are no children lacking in proper treatment and care because of the neglect by the proper officials.

Massachusetts, which justly prides itself upon its humanitarianism in the care of the mentally and physically ill, falls far short in looking out for backward and neglected children. A news story on Page 3 of this edition will tell you there are more than 2000 children in this State needing care and attention, who cannot be saved because of lack of facilities. Many of these children can be reclaimed and remade into useful citizens. If they are not reclaimed they will be State charges all their lives, a trouble to their families, and facing only a life of misery.

Many of them certainly are subjected to abuse and cruelty, even as was poor Edith Riley.

Something must be done in our own State about this matter.

We and our officials cannot escape responsibility. Some means must be devised at once to save and protect this pitiful army of 2000 boys and girls who are needing our help.

WIDOW'S SECRETS TOLD

JAPS ORDER WOMEN OUT OF DANGER

Mother and Children Told to Seek Safety in Harbin From War Zone

Harbin, Manchuria, Nov. 10 (AP)—All Japanese women and children in Manchuli and Hailar have been ordered to come to Harbin for safety. In both provinces, near the Siberian border, anti-Japanese sentiment has been growing.

Late developments in the Japanese-Chinese crisis in Manchuria:

1—President Hoover and Secretary Stimson sent new instructions to U. S. envoys in Tokio and Nanking to demand that Japan and China respect the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact and the nine-power treaty for Chinese integrity.

2—Restlessness among Chinese throughout Manchuria has resisted in minor outbreaks in many places, and a tense situation prevails in Mukden itself as a result of the outbreaks in Tientsin.

4—Dispatches from Harbin said Japanese forces had withdrawn a few miles south of the Nonni River bridge, but were assembling reinforcements there for a new attack on Gen. Mah Chang Shan's army.

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—New instructions to this country's diplomatic representatives in Tokio and Nanking are understood to direct that even more emphatically than previously China and Japan be called on to respect their treaty obligations.

Officials are stressing particularly to the disputing nations the ties

AUBURN WIG TOPPED HEAD OF MRS. DAVIS

Wife of Butler Bares Drinking Parties; Reveals "Intimacies" of Rich Widow

Salem, Nov. 10—Intimacies between the late Mrs. Adelaide Pierce Davis and Atty. Richard H. Bennett of New York, who was with her when she drowned last June in Lake Suntaug, Lynnfield, were witnessed in the Davis home by Mrs. Annie St. Clair, she testified today in Probate Court.

Mrs. St. Clair, wife of James St. Clair, former butler in the Davis household at Lynnfield, who furnished exciting testimony yesterday in the will case, declared that a scene she witnessed between the late Mrs. Davis and Bennett was too delicate to be detailed in public.

Her testimony opened the second day of the fight by Mrs. Ruth L. Frechette of Swampscott, sister of Mrs. Davis, to break that part of the will under which Grant Pierce of Providence, stepson of Mrs. Davis' first husband's brother, was left a huge slice of the $6,000,000 estate.

Alleged eccentricities of Mrs. Davis, including her wearing of an auburn wig over her own "really beautiful" blonde hair, were detailed by Mrs. St. Clair before a crowded courtroom. She was questioned by

DOCTOR IS SHOT TO DEATH IN GARAGE

Phone Call Lures Him From North Attleboro Home; Robbery Evidence "Planted"

North Attleboro, Nov. 10—Dr. Frederick J. Carley, a wealthy physician, was murdered today in the garage attached to his home, 33 High st.

Responding to what is believed to have been a ruse in the form of a telephone call from a "patient," he left his bed at 4:30 a. m., dressed and went to the garage, only to receive a bullet just below the heart.

No weapon was found. The gun that killed him was held so close to his body that its flash burned his clothing.

ROBBERY THEORY SCOUTED

His empty billfold and his checkbook were found on the floor of the garage near where the body lay, face down.

This evidence that the motive for the crime was robbery was discounted, police said, by the indication that he was lured from his home to his death.

Belief that the "sick call" was a trick was strengthened by the fact that the "patient" did not telephone the Carley home again to inquire why the doctor had not answered, although four hours and 15 minutes elapsed between the call and the finding of the body.

In the physician's home when he went to his death were his wife and his aged father, A. Jan. Warren, is a student at Tufts College, and a daughter, Mildred, is at Jackson, the Tufts coeducational institution in Medford.

RELATIVE FINDS BODY.

Mrs. Carley was not alarmed by the failure of the doctor to return from what she believed was a visit to a patient.

He ordinarily reported at 8 o'clock at the Sturdy Memorial hospital, where he was a staff physician, and she believed he had gone there.

It was 8:45 before John Coyle, a relative, calling at the house, found the body.

Coyle calls daily at about the same time to chat with the doctor's father who, in fine weather, oc-

22 Rescued Castaways Keep 'Horror' Voyage a Secret

By JACK STONE
(Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent)

New Bedford, Nov. 10—"Ahoy, the James!"

"Ahoy!"

"Tell us something about what you went through."

"We didn't go through nuthin'."

The real story of the drama aboard the ghost ship, Arthur S. James, has not been told. It may never be told.

Its 22 men and one woman, menaced from death, have become mute with the secret of a 59-day voyage from Cape Verde in a storm-tossed, disabled boat.

The two-masted schooner packet rides at anchor in the harbor here at the end of her voyage by the grace of a Coast Guard tow-rope but Coast Guards and newspapermen seeking the real story of the ghost ship's tribulations receive only evasive answers—or none at all—to their questions.

HUDDLE IN GROUP

Capt. Fortunato Alves does not put in an appearance on deck. Nor does the lone woman, Mary Dantas, who came to this country for medical treatment and nearly lost her life seeking to prolong it. Crew and passengers huddle in silent group and Capt. Elizieu Neves, navigating officer, does all the talking to inquirers who range alongside in other boats.

"What do you want?" he shouts.

"What did you go through, captain?"

"I went through nuthin'."

"When'd you leave Fayal?"

"About September 12."

"What happened then?"

8-12 YEARS FOR TORTURE BOYS

Exeter, N. H., Nov. 10—Sentences of 10 to 12 years each were given the following seven defendants in the "girl torture" case today: Stephen Boremi, Joseph Furnarni, Angelo Verdiglizuzio, Ralph De Marco, James Palermo, Edmund DeGregnolia and John DeGaetano.

Sentences of eight to ten years each were given Joseph Trafficante and Samuel Napoli.

As the nine men awaited sentence, with a heavily-armed augmented guard on duty, a tenth defendant was brought into court.

He is John DeGaetano, 18, of Platt ct., Lawrence, arrested on a secret indictment last night when found crouching in the cellar of a house in Marston st., Lawrence.

PLEADS GUILTY.

DeGastano followed the example of the other defendants and pleaded guilty to a charge of being an accessory in the attacks on the two girls.

He then took his place with the others to await sentence. He was one of four men secretly indicted, the other three still being sought.

Shortly after the opening of court, relatives of the prisoners were admitted, one by one, to say goodbye. They were mostly women and their wails and lamentations rose to such a pitch the authori-

COOLIDGE BIG NAVY PLEA REVIVED TO FLAY HOOVER

GARDINER MUM ON APOLOGY TO PRESIDENT

Former Executive's Speech Circulated by League for Armistice Day

By WILLIAM C. MURPHY, JR.

Washington, Nov. 10 (US)—Ignoring White House expectations of an apology from William Howard Gardiner, its president, the Navy League today distributed a pamphlet containing the 1928 Armistice Day speech of former President Coolidge, including numerous black-faced paragraphs which might be considered in conflict with President Hoover's naval policies.

"As Armistice Day approaches it becomes timely to recall President Calvin Coolidge's last and most memorable address on that occasion in 1928."

STRONG DEFENSE URGED

This is the first formal statement from Gardiner since President Hoover's "apology commission" of presidential appointees and friends held that his attack upon Mr. Hoover for "abysmal ignorance" of naval affairs and "congenital pacifism" was unwarranted.

Included in the black-faced portions of the pamphlet was the Coolidge declaration:

"If the European nations had neglected their defenses, it is probable that war would have come much sooner."

BIG NAVY NEEDED

Another of the paragraphs so emphasized was that in which Mr. Coolidge explained that the United States did need a larger army but added:

"When we turn to the sea the situation is different. We have not only a long coast line, distant outlying possessions, a foreign commerce unsurpassed in importance, and foreign investments unsurpassed in amount, the number of our people and value of our treasure to be protected, but we are also bound by international treaty to defend the Panama canal. Having few fueling stations, we require ships of large tonnage, and having scarcely any merchant vessels capable of mounting five of six-inch guns, it is obvious that, based on needs, we are entitled to a larger number of warships than a nation having such advantages."

The Coolidge speech also touched upon two points directly involved in Mr. Hoover's controversy with the Navy league, the need for additional cruisers and the relative merits of the American standpoint of eight or six-inch gun cruisers.

BIGGER GUNS FAVORED

On the relative desirability of six or eight-inch gun ships, Mr. Coolidge recalled that in the summer of 1928, "France and England made a tentative offer which would limit the kind of cruisers and submarines adapted to the use of the United States but left without limit the kind adapted to their use."

"The United States, of course, refused to accept this offer," Mr. Coolidge went on. "Had we not done so the French army and the British navy would be so near unlimited that the principle of limitations would be virtually abandoned."

ELDEST EDISON SON DEFENDS WILL FIGHT

Declares He Has No Ill-Feeling in the Matter; Hits at His "Critics"

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 10 (AP)—William Edison, eldest son of the late Thomas A. Edison, says he believes interests opposed to him are trying to establish the impression he was not an friendly terms with his father.

In a formal statement issued late last night, Mr. Edison asserted that, although he did not wish to make attacks on personalities, he believed a campaign headed by his half-brother, Charles, was trying to imply "I am the only son that never stuck by my father."

Mr. Edison mentioned his intended contest to break his father's will and added that the efforts against him were being made by those "selfishly concerned in maintaining the will and codicil."

"I am not attacking my brother Thomas, nor any of my father's children," he said. "If my brother Thomas does not see fit to fight for his own rights, that is his affair and I am merely sorry for his weakness.

"But when he allows himself to be dominated by those defending the present disposition of the estate to the extent of inferring in the public press that my relations with father were not of the best, as I am convinced in the case, that is my affair."

Named by Pope

BISHOP MURRAY ELEVATED

Portland, Me., Nov. 10—The Rt. Rev. John Gregory Murray, bishop of Portland diocese since 1925, was today appointed archbishop of St. Paul, Minn., by Pope Pius, according to dispatches from Rome.

Bishop Murray came here from Hartford, Ct., where he was formerly rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral and auxiliary bishop.

In 1927, when he returned after nearly four months in Italy and Felgium, there were reports that he was to succeed the late Bishop Anderson as auxiliary bishop of the Boston diocese. He is famed as a scholar and is popular.

STRIKE MILLS TO SPEED UP PRODUCTION

10,000 Back at Work in Lawrence, With Prospect of All Having Jobs in a Week

Lawrence, Nov. 10—Nearly half of the 23,000 mill workers who walked out on strike six weeks ago were back at work today as employers, increasing substantially the number taken back at the "break" of the strike yesterday, made plans for return to a full pre-strike basis by the end of the month.

About 10,000 workers, it was estimated, found places in the mills today, as compared to the 8400 who were put immediately to work yesterday.

Thousands of others, who again applied for their old jobs, were told to return later this week or early next week, as reopening of their departments permits.

The second day of the return to work, like the first, was marked by virtually no disorder, although police continued to enforce strict orders against loitering and added five arrests to the strike's long list.

These, with 37 others arrested yesterday and six whose cases have been continued, comprised a total of 48 strike cases scheduled to be heard by Judge Chandler.

Of chief interest was that of David K. Niles, Homestead st., Roxbury, manager of the Ford Hall Forum, Boston, arrested last night near the Arlington Mill as he was observing the situation for the Civil Liberties Union.

With Niles, although not arrested, were two Episcopal clergymen, observers for the Church League for Industrial Democracy, the Rev. Smith O. Dexter, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Concord, and the Rev. William Lawrence Wood, a professor at the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge.

SHIPS HUNT 11 ADRIFT AT SEA

Miami, Fla., Nov. 10 (AP)—Two merchant ships and a navy boat searched the storm-tossed waters of the Caribbean Sea today for 11 men sighted adrift off the Columbia in a lifeboat and on a raft by an airplane pilot yesterday.

Capt. Frank Ormsbee, Pan-American Airways pilot, saw the men as he flew a seaplane from Cristobal, C. Z., to Barranquilla, Colombia.

The Dutch steamer Costa Rica and the Norwegian steamer Geisha, acting on the pilot's information, reached the vicinity shortly before midnight when the drifting men had been reported. They radioed their arrival to Panama City and advising Radio Marine Corporation at West Palm Beach, Fla., that they had joined the search.

Ormsbee's message was sent to the flying company's Cristobal base and a report later was relayed here. He had flown over and circled the men while one clung to the raft. Wreckage, including many gasoline drums, floated about them.

Already Colt has acted with his mother in Sheridan's play and in "Scarlet Mary," in Chicago. Colt thus becomes the fourth generation of his family to play in the "School for Scandal" on Broadway.

CODE BILL WINS AT MAINE POLLS

Portland, Me., Nov. 10—The "administrative code bill," consolidating state departments and eliminating some 30s of 56 state officials, stood today endorsed by voters of the state by a majority of about 736.

With outlying sections still to be heard from, it was estimated that yesterday's total ballots would reach 70,000, more than four times the vote cast on the Senate appointment referendum in September.

The code bill was proposed by Governor William Tudor Gardiner and the Legislature at the last session voted to refer it to the people.

Opponents of the measure carried Oxford counties, Somerset, York and Sagadahoc, and lost Portland by only 138 votes. A surprise feature of the referendum was the vote in the mill cities of Lewiston and Biddeford.

LAUNCH PROBE IN TYNGSBORO

Tyngsboro, Nov. 10—Word was received here today from Dist. Atty. Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County, that he will start at once a complete investigation of the conduct in office of Ralph S. Harlow, veteran town treasurer, charged by State auditors with a shortage in his accounts of more than $10,000.

Answering the charges, which said that he had admitted the defalcation, Harlow asserted today that he has made good the town's losses in full by replacing a total of $10,477.18 to its credit in Lowell banks since the audit of his books began several weeks ago.

Harlow, who has held the post of town treasurer for 31 years, was granted a 60-day leave of absence by the Board of Selectmen October 3.

News of the accusations against him came as a startling shock to his many acquaintances here, who have known him for years, not only as a prominent town official but as a leader in civic, social and fraternal circles in Tyngsboro.

Chicago, Nov. 10 (AP)—Socrates has been called upon to help Superior Judge David decide the question:

Can an ex-wife sue her ex-husband for breach of promise to remarry while he is still paying alimony?

Harrie Hall and sylva Lee Hall are the principals. Mrs. Hall is asking for $100,000 for alleged breach of promise to re-marry.

Judge David asked five attorneys what they thought of the case. Four voted Mrs. Hall had no cause for action. The fifth, Benjamin Davis, of the firm of Socrates & Davis, representing Mrs. Hall, said she had the right to sue.

"If no law can be found by Saturday I will make law," said the judge. "I will rule at that time that an ex-wife receiving her alimony from an ex-husband cannot sue that ex-husband for breach of promise to re-marry."

RICH DOCTOR IS SHOT TO DEATH

cupies a chair in the sun on the grounds near the garage.

STATE DETECTIVE CALLED.

Mr. Carley was not in his usual place today. Coyle saw, instead, the physician's body just beyond the open door of the garage, which is under the house.

He lay a few feet from the open door of the automobile. The lights of the car were burning.

NONE HEARD SHOT

Dr. Battersall reported to the district attorney that the case was one of murder but he refused any statement to newspapermen.

Mrs. Carley did not hear her husband leave in his car and, although there was a possibility he was shot after returning from his call, the medical examiner reported that he had been killed at about the hour he left the house.

Nobody in the neighborhood heard the fatal shot.

Dr. Carley was one of the town's most reputable physicians. He had a wide practice in the community and became well-to-do many years ago.

CAROL FIGHTS LOVE LIKE OWN

Vienna, Nov. 10 (INS)—Central Europe, which can still appreciate an opera bouffe romance in spite the depression, smiled when it read today of the frantic efforts of King Carol of Rumania to keep his kid younger brother, Prince Nicholas, on the straight and narrow path from which he himself so often swerved.

While the Rumanian cabinet and court circles in Bucharest united in a disclaimer of reports that Nicholas had eloped with Mme. Jana Lucia Deletj, a beautiful Rumania divorcee, Vienna recalled the romance of long standing between the couple and was not surprised at reports the Prince had kicked over the traces and followed his heart.

Special interest was aroused as to whether the rumored marriage would serve to sever the bond of friendship between the brothers. Solidified when Carol returned to Bucharest almost three years ago after five years in exile, dislodged from the throne, and took over the royal prerogatives he had relinquished in favor of the graces of the titian-haired Mme. Magda Lupescu.

COUPLE GUILTY OF ARSON

Mrs. Harry Spellberg, mother of three children, one of whom is a cripple, was found guilty of setting fire to her furniture for the purpose of defrauding an insurance company and was placed on probation by Judge Bishop in Suffolk Superior Court yesterday. Her husband, found guilty of being an accessory before the fact, was sent to State prison for a term of four to six years.

Mrs. Spellberg collapsed as she heard her husband's sentence.

Judge Bishop remarked that the woman seemed to be the more guilty of the two and that while it might seem cruel to say it, yet it might be better for the children if they were brought up by the Jewish charities.

The couple now live on Rose st., South End, but at the time of the fire were living at 384 Harrison ave., where two claims for fire occurred on the night of July 4, 1930.

Frank J. Murphy, of Chestnut st., Newton Upper Falls, filed nomination papers yesterday as a candidate for ward alderman. He will oppose Alderman James R. Chandler.

EDITORS TO BE NEWS MAKERS

Los Angeles, Nov. 10 (AP)—America's newspaper publishers will reverse the usual order of things here, starting tomorrow, and create some news of their own.

Just what makes the wheels of newspapers go around, both mechanically and financially, will come in for discussion when the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association convenes for a three-day session.

As a prelude to the main convention the publishers will be entertained at the annual banquet of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences.

During an Armistice Night dinner Vice-President Charles Curtis, who also will attend the academy banquet, will bring President Hoover's message to the newspaper executives.

A welcome to California will be expressed by Harry Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times and president of the association, L. B. Palmer, general manager of the association, will outline what the newspaper association means in dollars and cents.

Woos Sweetie on Stolen Horse

In these days of autos and machines, horse thieves are rare birds but Wellesley police uncovered one yesterday and he will appear in Framingham District Court today, charged with larceny of a horse.

Taken into custody at Wellesley Inn, Lewis Todd of Sterling, admitted the theft of one horse from Elioran Jaloud of Sudbury.

Police say he was visiting a Wellesley College student to whom he claimed to be engaged. He said he rode the horse to the college each day and visited her.

Jaloud informed police that a man had been seen riding his mare in Wayland, going toward Wellesley.

RICH BOY KILLS SISTER'S BEAU

Philadelphia, Nov. 10 (AP)—Francis A. Donaldson, III, prominent clubman, called last night at the home of the girl he sought to marry to renew his suit before her father and brother, who objected to the mamtch.

The interview ended with Donaldson being slain and the arrest of the girl's brother, Edward H. B. Allen, on a charge of murder.

Police who questioned Allen and his father, Horace Allen, said an argument arose in the course of which Donaldson, formerly an amateur boxer, struck the younger Allen on the mouth.

Allen then left the apartment, police said, drove five miles to the home of a friend with whom he was to have gone hunting today and procured a shotgun. Returning, he found Donaldson just leaving, it is alleged, and shot him in the abdomen from close range.

Lucas, who is 24, was held without bail as a material witness. Allen also was denied bail.

The shooting took place in an apartment of the fashionable Green Hill Farms hotel, where the Allens had made their home since the recent death of Mrs. Allen, the former Rose E. Whitaker.

Both Edward Allen and Donaldson were 23 years old.

GARNER, TILSON PLAN BATTLE

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—With leaders of both parties arriving, congressional legislative campaigns take more definite shape.

Arrival of the Democratic speakership choice, Representative Garner of Texas, and a possible Republican competitor, Representative Tilson, Connecticut, will be followed by other stalwarts of both parties.

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, is expected shortly. While Republicans, in many cases, will visit President Hoover to discuss the administration's program, Democrats will do their conferring on Capitol Hill. They must chart courses before the 72d Congress which they expect to control and a Senate in which they will be apparently barely in a minority.

They have already given President Hoover a pledge to support the international debt moratorium which must be ratified within a week after Congress convenes, and, in principle, legislation to ease the credit situation of banks with frozen assets.

FOUR YEARS IN CLOSET MAY MAKE GIRL IMBECILE FOR LIFE

PITIFUL VICTIM OF CRUELTY IN STUPOR

Doctors Fear That 13-Year-Old Edith Riley's Mind Will Never Come Back to Normal

Washington, Nov. 10 (INS)—Torture inflicted over a period of four years on little Edith Riley, 13-year-old victim of a step-mother's cruelty, may result in the child going through life as an imbecile, doctors said today.

Solitary confinement in a filthy closet for months at a time and alleged periodical beatings have dazed the child into a stupor from which the doctors fear she will never completely recover.

A psychologist will be called within a day or two to make a thorough examination.

The law of the District of Columbia provides that if the girl is found mentally deficient, the parents are liable to 20 years imprisonment. If the child is declared mentally sound, the law provides a fine of not more than $2500, and imprisonment of two years, for either parent.

Her pitiful little face is devoid of all expression; her eyes, hiding beneath long black lashes, are dazed. She never smiles, seldom ever speaks, pays no attention to other children.

MUTE TO QUESTIONERS

Only once in the three days she has been in the hospital has she shown an inward emotion. That was when an International News re-

2000 Defective Children in State Need Proper Care

MAKING UP HER LOST PLAY HOURS
A bed full of dolls, plenty to eat, friends on all sides, baskets of fruit and flowers—all must make 13-year-old Edith think she is in Heaven. But authorities fear the confinement and cruelty of the past four years may have stunted her mind so much that perhaps she may fail to realize fully the change in conditions. 3 SCHOOLS ARE CROWDED "TO THE DOORS"

Law Here Safeguards Against Child Being 4-Year Closet Captive, Says Parker

More than 2000 mentally defective children are officially recorded in Massachusetts as in need of institutional care which they cannot have because of lack of facilities.

This was revealed today by Theodore Parker, general secretary of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

It came as a result of an inquiry by the Boston Evening American to determine possibility of duplication in this state of the pitiful case of little Edith Riley of Washington, whose parents kept her locked up in a closet for four years.

There are laws enough, with teeth enough to detect and punish such a crime, Secy. Parker pointed out, but state accommodations for children liable to such treatment at home are woefully inadequate.

LAW FOR PARENTS, TOO

"We have a child neglect law—Chapter 119, section 63, General Laws," he declared. "It states that when a child is being brought up cruelly or without proper physical care, it is a 'neglected child,' and we could reach such a situation under our law.

"We could also reach the parents, because there is a law which makes it a misdemeanor for parents who neglect children.

"As I understand it, the defense in the Washington case is that the child is mentally defective and that the parents were trying to care for it at home instead of sending it to an institution, and that they were doing the best they knew how.

2000 ON WAITING LIST

"Of course, it is not the proper way to care for a mentally defective child. We have in this State three institutions for children mentally defective, who cannot get proper care at home, and who, because of home environment or native tendencies, are a menace to the community.

"But our three schools are crowded and upwards of 2000 are on the waiting list.

"A fourth school is planned. I think it is already on the acceptance list and a unit of treatment for the care of mental diseases."

A situation in which a child could be locked four years—or any long period—in a closet, could not exist in Massachusetts, in the opinion of Richard K. Conant, state commissioner of public welfare.

"We have enough social agencies here," he said, "so that such a case would be generally reported, and the minute it was known it would be dealt with. We have plenty of law to take care of such a situation."

REVERE TUTORS VOTE ON PAY CUT

Mayor Andrew A. Cassasa of Revere has summoned the city's school teachers to a meeting in City Hall tonight to vote on a voluntary 10 per cent wage cut to reduce the city's expenses.

Police, firemen and City Hall employes have agreed to the mayor's plan, he announced last night.

Yesterday the Mayor talked with street department employes and in this department he suggested that out of 5 per cent for day laborers would be sufficient. The City Hall employes, including the elective as well as appointed officials agreed to a 10 per cent contribution of their salaries for 1932.

CANNON IS TOLD TO RESIGN

Columbus, Ga., Nov. 10 (AP)—A resolution demanding resignation of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., has been adopted by the board of stewards of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The resolution passed unanimously asked also that the South Georgia conference of the church seek Cannon's resignation and condemned the practice "of bishops, ministers of the gospel, presiding elders or other church officials engaging in political controversies and political campaigns as such officials."

The board said it was "apprehensive of the future of the Methodist Church and the support of the laymen should the church repeat its activities of 1928."

GLORIA'S NO. 4 NOW NO. 5

2nd Wedding Tightens Knot

By JOHN P. MEDBURY
Copyright, 1931, International News Service.

Hollywood, Nov. 10 (INS)—Discovering that her first marriage to Michael Farmer wasn't legal, Gloria Swanson, film star and divorcee de luxe, eloped with him yesterday to Yuma, Ariz., where they tightened the wedding knot, which was beginning to unravel.

This extra trip to the altar, though, meant little or nothing to the bride. Being a motion picture actress, she is used to retakes.

By re-marrying Miss Swanson, Mr. Farmer automatically became her fifth husband. This pleased the groom very much, as it isn't often that a man is able to marry Miss Swanson twice.

Their wedding last August was Michael's first venture into matrimony and he's doing very well for a beginner.

"The Playboy of Paris" also seems to be having a good time in this country.

When applying for their first license in New York last August, Miss Swanson gave her age as 32, but in Yuma yesterday she said she was 31.

If the Arizona climate can do that for her, she'll probably be 29 when she gets back to California.

The groom is three years younger, but at the rate the bride is going, it won't take him long to catch up to her.

The elopement from Hollywood was kept very confidential and the only person that Miss Swanson let in on the secret was her fiance.

The marriage was an extremely simple affair and the bride answered the minister's questions like a veteran, and once or twice she hesitated she had to prompt him.

While all of Miss Swanson's former husbands were in Los Angeles when she eloped, she didn't invite them to the ceremony, as she didn't want a crowd at the wedding.

The film star's ex-husbands are Wallace Beery, Herbert Somborn and the Marquis de la Falaise, in the order dropped.

Rumor has it that Miss Swanson had been married previously to the time she gave her heart and hand to Mr. Beery, but it's only a rumor and couldn't be verified.

When asked exactly how many husbands she had had to date, the bride refused to answer. She just smiled and said that her attorney was keeping score.

DREISER, GIRL ARE INDICTED

Pineville, Ky., Nov. 10—Theodore Dreiser, novelist, and Marie Pergain were indicted by the Bell county grand jury here today on charges of misconduct. The offense is a misdemeanor under Kentucky law.

The 60-year-old author of "The American Tragedy" denied at Bristol Va.-Tenn., the misconduct accusation and said it would be impossible for him to be guilty.

Circuit Judge Jones, in charging the grand jury, said witnesses had sworn to a warrant charging Dreiser and the young woman had lived together openly at a hotel here. The warrant has not been served on the novelist.

Judge Jones also charged the grand jury to determine if acts of criminal syndicalism were committed at meetings of miners conducted by the Dreiser committee, and to return indictments if justified. He said if he had been Governor he would have placed State troops on the border and never permitted the writers to enter Kentucky.

FIVE ARE KILLED BY LANDSLIDE

Pierreville, Que., Nov. 10 (AP)—Five men were buried under a landslide near here last night and killed. Their bodies were recovered early today, seven hours after they were trapped.

The dead were: M. Menard and M. Morin of Montreal, Theophile Capino and Mederic Mondou of Pierreville and Wilfrid St. Germain of St. Piede Guire, Que.

The landslide occurred as the men were about to quit work in a hole they were digging 25 feet deep.

HER LOVE WORTH $25,000

Miss Mary Louise Gagne, an employe of a downtown department store, has brought suit for $25,000, for alleged breach of promise, against Eugene J. She has brought suit for the same amount against the parents. (Staff photo.)

POLICE, FAMILY IN KIDNAP ROW

St. Louis, Nov. 10 (AP)—Lack of co-operation between the family of Alexander Berg, abducted millionaire, and the police department, heretofore only hinted at, was brought out into the open today by one of Berg's attorneys.

"I will not tell you we have had any further communication," the attorney, Adrian Levinson, told reporters, "for if you get information the police get it."

Levenson revealed that John Rogers, Post-Dispatch reporter who played a prominent part in the return of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley, eye, ear, nose and throat specialist, who was kidnaped last April 20, was being consulted by advisers of the Berg family.

"Rogers is a friend of mine and of my father," Levinson said. "Considering the success he had in a previous kidnaping case, we thought it advisable to ask his advice."

A week after Dr. Kelley was abducted, Rogers met the kidnapers near East St. Louis, Ill., where the specialist was released to him.

GRANDI'S FOES WORRY U. S.

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—Whether Dino Grandi, Italy's foreign minister, should enter America on Nov. 16, with a blare of trumpets and cheering reminiscent of his famous Fascist march on Rome, or slip in cautiously as he used to ski over the Alps in wartime, today caused considerable official deliberation.

While Grandi was on the high seas en route here for a conference with President Hoover, officials of the State Department and Mayor Walker were busy with a conference of their own.

It was no secret that the State Department was considerably perturbed about the plans of anti-Fascist organizations to stage protest demonstrations, not only here, but in other cities, during the visit of Grandi.

That was why on its official program, made public several days ago, New York's customary reception of fanfare and ticker tape for visiting dignitaries was conspicuously omitted.

KING GEORGE IN PARLIAMENT; SHUNS TARIFF

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Correspondent.

London, Nov. 10 (INS)—King George formally opened Parliament today, riding from Buckingham Palace with the Queen in the golden state coach and delivering a speech from the throne in the House of Lords.

Intermittent rain marked the medieval pageantry, but thousands of Londoners lined the streets to cheer the King and Queen.

He said the new Parliament should strive to balance the budget and take whatever additional steps were deemed necessary in the interest of national economic reconstruction.

The king made no direct reference to demands for a protective tariff, but this was not surprising because Prime Minister MacDonald who was responsible for the tenor of the speech, has not yet committed himself on a protection policy.

"My government intends to pursue a policy promoting peace and good will, and will take an active interest in the work of the League of Nations," his majesty said.

"Particularly will attention be given to preparations for the approaching disarmament conference, the successful results of which I am convinced will produce great universal benefit."

CASTAWAYS MUM ON TRIP

"Did you have any trouble?"

"Not till October 13."

Prodding. "What happened then?"

The huddled crew and passengers say nothing. Nobody says anything but the spokesman.

"We understand from the wireless reports you didn't have enough food on board. We understand you didn't have anything to use for fuel and that salt beef went on rations."

"We had all the food we needed. We was short of sugar, that's all. Short of sugar and nothin' else."

The coast guard destroyer Davis had radioed how the men of the James seized upon bread and upon planks tossed aboard for fuel.

PLENTY OF WATER

"Did you have water?"

"We had all the water we wanted."

"How much for the passage?"

The bonds of secrecy were broken and a passenger yelled: "Fifty dollars." The officer turned to gaze at the group. It was impossible to tell who had spoken.

"How's your sail?"

"There's the sail," pointing to canvas stowed on the boom.

"How's your rudder?"

"All right."

"Lost your rudder, didn't you?"

WOMAN PASSENGER ILL

"How long has she been leaking, captain?"

"Since day before yesterday."

"Bad?"

"Naw, not bad."

The men in the group stirred, but nobody spoke.

"Where's the woman?"

"Below."

"What's the matter with her?"

"She's sick."

"Very sick?"

"Naw, just seasick."

"Did you seek help?"

"No."

"Could you have got her in without help?"

"Why not?"

Again the men huddled on the deck stirred. And again nobody spoke.

FIRST IN FIVE WEEKS

The newspapermen tossed cigarettes aboard the James and the huddle of crew and passengers broke up as the men seized them, lighted them and inhaled with satisfaction.

"How long since you've had smokes?"

"Five weeks," someone said.

"Were you hungry?"

No answer.

"Are you ill?"

No answer.

"Have you enough clothing?"

No answer. The group reforms. Nobody says anything. There is a long silence while coast guards and newspapermen puzzle it over. Then somebody calls in perfect English:

"Thanks for the cigarettes."

"Say, tell us something of what you went through. Did you suffer?"

Nobody says anything.

Agonies, Not Glories "Truth About War"

Chicago, Nov. 10 (AP)—Dr. J. Elliott Ross, head of the Newman Foundation of Catholic students of the University of Illinois, says if America wants to tell the truth about the World War at its armistice day festivities tomorrow, there should be a "parade of sobbing widows and orphans, of crippled men and thousands broken in mind and body."

Before the Good Will Congress, Dr. Ross said: "We have war because we fail in truthfulness. Tomorrow will be Armistice Day. In a way, our observance is a gigantic falsehood, because it will be a distortion of the truth. The real horror of war will be thrown into the background by stirring music, gay flags and reckless talk."

9 IN TORTURE CASE GUARDED IN "PLOT"

Police protection was granted today to the two Amesbury girls, following threats by friends and relatives of the accused youths.

The first threats came after the guilty pleas yesterday, when the two girls were sighted by friends and relatives outside the court, as they stood at a courtroom window. Jeers and cries were hurled at the girls and were soon followed by threats.

Court attaches brought the girls to a conference room as the demonstration grew more violent, and Amesbury police and Essex County shire sheriffs stood on guard over them. The crowd outside, expecting the girls to come out, remained before the building.

After about two hours the crowd dispersed. Police reported that two women, relatives of one of the guilty youths openly threatened harm to the two girls. It was decided to keep a guard over them for the duration of the case.

The nine pleaded guilty yesterday, in Superior Court, after a tenth youth turned State's evidence to reveal a shocking story that earned for his pals the sobriquet "Merrimack Valley's Torture Gang."

Before Judge Henri Burque of Nashua today, counsel for the nine youths are due to plead for sentences of less than five years.

Opposing them will be County Solicitor George R. Scammon, who will ask for at least ten years for each.

YOUTHS DEFIANT

Openly defiant as they came into court, the shackled youths showed the first sign of breakdown after the jury was selected in the record time of an hour.

In the rear of the court sat two girls, both 19, the accusers of the youths.

Suddenly came a recess and a series of conferences.

A veritable army of defense attorneys scurried from one conference room to another, then hurriedly conferred with the prisoners.

Then all conferred with Judge Burque.

Meanwhile, crowds of Lawrence friends and relatives of the prisoners stormed the outside of the courthouse. The court had excluded spectators and press.

The hurried conferences over, Judge Burque called court again and accepted guilty pleas from Mario Feole, Joseph Furnarni and Edmund DeGregnolis.

Stephen Boromi, alleged ring leader, Angelo Verdiglianzio, Ralph DeMarco, Joseph Trificante, Samuel apoli and James Palermo, remained adamant, even while the jury boarded a waiting bus for the 25-mile ride to view the scene at Salem.

Another hurried conference of defense counsel halted proceedings again, and the jury was recalled to hear the guilty pleas of the other six.

All but Feole were taken back immediately to the county jail at Brentwood to await sentence today.

The reason for delay of Feole was not disclosed officially but it was learned that he was isolated from the others because he was first to urge guilty pleas and afterwards furnished officers with names of other youths who took part in similar attacks. Feole was later taken to Portsmouth jail.

WILD DEMONSTRATION

With the stories of Feole and Henry Partello, the latter having turned state's evidence before the indictment of the nine, prosecutors were armed with enough evidence to round up nearly a score of youths.

The only obstacle, officials pointed out, was the reluctance of the girl victims to talk, many of them because of open threats by the gang.

The exit of the guilty youths from the court house was a signal for a wild demonstration.

Police Chief Thomas Chrysler and several officers found themselves unable to cope with the rush of tearful womenfolk toward the prisoners, but court attaches and sheriffs aided in quieting the crowd.

The handcuffed men seemed least concerned as they held to an outward show of bravado.

On the grounds that the defendants still have a right to withdraw their guilty pleas, the jury was not dismissed but ordered to report today for such an emergency.

The jurors selected are Everett A. Weare of Seabrook, foreman; Lewis D. Card of Portsmouth, Jedidiah Rand of Rye, Cyrus G. Clark of Hampton, Roscoe M. Nowell of Raymond, Archie D. McEachern of Portsmouth, Frank P. Hughes of Greenland, Henry W. Brown of Kensington, James W. McMullen of Portsmouth, William Quinn of Epping, George H. Hamlins of Windham and John D. Fogg of Hampton Falls.

Japan Sends Secret Reply to Unpublished U. S. Note

Tokio, Nov. 10 (AP)—Japan's reply to the "Aide Memoire" of the United States Government on the Manchuria conflict, was dispatched to Washington today.

Baron Kijuro Shidehara, Japanese foreign minister, decided not to suggest publication of the notes of the two governments although it was believed here he would not object to publication if Secretary of State Stimson wished it.

Japan Sees Hope of Peace in Eugene Chen's Proposal

Tokio, Japan, Nov. 10 (AP)—A proposal for reorganization of the government of Manchuria, made by Eugene Chen, Chinese journalist and statesman, today turned attention of Japan to China, rather than to Geneva in hope of a permanent solution of the Manchurian problem.

The proposal, said to have been formulated by the opposition government at Canton, was given to the Japanese consul in Canton by Chen before he left for Shanghai to discuss with Nanking leaders a reorganization of the Nanking Nationalist government.

The plan calls for closer co-operation with Japan and expulsion from Manchuria of "greedy and meddlesome war lords," together with the appointment of a high commissioner by the central government to take charge of Manchurian affairs.

Japanese military forces would be permitted to remain and Japan would be largely responsible for maintaining peace and order.

Chinese Envoy Denies Plea for League Army Patrol

Geneva, Nov. 10 (INS)—Reports in London that China had requested the sending of an international army to Manchuria to patrol the South Manchurian Railway were denied today by Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese delegate to the League of Nations.

Jap Plot to Involve Soviets Is Charged

Moscow, Nov. 10 (AP)—The Tass News Agency today received a message from Khabarovsk, Siberia, saying a Japanese newspaper editor attached to the Japanese military mission at Harbin, had made proposals to "White" Russians to provoke a conflict with the Soviet government and draw Russia into the Manchurian conflict.

The editor was said to have invited Gen. Kosmin, "White" Russian, to organize an attack against the Chinese Eastern Railway and to arrest prominent Soviet officials.

Japanese Plan Fresh Attack on Mah's Army

Peiping, Nov. 10 (INS)—Japanese troops have withdrawn south of the Nonni River bridgehead and are consolidating for a renewed attack upon the forces of Gen. Mah Chan-Shan, commander of Heilung-Kiang provincial troops, according to messages received here today.

The dispatches said Mah held control of Tsitsihar despite efforts of an autonomous army under Gen. Chang Hai-Peng to dislodge him. Chinese officials charge Chang Hai-Peng is backed by the Japanese.

Private advices from Tsitsihar said Mah Chan-Shan had constructed a new third line of defense only 100 yards south of the Chinese Eastern Railway. It was assumed this proximity to the railway line, partly owned and operated by Soviet Russia, would seriously embarrass Moscow should the Japanese persist in attacking Mah Chan-Shan's forces.

Tientsin Police Behead Ringleaders of Riot

Tientsin, China, Nov. 10 (INS)—More than 400 Chinese, of the riot mob that terrorized Tientsin over the week-end by sacking shops and firing on the Japanese concession, were rounded up by police today and their ringleaders were summarily executed by decapitation.

Intermittent rifle fire was heard in the vicinity of the Japanese concession as troops and police pursued the rioters. Most of them had taken cover in the native quarter, and those who attempted to renew the disorders found themselves confronted by overwhelming forces of police and foreign and native troops.

Voting Fraud Is Charged in Chelsea

The charge that many "mattress voters" are included among the 2500 new voters recently registered in Chelsea was made by Frank D. Crowley, candidate for mayor, in an affidavit filed with the Chelsea registrars.

He requests that the board hold a hearing with a view to striking the illegal voters from the list, and lists the names of 37 persons, including several women.

Jump in Price of Silver Reopens Mine

Tonopah, Nevada, Nov. 10 (AP)—The rising price of silver has brought about the reopening of one silver mine in this area, and prospects for resumption of work at several others and the employment of 500 men here should the price reach 50 cents an ounce.

Silver was quoted yesterday at 35¾ cents an ounce in New York.

BEACON HILL

—by—

Betty Alden

THE JOHN HOAR HOUSE AT 13 WEST CEDAR ST. IS a very "swell club" sort of place; charming small suites and a club dining-room with marvelous food, we hear. It is not called the John Hoar House as was feared; in fact it has not been named but it is causing a bit of comment on the hill and several eligibles make it their rendezvous. What a priceless place to go on cook's night out!

POLLY BEALE

* * *

An amusing incident is being related in regard to Peggy Bent's wedding, now Mrs. Patterson, which took place on Friday. Miss Peggy was wearing a rare old Rose Point veil which belonged to her mother from which floated a cloud of tulle completely covering her long bridal train. As she was walking down the aisle in Emmanuel Church, the strong breeze of good wishes wafted the tulle away from her lace cap and Peggy walked on to the altar leaving a pool of tulle behind her. Glancing back she merely smiled, continuing on her father's arm to meet her future husband. Such a trifle as losing one's wedding veil would never upset Peggy.

Polly Beale to Wear Grandmother's Gown

AND SPEAKING OF WEDDINGS, WE READ THAT Polly Beale is going to wear Grandmother Miller's wedding gown when she is married on Armistice Day at Barnstable. How some of these girls manage to crowd into their grandmothers' wedding finery is quite beyond our imagination unless they hang a lace curtain down the back. We were surprised that Rose Movius was not in the wedding party but hear that she may be if she is not on her way to Chicago.

DROPPING IN TO THE Copley Theater the other night to see the new mystery play—which by the way IS new and exciting and quite different from the ordinary run of such thrillers — we glimpsed Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Lang, Frank Blake and Susan Wigglesworth, our popular provisional chairman Linda Collens, June McLeod and Deborah Hall. Felice Leeds, who has the subscriptions well in hand for this series, has a nice part in this play. Her sister debs will be interested to see her performance.

EVERYTHING POINTS TO A very successful evening at the Ritz tomorrow night in aid of the Christopher Shop. All the Fair Things will don their finest raiment and parade in a Fashion Show, and from the list they will be an eyeful. IN EXCLUSIVE CLUBS

Classmates Honor Catharine V. Murphy

In honor of Miss Catharine V. Murphy, of Newton Center, a reception was given Sunday at the Ritz-Carlton by more than 50 of her classmates of Emmanuel College. Miss Murphy is the bride-elect of Charles F. McNeil, Harvard '27, and the nuptials will be solemnized Thursday, Nov. 12, in St. Mary's Chapel, Boston College.

A shower for Miss Murphy was held at the home of Dr. Thomas M. Gallagher, of Newton, last Thursday, and the week previously a surprise shower was given at the home of Miss Margaret Downey, Larchmont, Cambridge.

Linda Collens Makes Debut Tonight

Miss Linda Collens will make her formal debut tonight at a dance given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collens, of Dudley rd., Newton Center. Miss Collens, as everyone knows, was elected chairman of the provisional members of the Junior League, and is also a member of the Vincent Club. Last year she attended the Winsor School, where she was head (or "mayor") of the school.

Preceding the dance, Mr. and Mrs. Collens will entertain the ushers and a group of Miss Linda's sister debs at dinner, both that and the dance taking place at the Country Club in Brookline.

Ushering for Miss Collens will be a large group, headed by her brother, C. Terry Collens and her brother-in-law, Harris Leopold Gruener. Included are the Messrs. Karl Adams, Nelson W. Aldrich, Benjamin Beale, Jr.; William Boardman, Elton Clark, Jr.; Gardner Cox, Frederick Dearborn, James Dennison, Gilbert E. Fuller, Jr.; Alfred Hartwell, Richard Heath, Brinley Hall, Kirkland Gibson, Henry Howe, George Johnson, Arthur Jones, John Kennard, Robert Lincoln, Edward Little, David Morse, Richard Neff, Albert L. Nickerson, Henry Pearson, Robert Saltonstall, Curtis Wadell, Richard Wolcott and Roger Wood.

Another dinner will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Loring, Jr., for which Miss Mary Loring will be hostess.

Miss Collens' sister-in-law, Mrs. C. Terry Collens (Eleanor Perkins), gave a luncheon in the debutante's honor two or three weeks ago. Otherwise, this is the first affair at which she will appear in the limelight.

New Styles of Sporting Togs Easy to Wear

By ANN ARDEN

TODAY THE art of country dressing has reached a high mark of perfection. Women who live in the country all the year round have their own distinct manner of dressing. In the winter they must be warm and they insist upon being just as smart in appearance as their city sisters. Only they do it in their own way.

* * *

IT MUST be admitted that all country clothes have reached the last degree of simplicity. There is not a frill nor a furbelow about them. They are practical in the extreme. They can be slipped into so easily that the moments consumed in dressing are almost negligible.

* * *

* * *

A HIGH rating is due the outfit pictured, perfect to wear under a leather coat to the late fall football games, for campus activities, and for young things dashing about the countryside. The skirt of wood brown wool has many gores, giving a very slight flare. The cream white zephyr knit sweater has wide shoulder yoke and cross-over front effect striped brown, green and white. The wide hip band, and wrist-hugging cuffs are purled brown edged in green.

* * *

THE PERKY hat is of chenille fabric, rust in shade, with rolled cord brim, and topped in feather butterfly fancy. The necklace adds a dress-up note, quite "in the picture." 'Tis from Leiong, a woven cord string with colored discs on metal rings. The tan Prince of Wales Oxfords have an assured social position, and the pigskin gloves move in the best circles too.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs, or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WAAB.

BINGHAM FOR BEER TO AID JOBLESS

(Editor's note — Legalization of 4 per cent beer would relieve the government's tax burdens, aid agriculture, relieve unemployment and improve respect for all law, according to Senator Bingham of Connecticut. In the following article, he presents the case for 4 per cent beer.)

By SENATOR HIRAM BINGHAM
Author of the Senate Bill to Legalize 4 Per Cent Beer
Written Expressly for International News Service

Washington, Nov. 10 (INS)—I believe the Volstead Act should be modified to permit the manufacture and sale of 4 per cent beer and ale because I am confident such action on the part of Congress would have several favorable results.

It would promote the cause of temperance because at the present time thousands of persons who would prefer to drink a bottle of good beer are tempted to drink hard liquor.

$200,000,000 REVENUE

Legalizing the manufacture and sale of beer could be easily made to produce a revenue of more than $200,000,000 annually for the federal government. This would help to meet the enormous deficit with which we are faced.

It would help the desperate situation in the coal mining areas because the breweries would use several hundred thousand tons of coal annually.

It would help the farmers because it would require the use of about one hundred million bushels of barley, for which there is now practically no market. Indirectly it would help the wheat farmers because the farmers who formerly grew barley for the breweries have had to turn their attention to wheat and thereby caused a wheat surplus.

WORK FOR 100,000.

It would provide employment for at least 100,000 persons in addition to those now employed. This figure includes not only those who would be employed in breweries but also in the manufacture of barrels and bottles and transportation and sale of beer.

It would not cause a return of the saloon because provision could be made whereby the beer could be sold only for home use. That the American people can be trusted to drink temperately in their homes has been ably demonstrated since the Volstead act went into effect, particularly in the early years of prohibition when there was an enormous quantity of alcoholic beverages stored in private cellars.

It would increase respect for law and promote law observance, which are now at a low ebb due to the extreme injustice and enforcement of the Volstead act which permits the manufacture of wine and cider in the home but which forbids the manufacture of beer. It is true that light beer cannot be made at home, but there is no reason why breweries should not be permitted to make it, since it is not intoxicating in the normal use of that term.

VOTE ON REPEAL

Furthermore, to abolish the one-half of one per cent clause in the Volstead Act, which every one knows is a ridiculous figure to use for so-called intoxicating beverages, would still further tend to increase respect for law.

Finally, I would prefer to have the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment referred to the states for action in state constitutional conventions as suggested by Judge Kenyon of the Wickersham commission. I believe the Eighteenth Amendment has no place in the Constitution as it is a matter which should be decided by each state itself. But, as long as it is there, the best that Congress can do is to modify the Volstead Act so as to provide for the manufacture of good beer, which will promote temperance, increase the government's revenue, reduce unemployment, provide a market for grain and coal, stimulate business and promote the general happiness of millions of people who would like to enjoy a glass of good beer.

Crippled Freighter Towed Into Port

Dover, Eng., Nov. 10 (US)—The U. S. Widow Must Borrow to Bury Man Who Gave Away Millions

Washington, Nov. 10 (US)—John Gallatin, who gave a $5,000,000 art collection to the Smithsonian Institute two years ago, was experiencing such poverty when he died of pneumonia in New York that his widow will have to borrow money to bury him, she said today.

His widow, the former Charlyne Whitely, an actress, also announced she will endeavor to have Congress return the art collection which she said was given away without her knowledge before she married him in September, 1929.

Troops Charge Mob to Rescue Priest

Barcelona, Spain, Nov. 10 (US)—Serious rioting is reported from Valencia where Agrarians attacked Catholics, burned a priest's car and attempted to lynch those who came to the priest's rescue. Civil guards made repeated charges with drawn sabres, injuring scores, before the trouble was quieted.

LOVED TO EAT, AND NOW SHE CAN!

Much of the suffering from so-called "indigestion" or acid-dyspepsia could be avoided if everyone could know what thousands like Miss Lillian Ralston have learned. This New York City business woman, who lives at 1160 Park Avenue, says:

"I suffered from headaches and heartburn after meals; couldn't sleep like I should; never felt right.

"For five years I experimented with medicines and treatments, until I learned about Pape's Diapepsin. I have used three packages now; have gained five pounds, and feel fine."

If you, too, suffer from sourness, gas, belching, nausea, headaches, dizziness, or pain after eating—either regularly or just at times, get a box of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist. Then you need never worry again about what you eat.

SINS OF THE SEVENTIES A LESSON IN MORALS FOR 1931

By GILBERT SELDES

I DO NOT SUPPOSE that Edward Van Every intends his "Sins of America," drawn from the pink files of the Police Gazette, to be a lesson in changing morality and nothing more. He knows, as well as anyone, how entertaining these texts and pictures are, from the woman in miles of ruffles who is having her leg tattooed, down to the striped stockings, high shoes, and ruffled petticoats of the women fighting in a Pittsburgh church—"female saints settle old scores." The Police Gazette tried to justify its name by including most of the good crimes of the time, from murder to kidnaping (the most famous of all American abductions, the Charlie Ross case, is in the present volume). But it also unbent to accidents, oddities and sprightly scandal. And its pictures, when photographs were not used to make stories appear credible, were extraordinary. Not good, but unusual.

Refined Rough-house

Superior Morals

Like the Pink Un in England, the Police Gazette took a high moral stand. The eager readers in barber shops might think that all these sexual vagaries were reported for their own sakes; but the official attitude was one of shock. The Police Gazette disapproved. And like the Pink Un, which published the most vicious attack on the morals of James Joyce's Ulysses, the Police Gazette took particular pleasure in exposing the immorality of the intellectuals. This was called "defending the purity of the home." The home was the last place into which the Police Gazette entered; but no one ever mentioned that.

A Great Radical

So it was that the paper which the righteous would not be seen reading (although they probably read it, unseen) directed a vicious attack upon John Humphrey Noyes, founder of the Oneida Community and creator of a system of ascending and pluralistic marriage. "Men and women," said Noyes, "find that susceptibility to love is not burned out by one honeymoon or satisfied by one lover. Here every man becomes the husband and brother of every woman, and every woman becomes the wife and sister of every man. Exclusive idolatrous attachment is unhealthy and pernicious." And so on. It happens that economically and socially the Oneida Community was one of the most intelligent efforts made in an era when hundreds of colonies were founded to create a better life. But the sexual theories and practices offended the world, and nothing now remains of the religion of Perfectionism, except the factories established under Noyes' beneficent rule.

"Are You Sincere?"

I doubt the sincerity of the Police Gazette in its attack. The subject was as good in its day as "weird love cults" and nudist colonies are now. The Police Gazette had no higher moral standard; but it knew that by pretending to be shocked by open defiance of the conventions it could get away with murder in other fields. The freedom it gained resulted in a distorted record of American life which now, when we do not check the accuracy of every accident and scandal, is vastly entertaining.

Better Than Sanger

If you were one of the minority which refused to cackle and glow over the Sanger family, and have maintained an attitude of scepticism about Margaret Kennedy ever since, you will learn an excellent moral lesson from her new book: "Return I Dare Not." The lesson is that malice is an excellent purge for whimsicality and sentiment, and is a fine basis for a book. Miss Kennedy isn't nearly as malicious as Somerset Maugham, but she knows a thing or two about successful authors, and the story she tells here, of one who felt that he had to pose his way through life, is witty and a little moving. I would not be either depressed or interested in the vague suggestion that the principal character is a well known dramatist whose name sounds something like Noel Coward. It's not important, even if true. The malice is impersonal; the pictures drawn of women are more significant than those of the men; and the story has swiftness and variety. It is entitled to Mr. Maugham's ninety-day limit of life for novels.

I Believe, Ripley

I am totally unable to explain the slight feeling of exasperation which Ripley's "Believe It or Not" causes in me. I read him every day; I find the second series equal in merit to the first; and Ripley has a pleasant way of making you feel that he is as surprised as you are by his discoveries. He never patronizes you or leads you to think that he is peculiarly gifted, learned, or even adventurous. All these things account for his success. But as one who used to read him in the long-defunct New York Globe, I register a query. The exact form of the question I do not know; it may be Lardner's "What of It?" or the later "So What?" And while I ask, I also note that pages 58 to 60 of the new series are entirely fascinating.

Nash and Soglow

Another second series is Ogden Nash's "Free Wheeling," illustrated, as "Hard Lines," was, by the immeasurable and incredible Soglow. Mr. Nash touches no subject which he does not adorn with foolishness or wit; and he writes no word which he does not distort. Mr. Nash's idea that the ladies of the D. A. R. "find themselves troubled by the sinus of the Declaration of Independence" is a social discovery of the first importance. He has written a textbook on the subject of Nash's style, a volume of criticism, a collection of light verse, and a series of pegs for Soglow, all in one. I wish it were printed on more agreeable paper.

Million Tickets to Be Sold for Jobless

New York, Nov. 10 (INS)—Sale of 1,000,000 tickets for motion picture shows to raise $500,000 was planned today by the motion picture industry's organization for unemployment relief in co-operation with the emergency employment relief committee.

Another plan is for national motion picture week, beginning Nov. 16. National broadcasts by screen stars are expected to give at least one benefit performance.

BURGLARS TRY TO BURN HOUSE

An attempt by burglars to burn a house in revenge for finding no valuables, was being investigated by Lynn police today.

Melvin Trefry of 135 South st., reported that on returning home late last night, he found the house had been ransacked, and the stairs and hall soaked in gasoline.

New Radio Tube Own Detector and Hooks on Loud Speaker

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 10 (AP)—A new radio tube, capable of substitution for two or more now used in receivers, was demonstrated today to the annual meeting of the Institute of Radio Engineers.

The tube embodies two sets of three elements. The first section may be used as a detector and can be coupled directly to the speaker.

Mounty Bares Perils in Tracking Reds

By SERGT. JOHN LEOPOLD
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

The Boston Evening American presents herewith the first installment of Sergt. John Leopold's own story of his amazing seven-year masquerade as a member of the Communist party in Canada, during which time he collected information which made possible the current trial of nine Communist leaders in Toronto. This is one of the most dramatic episodes in the history of the famous "get-your-man" organization.

Sergt. Leopold now tells in detail the story of how he laid aside his individuality to become "Comrade" John Esselwein, of his admission to the secret inner circle of the Soviet, the little known "Z" party, of his strange adventures during his double life, and finally of his betrayal and his three-year exile in the Yukon.

Toronto, Ontario, Nov. 10—The life of a Canadian mountie isn't all gold braid and gun battles.

Sometimes the organization requires us to take devious ways to get our man.

It took me seven years to get mine—and I used a paint brush instead of a gun, wore overalls instead of the dashing uniform of the Royal Canadian Mounteds, and for three years after my detection I was a hunted man. Every Communist in America carries by picture.

Coming to Canada from Bohemia as I did in 1913, I had little idea that I was ever to become a member of what was then the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Least of all did I dream that I was to go through such weird adventures as an undercover man in the Communist party of Canada.

When I joined the force in 1918, it was with the sole intention of getting to the front line trenches as quickly as possible. I started my regular training in Regina—a training which requires six months—and was looking forward to the trip to France. But my hopes were dashed then, before my time was up, the commanding officer sent for me.

CONSTANT VIGILANCE

"Leopold," he said, "I understand you speak four languages fluently." "Yes, sir," I replied. "German, Bulgarian, Polish and English." "Good," said the C. O. Then to my utter amazement he added, "I want you to quit soldiering and start painting houses."

I had never seen a paint brush before, but I got a job, as house painters were scarce. I learned the trade quickly, and shortly drew my union card in the American Federation of Labor.

I was now definitely established as an undercover agent for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

I took the name of John W. Esselwein, and set about the task of winning the confidence of Communist leaders. Soon I attracted favorable attention from the Communist group and was invited to their meetings.

As Comrade Esselwein, I finally became a full fledged member of the Communist party in Canada.

I read Communist literature day and night, and did small duties to test my loyalty. Always I was on edge, afraid of meeting someone who had known me as Leopold. My life was one continual nightmare of vigilance, watching my position in the party, aiding them ceaselessly, and spending my nights copying letters and reports. I was now known to the Mounted simply as "Number 20." Twice each week I reported to another undercover man who took my reports to the commandant in Regina.

In 1921 I was made secretary of the Communist party for Regina, at that time the powerful branch of the organization west of Winnipeg.

I discovered, after I became secretary of the Communist party, that there were two parties in the American Soviet network. Although I had been elected secretary, it was of the "A" party, known not as the Communist party of Canada, but as the Workers party.

FACES THE TEST

The real organization was carried on, and directions from Moscow were revealed only to the "Z" party, the inner circle. Into this inner band were taken only the tried and trusted members, pledged heart and soul to the furtherance of the cause.

In dealing with this inner party, I was confronted not only with the members of the party in Canada, but with Russia itself. And the Third Internationale was working under cover in every city of America, urging forward the workers and spreading discontent.

My last came in May, 1922, when I came face to face with one of the most powerful men in the Communist network in America. This man came to Canada purposely to see me—to test my loyalty, my ability, to scrutinize me ruthlessly if I so much as hinted that I could not be trusted.

The name he gave was Charles Scott. His real name was Jansen. He was third highest member of the Pan-American bureau established by the Communist Internationale to consolidate Communist activity in the United States, Canada and Mexico. He was a Russian.

He lived with me. He slept in the same room with Sergt. John Leopold of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

During those nights I often wakened with cold perspiration beading my face—after dreaming that I had talked in my sleep.

I exerted redoubled caution. And I made good. Comrade Jansen recommended me highly and I was invited into the inner council.

We received advice from Moscow as to methods to be used in stirring up strife. These were forwarded in code from Toronto and supplied to members of the "Z" party.

I was living in a strange world, burlesque and unreal. It was a world of fanatics. Tim Buck, president of the central committee for Canada, was a skilled machinist who could command $70 a week for his work. But he worked for the Communist party for $35, and often when remittances from Moscow were delayed he got nothing.

These men believed in the inevitability of the collapse of capitalism and the coming of chaos, in which they were merely "assisting."

(Tomorrow — "Comrade" Esselwein under arrest.)

6-HR. GOODYEAR DAY AFFORDS JOBS FOR ALL

There is no better lesson in how the 7,000,000 unemployed of America might be rehired than in the story of the great industries which have never fired their men.

Companies employing tens of thousands, who have kept their payroll intact in the face of the severest depression their business has ever known, have solved unemployment, by not creating it.

Most of them have done so by adopting the six-hour day and hindred methods of spreading work.

By LAURA VITRAY

Captains of industry . . .

The real captains of industry are like the captain of a regiment, they do not desert their men when they are hard pressed, but seek some way to lead them out of difficulty.

Scattered all over the map of the United States you will find towns whose names suggest a single industry . . . regiments of workers specialized in a single line and dependent upon it for their livelihood.

Not infrequently the workers' houses and shops and schools and libraries and movies belong to their employers, to whose interests their lives are devoted, and upon whom they depend completely for the security of their families.

When the great depression hit such towns and trades, it assumed the aspect of a community disaster. In many of these towns leadership failed . . . but in a few of them it was outstanding.

SOLVING THE PROBLEM

Most of these towns now have the six-hour working day, or its equivalent in shorter and better distributed hours of labor.

Take the town Akron, O.

In 1929, when there was plenty of sale for auto tires and raincoats and galoshes, and all manner of rubber manufacturers, Akron was a prosperous place, and its children were well fed.

But when the bubble of prosperity burst the town faced a serious situation.

The spectre of tragedy stalked up and down the main street . . . until the executives of the three or four big rubber companies adopted vigorous means of providing for the tremendous overflow of labor.

"The Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company has made valiant efforts to prevent distress through spreading work," comments a famous economist.

The six-hour working day was the Goodyear Company's final solution of the problem. Let us see how it came to it.

Goodyear employs approximately 32,000 people.

Early in July, 1930, with orders sharply declining, department heads followed the easiest procedure of laying off some of their men.

But a week later an order came through from the company's management that all such men who had a record of six months' service were to be immediately rehired.

WORK WAS ROTATED

It was further ruled that the work must then be rotated so that every man did his share of it.

That plan worked for a while. But within the next few months production reached a new low level, where lay-offs again seemed the only remedy.

A five-day week with rotating employment was then adopted throughout the works. This meant that even on the five-day schedule each employe was required to take off an extra day out of each five, to reduce the immense surplus of help. In addition, transfers were made from slack shops to busier ones, to keep the plan moving as smoothly as possible, but in a month it failed.

A policy guaranteeing employes four eight-hour shifts a week was just as rapidly broken down.

One of the great drawbacks in all these plans was the extreme difficulty of administering them for so large a force of workers.

WENT ON SIX-HOUR PLAN

The Goodyear management therefore decided on a simplification of the entire operating scheme. A system of four six-hour shifts per day was adopted, as it allowed for the accommodation of the largest number of workers. This was combined with a flexible working week, which dropped to four days during the lowest point of depression in the winter of 1930.

"The six-hour plan is being used to eliminate the necessity of laying off a large number of employes because of world-wide conditions and our industry's seasonal fluctuations," C. Slusser, vice-president and manager of the Akron factory, said.

"No new employes have been added, but employes laid off were re-employed, and our present payroll is 11,000. Hourly and piece-work rates have not been changed because of the adoption of the six-hour program. The increased overhead is offset by increased efficiency due to the fact that there is no lunch period and that the hours are shorter."

There are reasons why the 6-hour-day, installed by the Goodyear and other rubber companies as an emergency plan, will be retained as a permanent program. Tomorrow we will tell you more about Akron and the rubber industry.

CHIEFS TRY OUT POLICE RADIO

Sixty-six Massachusetts police chiefs had a demonstration of police radio broadcasting arranged by Gen. Alfred E. Foote, state commissioner of public safety, and as a result many Massachusetts police departments plan to install broadcasting sets. The demonstrations were given at the police chiefs' convention at Hotel Kimball, Springfield.

Gen. Foote was en route home yesterday from the convention when a broadcast from the barracks at Framingham came in. He stopped his car, which was equipped with a receiving set, notified other autos which were conveying the chiefs nearby, and all gathered about the auto to hear the broadcast, which was received in Brookfield.

In several instances heads of the departments listened to broadcasts of items concerning police business in their own cities, although they were many miles away from home.

Practically the entire session of the convention was devoted to discussion of the importance of police broadcasting.

DAVIS HEIRESS WORE WIG

QUIZZED ON DRINKING

Q—Do you keep a diary, too? A.—I do not.

Q—Did you observe Mrs. Davis' habits as to liquor? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you ever see her drink at meals? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever see a jug upstairs? A.—I did, in the bathroom.

Q—Was it a large jug, covered with straw? A—Yes.

Q—Would you say it was of four or five quarts capacity? A—Yes.

Q—How often did you see it? A—Six times.

Q—How did she show it, in her walk? A—I wouldn't say that.

WORE AUBURN WIG

The witness also testified that among the approximately 50 bottles in the bathroom there was one labeled "veronol" and containing pills.

Q—Did you ever know of Mrs. Davis having aspirin in her whiskey? A—No.

Q—Did she ever discuss drinking with you? A.—No.

Q—Do you remember her going to Boston a couple of days before you left her employ? A.—I do.

Mrs. St. Clair said that Mrs. Davis talked about going to Boston to sign some papers.

Q.—Did you know of the books and magazines that were brought to her from New York? A.—No.

It was at this point that the witness declared Mrs. Davis used to wear an auburn wig over her own blonde hair.

"She had beautiful blonde hair of her own," said Mrs. St. Clair.

Q.—And yet she wore an auburn wig at times? A.—Yes.

WAS "LITTLE TIPSY"

Q—How did she spend Wednesday to Monday of the week prior to the time you left? A—At the beginning of the week she was a little tipsy. She stayed in bed one day, I think, and she didn't eat much during that time.

Q—Was Mr. X [Atty. Sullivan, during his questioning frequently refers to "Mr. X," who is admittedly Atty. Bennett of New York] there that week? A—He was during the first of the week.

Q—Is your memory the same as your husband's diary that she was drunk up to Saturday night? A—Yes.

On Monday, Mrs. Davis got up "as bright as a button," the witness said.

Q—Did you ever see deliveries of liquor by a bootlegger? A—No.

The witness said there was only a "small supply" of liquor kept in the Davis household as a rule. Asked what a "small supply" meant she said:

"Oh, four or five cases of champagne, a case of whiskey and some beer."

Q—When did you first see the man from New York? A—Shortly after I first went there.

TALKED WITH GRANT

Q—Have you talked with Grant Pierce since yesterday? A—No.

Q—Haven't you talked with him since you were on the stand yesterday just before court adjourned? As a matter of fact, you talked with him yesterday at 4 o'clock, didn't you? A—Yes.

Q.—You don't know how long the New Yorker stayed the first time you saw him? A.—No.

Q.—Did you see him later? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you notice anything unusual about his relations with his host? A.—Not on the first, second or third occasions.

Q.—Well, pick out an occasion when there was something unusual? A.—Well, there was nothing unusual the first, second or third visits. She said to me that he was her lawyer.

Q.—You knew they were upstairs together, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Do you mean to say there was nothing different in the attitude of these two persons than is usual in the attitude of a female hostess to a male guest? A.—I couldn't swear to it. I can't say as I observed anything unusual in their relations.

PAJAMAS IN ROOM.

Q.—Did you see him bring liquor? A.—I saw liquor in the closet after he arrived. It was in a little case and there were one or two containers.

Q.—Did you see any of his wearing apparel in her room? A.—I saw a pair of pajmas at the bottom of the bed.

Q.—How do you know they were the guest's pajamas? A.—He was the only man in the house.

D—Did you know that they were his? A.—Yes.

Mrs. Damon Runyon Dies in New York

New York, Nov. 10 (US)—Mrs. Ellen Egan Runyon, wife of Damon Runyon, nationally known sports writer, died at her home here yesterday, a victim of heart disease. Mrs. Runyon, a former Detroit newspaper woman, was married to Runyon in 1911. She is survived by two children, Damon, Jr., 12, and Mary Ellen, 17.

Harvard to Debate With Coast by Radio

Harvard will meet the debating team of Leland Stanford via the radio on the afternoon of Nov. 27.

The subject will be: "Resolved, that America needs a stronger central government." Harvard will support the affirmative side and Stanford the negative.

PAY CUT LOOMS IN N. BEDFORD

New Bedford, Nov. 10—A communication from the Cotton Manufacturers Association, relative to a wage cut in the mills, has been received by the textile council here.

Although officials of the council were reluctant to discuss the letter or its contents received last night, it was learned from reliable sources that the missive related directly to a contemplated wage cut in all the mills of the city.

It has been learned that the matter has already been brought to the attention of mill employes in recent weeks. While the majority are agreed that under present conditions a temporary wage cut would be acceptable, it is known that mill workers are disagreed on the amount of the cut.

Boy Who Finds $285 Rewarded With Kiss

Chicago, Nov. 10 (AP)—Mrs. Frances Kane lost a purse containing $285.25 on the street. Joseph Goldblatt, 19, found it. Through a newspaper Ed located the woman and returned the money. She kissed him and offered him $20 reward, but he refused.

"Your kiss," said he, "is reward enough."

GIRL'S WITNESS LOSES MEMORY

Los Angeles, Nov. 10 (US)—"Not recalling" many of the details of the testimony he gave at the first trial of Alexander Pantages on attack charges, Frederick Wise, prosecution witness, was the cause of a bitter legal battle at the second trial of the millionaire showman.

Chief Deputy Dist. Atty Stewart, who called Wise to the stand yesterday, grew openly exasperated after the witness, time and again, repeated that he could remember "only the highlights" and very few details of the scene in Pantages' office the afternoon Eunice Pringle claims she was attacked.

Students to Honor Lowell on Birthday

President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University will be feted and dined by students and faculty members of Lowell House on the occasion of his 75th birthday Dec. 13.

Theft of Corpse Fails

Hudson, N. Y., Nov. 10—Accused of attempting to steal a body from a grave, George Roosz, 25 a Sunday school superintendent, was arrested and held for the grand jury.

Trouble Ends as Gloria Weds Again

Yuma, Ariz., Nov. 10 — Gloria Swanson, film star, and her newest husband, Michael Farmer, wealthy Irish sportsman, were remarried here yesterday by Justice of the Peace Earl A. Freeman.

The couple motored to Yuma from Hollywood, and went through a marriage ceremony which apparently cleared away all legal complications arising from a previous wedding solemnized before the actress' divorce became final.

Real relief from CONSTIPATION

Acidity affects the appetite. What food you do eat sours in the stomach. The tongue becomes coated. The breath is bad. Sick headaches become frequent. You are constipated.

These are danger signals which should never go unheeded. Your system is fairly shouting its need of help; something to help remove the acid waste and restore alkaline balance. An anti-acid to offset the effect of too rich a diet, nervousness, excitement, etc.

Men and women who meet this need promptly with Phillips' Milk of Magnesia do not suffer. They eat well, and their food doesn't ferment in the stomach. Every trace of overacidity soon disappears. All sour gas is dispelled. Stomach, liver and bowels have a better chance to function.

If there is the least hint of too much acid, just take a spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia today, and for several days. Feel this sweeten your stomach. Note how appetite improves. And elimination. You will wonder how anything so pleasant-tasting can be so promptly effective. 25c and 50c bottles at drug stores everywhere.

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Down Memory Lane

(With Georgie Price Who Tells a Few Tales Out of School)

At the age of five I proved a singing success by warbling in saloons and poolrooms and taking home the money I collected by passing the hat.

I used to sing in the Idle Hour Nickelodeon on East Houston st. for 10 cents a day and the theater manager would take me home nights and put me to bed. He'd put the dime under my mother's pillow.

Moving to Harlem, I discovered other places in which to display my talents. Friedman's saloon on the corner of 114th st. and Fifth ave. I used to walk under the swinging doors and sing Gus Edwards' "Tammany" with a catch line that would have John Sumner frowning. Some one taught me the words, and I didn't know what they meant. I used to wonder why they howled when I sang that line.

Being invited to a party given by Herman Timberg's mother and singing for Mr. and Mrs. Gus Edwards. He chased me home for my mother and gave her a contract for my services. She received $10 a week.

Lunching with the Edwardses the next day and then being taken around the shops to be groomed in "sissy" fashion. I lived with the Edwardses for 10 years as their child, going home on visits.

Then came vaudeville and star billing by Gus Edwards in his "Kid Cabaret," "Song Revue" and "Band Box Revue." And then Eddie Cantor, joining the act, after a tour in vaudeville as a stooge for a juggler.

Cantor, again, when told to sing in a specialty, answered: "What! With my voice?" So Edwards rehearsed him in a fast song and told him: "Keep running up and down and clap your hands and no one will know the difference." He's still doing it.

Playing the matinee show at Hammerstein's Victoria in the "Song Revue" in 1907 and bawling because the Gerry Society wouldn't let me play. They objected to kids in theaters where smoking was permitted. I cried hardest when the act played the longest run at the theater. It ran four weeks.

During the absence of the Edwardses being taken care of by Harry Rapf, his office manager, and Miss Uhfelder, his stenographer. And they were tickled with the job because it meant their dinner and expenses. Miss Uhfelder is Mrs. Rapf and Harry is an important Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executive.

Bert Wheeler doubling as actor and office boy while I made excuses for him so that we could see the Giants on a pass I got from John McGraw. Was I proud!

Lila Lee joins the "Band Box Revue" in 1910 and I sang love songs to her for six years. I will sing the songs to her when we meet on the coast.

Playing football with Sid Silverman at a party given by his dad, Sime. And hearing Gus Edwards turn down a third interest offered him for $1750 in Famous Players by Jesse Lasky. I hate to think what that interest would be worth now.

Just seven years old when I played Keith's Washington. President Taft met me in the lobby of the Willard Hotel. He said: "I saw you at the theater and I think you have a great job." My snappy comeback: "What do I have to do to get a job like yours?"

Meeting Roxy in Milwaukee in 1909, where he dressed up a nickelodeon with carpets and brass cuspidors and put in an orchestra. The beginning of today's picture palaces. He was trying, at that time, to show movies in the day time, but the daylight knocked the daylights out of the film.

In Los Angeles, in 1915, on the Orpheum circuit. I went into Watt's restaurant and heard a Hawaiian trio in a side room. One of the trio played a song he just wrote. I rehearsed and sang it. The "Hawaiian" was Buddy De Sylva, now one of our better song writers.

Getting too old for the Edwards' act and out of a job with little money. After being billed as "Little Georgie" for 10 years I walked into Flo Ziegfeld's office and sent word that Georgie Price wanted to see Mr. Ziegfeld. The ghostfier sent word he didn't know me, so I told the girl that "Little Georgie" wanted to see the producer. I got in.

After an audition in Mr. Ziegfeld's private office, I opened the same night on the New Amsterdam roof in "The Midnight Frolics of 1917."

Ziegfeld, quarreling again with Eddie Cantor, made me black up and do an impersonation of the star. I found them only to suffer from too much conscience. Told the audience who I was at the end of my turn. I received my two weeks' notice after the audience finished applauding me.

Meeting George Jessel on Broadway and listening to him tell me that he couldn't get started with his act. He did it for me right on Broadway and then complained that the managers didn't like it. I told him it was great. And the audiences think so now, for George is finding that his best material today. He was just 10 years ahead of himself.

Larry Hart's father, a coal dealer, making an appointment for me to hear his son's songs. I offered him $150 to write some material for me and he called in Herb Fields and Morrie Ryskind to help him out. Sending Ryskind out for cigarettes, only to learn that he didn't have the necessary 15 cents. And later having Ryskind ask me for $7500 advance before he'd do a musical version of "First Is Last" for me.

Signing a five-year contract with the Shuberts in 1921. About $250,000 was at stake on that deal. My first Winter Garden show, "Cinderella on Broadway," and Jake Shubert insisting that I mustn't take any encores. Opening night and on the stage just before the $60,000 "Jewel" finale. Walking off at the end of my specialty and up to my dressing room with the audience applauding all through the finale. Did J. J. burn?

Battling for five years with the Shuberts and being exiled into one-night stand shows. The brothers tried their best to break my contract. When the contract was over I told them how they could have broken it. They had my exclusive services and I was making Victor records.

Lending $300 to George White so he could pay his hotel bill. It was three weeks before "Scandals" opened.

Writing "Angel Child" with Benny Davis while walking from 59th st. to 48th st., and then strolling into Whitmark's with the song. Strolling out a few minutes later with $2500 advance royalties.

At parties 10 years ago with Harry Richman. He was selling dresses then and he had an apartment over Murray's on 42d, where the Flea Circus is now. He stayed up all night so that he could see the buyers early in the morning.

Opening night of "The Song Writer," my first attempt as a producer. Letting Arthur Caesar in my dressing room during intermission so that he wouldn't make any wise cracks. Staying up all night with Billy Gaxton, Larry Hart and Caesar until four in the morning to get the first review. It was a rave. Going to sleep happy, only to awake late that morning to learn that all the other papers had panned the show.

My first Palace show as a single in 1919. On second in the first show; fourth in the second show; opening intermission in the third show, and next to closing in the fourth show. And closing the show on the closing day.

Ben Bocks betting Sid Silvers, Arthur Caesar and myself a suit of clothes that we couldn't go to three night clubs a night for an entire week and not pay. We won. We would sell Silvers in the first place as a show writer; Caesar would do the publicity in the second night haunt and I was in the market for all the joints in New York for the week.

'MARCHING BY' SCORES IN SHUBERT PREMIERE

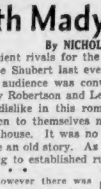
Leonard Ceeley and Guy Robertson Win Laurels With Mady Christians

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

Two ancient rivals for the hand of a blushing soprano returned to the Shubert last evening and fought it out in what most of the audience was convinced was first class Viennese melody. Guy Robertson and Leonard Ceeley were no strangers to personal dislike in this romantic combat called "Marching By"—not even to themselves nor to friendly observers in the front of the house. It was no novelty to the boys; in fact, it was more like an old story. As usual, Robertson was the victor and, according to established rule, a sadly battered one.

* * *

This time, however there was something to quarrel over in a strictly personal way, and much more for which to lift an honest voice. For the stirring score by Jean Gilbert and Harry Revel was something designed especially for the occasion. Incidentally, these perennial purveyals in romantic operetta discovered a new object of adoration, Miss Mady Christians, lately of the German film colony and now undoubtedly working westward to Hollywood by the way of Broadway and its alluring musical escapades. Miss Christians—a statuesque blonde—seemed worth fighting for every inch of the way, and you may be sure neither Mr. Robertson nor Mr. Ceeley omitted any of their best known musical comedy tricks in the night's encounter.



Mady Christians

* * *

Having disposed of the leading personalities in this saw musical drama of the late unpleasantness on the Russo-Austrian front, it may be as well, at once, to commend the Messrs. Shubert for discovering so excellent an entertainment and, having done that, for hauling it across the high seas. "Marching By" came to the Shubert as entertainment untried and, in some respects, still in the making. It will move out of that playhouse into the morass of Broadway in two weeks and, unless all the best posted signs fail, it will tip that village off its usually well ordered balance. Its story is melodramatic, very much on the order of frontier melodrama in war time; its music is inspiring from the start. If the scenes are martial, so are its tunes. And what a job was done with the ensembles.

In spite of its comedy, which, for the most part, seemed dragged in by the ears, the piece quickly set itself up as virile, red hot drama. There is nothing of frills and water about it; both men lifted mighty and full toned voices as they played and sang in vicious fashion. And the ladies? Well, as it so often happens in operetta, they could act and sing with equal facility on either side of the battle lines. But there was a full measure of comedy to relieve the strain upon Mr. Robertson. Mr. Ceeley and Miss Christians. For example, you had his somewhat complex dialect of Solly Ward to keep your mind off the darker deeds of the raiding Russians; also there may be mentioned Ethel Norris and Donald Burr, who jointly brought some rather startling dance numbers right into the direct line of fire.

* * *

Musical drama, and even drama without tunes, which has managed to get within the 12-mile limit, usually gives indication of being cast from the same mold. This is mentioned causally because "Marching By" struts up the Rialto on its own pair of feet. It may be scorching melodrama, full of corpositty and parade, but it fairly seethes with novelty; its melodies may vary in tempo and form from Sousa to Romberg, but tney keep you awake and incite you to cheers which lately have not been heard in even our best conducted temples of amusement. "Marching By" is an emphatic acquisition to the drama season.

Manager Brennan Has Auto Service at State

As the means of providing a convenience for those patrons who go to Loew's State theater in autos, Manager Joseph F. Brennan has inaugurated an auto service and discount. This service enables one to drive his car in a garage near the theater, or have a uniformed attendant store it until after the performance. The service carries with it a liberal discount and is the first of its kind introduced by any of the large theaters in Boston.

MUSIC IS HIS SPECIALTY

Series Opened by Orchestra

By MOSES SMITH

The Boston Symphony Orchestra, led by Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, opened its Monday night series of concerts before an audience which, to the casual eye, seemed to fill every seat. Dr. Koussevitzky was cordially greeted by this audience, which found several opportunities during the performance to applaud conductor and orchestra.

Most of the men was signally brilliant in a program which was an exact duplicate of the opening concert of the regular series, several weeks ago—Mahler's Ninth Symphony, then heard for the first time in America; Wagner's "Siegfried Idyl," and his Overture to "Tannhauser."

The interest of the seasoned concert attendant centered naturally in the second hearing of the Symphony. For the most part previous impressions were confirmed. The second movement and, even more, the third are solidly constructed on interesting musical material. The first and last movements, which seemed to this writer unduly long on first acquaintance, sounded more logical last night. They still taxed the attentive ear, if only because of their duration, but the ingenious counterpoint was now clearer. On the whole one is even more tempted to call the work a masterpiece.

Mahler's music has been slow in making its way here, and in America generally. Thanks to Dr. Koussevitzky we have become familiar with two of his greatest compositions—this ninth symphony and the glowing "Lied von der Erde." These two works alone place Mahler in the class of the great in music, and ought to insure our hearing more of his music.

Strong Plot in Fine Arts Film

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"Le Mystere de la Chambre Jaune," featured on the Fine Arts screen, is a mystery thriller expertly concocted, and finely filmed. Ably acted, it holds the interest. Its direction is deft, so that the cameras are used generously to convey thought, with resultant success in intriguing the imagination and exciting the beholder.

The plot is made simple despite its intricacies. A girl is found wounded, and her fiance is suspected. Evidence, as is usual in movies where the scenarist must pile up the damning facts, is against him. Thus the matter stands when a Parisian reporter starts sleuthing on his own hook.

He rattles the skeletons in the heroine's closet, revealing that she was a secret bride years before. That her husband had been a notorious crook whom she had believed dead. But on the very night her new engagement is announced she learns he is alive.

There's a "clock" in what happens after that.

ALICE BRADY'S EX-HUSBAND IS GIVEN FILM JOB

'Jimmie' Crane Added to Cast of 'Two Kinds of Women' by Paramount

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, Nov. 10—Handsome "Jimmie" Crane is in Hollywood. Furthermore, he has found himself a job at Paramount playing one of the leading roles in "Two Kinds of Women."

Louella O. Parsons

In his youth, Mr. Crane, son of Dr. Frank Crane, eminent clergyman and writer, occupied considerable space in the newspapers. He eloped with Alice Brady, talented daughter of W. A. Brady. Unfortunately the marriage did not turn out to be a success. A divorce followed with the custody of their son being given to Miss Brady.

Today Alice is one of the finest actresses on the American stage. Her performance in "Mourning Becomes Electra" has been commented on by critics as one of the finest portrayals on the American stage.

"Two Kinds of Women" features Vivienne Osborne and Arthur Pierson, the latter a newcomer to the screen.

The chances are Lil Dagover will not return to Hollywood. She is leaving for Germany to accept a stage engagement and it's whispered that in Germany she will remain. She hasn't so much as seen Hollywood Boulevard since she came to town. She has been working day and night to finish her picture in fact she has become known as the "Prisoner of Hollywood" so closely has she stayed on the First National lot.

Just a line or two. Walter Futter who has made a niche for himself in the picture business by producing "Curiosities" is sending two cameramen for three months to 15 key cities. Mr. Futter has been associated with John Medbury in his burlesque travelogue stunts which have gone over very well in the theatres. The cameramen will bring back oddities to be used on the screen.

I talked with Mary Pickford over the long distance telephone. Mary has not yet let Douglas Fairbanks go alone to Siberia with Lewis Milestone and the rest of the people who plan to make travelogue pictures. Mary will be back in Hollywood within 10 days. She has just sold the rights to "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" to Winfield Sheehan for Janet Gaynor.

I am afraid I cannot announce with as much joy as I should that Warner Brothers have bought "A Church Mouse," the play in which Ruth Gordon and Bert Lytell are appearing in New York. I wanted that play for Marion Davies. I couldn't see anyone else in the part that Ruth Gordon created on the stage. Everyone who saw Ruth Gordon shared my idea that it was a typical Davies role. And what Marion could do in that part! Well, anyway, Warners have purchased it and Roy Del Ruth is to direct.

Cantor Movie at Bowdoin

The second feature is "Parisian Love," a picture of adventure and romance featuring Evelyn Brent, Conrad Nagel, Charles Rickford, Roland Young and William Farnum.

Maude Adams in Colonial Cast

For the week's engagement of Maude Adams and Otis Skinner in Shakespeare's comedy, "The Merchant of Venice," opening at the Colonial, Nov. 23, an entirely new acting version of the drama will be seen. This new version has been prepared by Miss Adams especially to bring out the brilliant comedy element of the play, as well as to accelerate its action and its changes of scene, on a modern stage.

Special music has also been arranged for this production by Theodore Zarkevich and Harold Morris, with particular regard to the colorful Italian background of the play. Mr. Skinner will be the Shylock of the production, a character which he has portrayed many times before with great success, and Miss Adams will play Portia, a part which she has never performed before. The engagement of these noted players at the Colonial is part of a special tour under Erlanger Productions, Inc.

Looking Ahead

"Touchdown" on Bill For Met Midnight Show

The Metropolitan will present "Touchdown" and Duke Ellington's orchestra in a midnight show tonight. "Touchdown," as its name indicates, is a football picture, and of unusual excellence, featuring Richard Arlen, Charles Starrett and J. Farrell MacDonald.

Binder, Sacks at Howard

It is "Old Home Week" at the Howard where Fred Binder and Mike Sacks are dividing the honors of the day. They are the star comedians of Columbia burlesque and are top favorites in this city. These funsters have surrounded themselves by a bevy of clever girls who also delight in songs and dances. Alice Kennedy, Pearl Kay, Anna Smith and Babe Tobin are stars. Other favorites are George Brown, Bob Ford and Walter Marion.

In addition the management provides a good vaudeville and picture bill. The Six American Reiferds have a fine acrobatic feature. The Three Latinos have a musical treat. Lester Irving Trio have a good specialty act. The pictures are "Big Money" and "A Woman of Experience."

There will be a midnight show tonight to usher in Armistice Day. Tomorrow there will be three shows, at 1.00, 4.30 and 8 p. m. The usual midnight show will take place Friday.

Gotham Show Scolay Hit

Gotham's Bohemia is brought to Boston in the form of "The Greenwich Village Back Cat Night Club Revue," now on the stage at the Scollay. The unit has music, dancing, hearty laughter, gay girls and beautiful settings. There are even gigolos in the background to lend color to this show.

The revue is built around Alan Reno and his Ritzmore orchestra. The Four Aalbu Sisters are talented dancers, singers and musicians. In their act is Bob Carter, who does well with ordinary dance steps, but is a riot when it comes to his three-legged dance. The George Andree Foursome gaines in acrobatic stunts. At Rome and Lou Gaul, billed as "When Extremes Meet," certainly picked the proper phrasing. Julia Gerrity, "The Village's Greatest Songster," is a queer of the Kate Smith type and Ole Olyn Landick, as a female impersonator, doing a snappy monologue, is superb. Johnny Kaven is "The Village Step-Boy."

The 16 Greenwich Artist Models offer pleasing routines presented with such speed and precision as to be a credit to the production ability of Manager E. A. Vinson and Eddie Court.

EUROPE TO JOIN ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCES

London, Nov. 10 (AP)—England's post-war head-ache is 13 years old tomorrow.

Sedatives administered by Statesmen-Medicos after confering at Geneva, Locarno and London have, it is widely agreed, eased the ache somewhat, but on the whole it goes on, its throbbing undiminished.

VARIOUS VIEWS ON WAY

Many consider the ache is merely one of the "morning after" variety and that there will be a definite turn for the better next year, with some improvement in the unemployment situation being shown, perhaps, shortly after Armistice Day.

In Paris and London it will be a day of solemn remembrance for the sons and daughters who were left on the battlefields of Flanders. Berlin, still bitter, will mark it with wrathful polemic and denial of the "war guilt lie" in the treaty of Versailles.

Vienna's attitude will be one of silence, denoting contempt. In Bucharest church bells will toll.

FIESTAS IN ITALY

Italy prayed for its soldier dead on Nov. 4, but as tomorrow happens to be the 52d birthday anniversary of King Victor Emanuel III, special observances will be held with fiestas and music-making.

In Brussels a blue flame will be re-kindled at the tomb of the unknown soldier and wreaths will be placed upon the graves of Belgian soldier dead.

CHARITY DRIVE NETS $461,093

At a dinner meeting of campaign officers and team captains of the Associated Jewish Philanthropies drive last night it was announced that contributions now total $461,093.

Mrs. Hyman Fretman, chairman of the women's division, reported 3385 contributions received in a house-to-house canvass in Brookline, Brighton, Allston, Roslindale, Dorchester, Mattapan, Roxbury and Jamaica Plain.

Arthur C. Stern, chairman of team organization, announced that the following teams were already "over the top": Advertising and newspapers, $6186, Gabriel M. Stern, captain; amusements, $11,-943, Philip Smith, captain; industrial bankers, $1982, Joshua B. Lipkin, captain; paper, $3899, Samuel L. Ginsburg, captain; printing, $4048, Barnard J. Lewis, captain; toys, $1520, Lloyd Tarlin, captain.

SALES BOOM FOR BENEFIT SHOWS

Among those to respond to the appeal of the National Motion Picture Industries in the drive for funds for Boston unemployed is Frank M. Archer, Jr., vice-president of the Moxie Co. of America.

Archer purchased a block of 1000 tickets for the midnight show at one of the 66 Boston theaters on Friday, Nov. 20, from Mrs. Edwin Mitchell Prellwitz, Newton society.

Individuals, women's clubs, fraternal organizations and other groups have responded to the committee's appeal.

A BOOST FOR THE IDLE

PARENTS FACE NEW CHARGES

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)—Cruelty toward two children instead of one may be charged to Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Riley, already arrested for locking 13-year-old Edith in a closet for four years.

Francis, who indirectly won release for his sister, has been taken temporarily from his father and stepmother.

Malcolm Annadale, maternal uncle of the children, expects charges in connection with treatment of 15-year-old Francis also to be laid before the grand jury. The uncle has asked for custody of both children. But Judge Kathryn Sellers has postponed decision until tomorrow.

Meantime she turned the boy over to the board of public welfare.

"Cancer Specialist" Held in Providence

Providence, R. I., Nov. 10—Arthur A. Smith, 60, who declared he had studied two years at Harvard Medical School and had cured cancer on himself, last night faced a charge of practicing medicine without a license.

Smith had an office in Pine st. with a shingle that read, "Dr. Smith, Cancer Specialist." He admitted he had no doctor's certificate; but declared he had tried his cure only on himself.

Thief Takes Bull Montana's Trousers

Los Angeles, Nov. 10—A thief ransacked the apartment of Bull Montana, film actor, and escaped with three pairs of trousers and a few other belongings.

The movie bad man was absent, which gave the thief ample time to select from Montana's wardrobe a couple of dozen red and purple ties, a dozen socks and a new handbag.

porter asker her if she would ever like to return to her home.

With fright in her eyes she instantly shook her head negatively, and murmured.

This murmur, made either negatively or affirmatively as the case might warrant, was the only response she would make to questions, with one or two exceptions.

Asked if she was happy, she made no reply. Asked if she would like to see her father, no reply. Asked what she thought of her stepmother and whether she would forgive her, no reply. Asked by the nurse if she had been told not to speak; only since. But she responded without hesitation when asked if she would would like to leave the hospital and return home

ONLY ONE REQUEST

Asked what she would like to do most, she said, in a clear, forceful voice, "Go out." She never turned her head, never flicked an eyelash. She might have been a ventriloquist's dummy for all the emotion she showed.

She is surrounded by dolls and toys, but pays little attention to them. She eats ravenously. Responds to the nurses' questions by nodding or shaking her head.

GRANDMOTHER WAITING

The father and step-mother are being held for the grand jury on bond of $2500 each. Francis Riley, the girl's 15-year-old brother who braved the step-mother's wrath to tell relatives of the ill treatment of his sister, has been taken from home pending a hearing of the case.

Her grandmother's arms and home were opened today to the girl, as soon as she recovers.

He is afraid to return to his father and stepmother. Judge Kathryn Sellers in juvenile court was asked today to adjudge the children destitute of a suitable home and award their custody to their maternal grandmother.

A full hearing of the case is scheduled tomorrow when the grand jury will also investigate the charges against the children's father, Harry Riley, and their stepmother, Mrs. Elsie Riley, who are accused of keeping the little girl locked up. Both are under $250 bond set last Saturday at a preliminary hearing.

Mrs. Anna Annadale, the grandmother, is eager to receive both the children. She said today that both lived with her the first four years after their mother died in 1919, adding:

"Edith was a perfectly normal child mentally and physically when she left me. When their father married again he took custody of the children. His wife didn't want them but she took them for spite."

CAPE COD SURVEY SHOWS PLIGHT OF PROTESTANT CHURCHES IN U. S.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

A RECENT AUTHORITATIVE STATEMENT concerning the condition of the Protestant churches on Cape Cod is worth serious attention. Although the statement comes neither as a surprise nor as a shock to anyone familiar with the conditions in the Protestant church in the United States, nevertheless, it is specific enough to make vivid a condition which we are only too inclined to take for granted.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

At a rural conference of the Baptist church on Cape Cod the following figures were made public: There are 81 Protestant churches on Cape Cod. These 81 churches belong to 12 denominations. Of these churches some 63 have an average membership of 57.

It is calculated that it takes a population of at least 1000 to support a church, yielding about 250 members per congregation. Obviously, 57 members cannot support a church. If half of these churches were to burn down, said the statistician, they would not be replaced. Many of them are kept alive, paradoxically, by the grave-yards at the door. People want to be buried among their kinsfolk and from their ancestral church. That is all it amounts to.

Split Into Many Parts

Every Protestant is familiar with the small towns and the small cities in which are to be found at least one and in some cases two churches of all the principal denominations. There will be perhaps one fashionable and well-attended meeting house. The remainder will be dragging along with diminishing congregations, badly-paid and, therefore, second-rate ministers, a preponderance of women in active work, a poor minority of men, and a dwindling group of young people.

Even in a large city you will find usually that a few Protestant churches, which are lucky enough, or intelligent enough, to have first-rate preachers in the pulpits, are prospering. The rest are usually in difficulties. And this is not merely a local condition. It obtains everywhere in the United States.

The World Almanac lists some 20 Protestant denominations that are important enough to have national headquarters. Of the chief denominations there are five branches of Baptists, seven branches of Methodists, four branches of Presbyterians, two of Evangelicals, two of Lutherans, two of the Reformed Church, and one each of Congregationalists, Unitarians and Universalists. There must be another dozen of separatist sects important enough to be listed, and heaven knows how many small eccentric bodies which have spit off from this, that, and the other main body. Not only is Protestantism almost hopelessly divided, but the separate denominations have found it impossible to reconcile their own warring branches into one strong central body.

The nearest approach to unity that Protestantism has reached is the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, which represents in matters of common concern some 29 Protestant denominations.

United in Canada

Yet last spring when some of the denominations were holding their annual synods or convocations, every newspaper reader must have noticed how many of these synods disagreed violently among themselves on matters of policy and expediency which had been ruled upon by the Federal Council of Churches.

Protestantism is naturally schismatic in its philosophy. This tendency towards schism, in spite of all efforts toward unity, is obviously growing and not decreasing. Its logical ending is not merely the multiplication of small, eccentric, and fanatical sects outside the chief denominations, but such conditions as obtain on our own Cape Cod—where 81 churches of 12 denominations seem able to muster not more than 57 members apiece.

Has Protestantism ever succeeded in remedying this condition? Not in the United States, unfortunately, but in Canada, yes. In 1925 a long and difficult process of unification was brought to a promising conclusion with the organization of The United Church of Canada. There united in one body some 9000 separate congregations of Methodists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists. This means, without question, that in the rural portions of Canada at least, Protestantism is more unified, stronger, and influential than it can possibly be under the conditions of progressive disintegration which still obtain among us.

This disintegration is all the more tragic because it is so unnecessary. The differences in relatively minor matters of belief and church organization, which seemed so important half a century ago, seem very unimportant today to the younger generation of Protestants and, particularly, to the younger generation of their ministers.

Their Differences Are Unimportant

I am inclined to believe that here in the east, at any rate, the younger Protestant clergy and most of the younger laymen and laywomen hold beliefs which are essentially no different from the beliefs of the Unitarians, one of the least powerful of the denominations, so far as numbers are concerned.

Statisticians have estimated that, although there are at least some 80 millions of Americans with Protestant sympathies, the chief denominations can muster a membership of only some 30 millions. Why this is so can only be conjectured. But I have no doubt that to a great extent this condition is the result of the long-continued inability of the Protestants to drop their senseless and unnecessary differences in minor matters of faith and of ecclesiastical organization.

Five fingers wagging loosely in the air can do nothing. Five fingers welded together into a fist can do a great deal. The Catholic Church in America has a membership of some 20 millions—welded into a unit. In that respect the Catholic Church is a far more effective and secure organization than the disintegrated, schismatic, anarchical philosophy we call, loosely, Protestantism.

Most of the differences that separate the Protestant denominations in America are trivial, unimportant, technical, based upon theological minutiae, sectional misunderstandings, historical inheritances, nonsensical disputes. So long as they exist, our Protestantism is hamstrung and ineffective. Only with their abolition will Protestantism attain the power to which its members entitle it.

ELY MESSAGE ON AUTOS TODAY

Governor Ely will send a special message to the Legislature today on compulsory automobile insurance.

While the chief executive had his message ready late yesterday, its contents were being closely guarded.

The Governor indicated several days ago that he would take this action whenever it became apparent that his original recommendation were not going to be enacted into law.

That time arrived with the decisive defeat in the senate of the Parkman deductible measure, the only bill, according to Insurance Commissioner Merton L. Brown that would justify retaining 1931 rates for 1932.

In a cleanup move, the Senate today was expected to follow up its rejection of the rating board bill by defeating the bill calling for the elimination of the guest rider from the benefit of the act. Enough members are opposed to this measure to prevent its passage, it is understood.

PLANS TO ALTER EXPERIENCE GRADING

Oral Examinations Also to Be Made Different in Deciding Fitness of Applicants

Drastic changes in state Civil Service examinations and the system of marking will be made by Paul E. Tierney, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, if his fellow commissioners accept recommendations which he will soon make.

This was revealed by Commr. Tierney today in an exclusive interview with the Boston Evening American.

Chief among his changes will be alteration of the oral examination which, he declared, has come to be primarily a personality test instead of a test of fitness.

Another important change will be in the grading for "experience," which in the examination for motor vehicle inspector, the results of which were recently announced, caused 2568 out of 3093 applicants to fail.

DEFECTS BROUGHT OUT

The system which Commissioner Tierney lans to change is one which developed over a long period of years, prior to his appointment last February.

Its defects were made apparent by present business conditions which brought out thousands of applicants for civil service positions, where hundreds formerly applied.

The examinations for motor vehicle inspector were drawn up prior to his taking office and under the law could not be changed. Out of 4000 applicants originally, 3093 of whom took the examination, only 27 passed.

"The results of the motor vehicle examiners examination prove conclusively to me that something is radically wrong in the system that was used," said Commissioner Tierney.

GRADING KEY WRONG

"The fact that but 27 out of 3093 passed shows to me beyond a doubt that the method of marking was unscientific and the further fact that 2568 out of the 3093 failed in 'experience,' is convincing evidence of the exactness of the grading system.

"A certain grading key was used which was in my opinion inherently fallacious. This key was too exacting in its scope, nor did it cover the various fields of endeavor sufficiently to be fair in its application.

"For example, it in no way covered a situation to apply to men who had actually been employed in the registry for seven, eight and eleven years, respectively. These men failed to receive a passing mark in experience.

"I could cite hundreds of instances of men who were failed because of the experience mark, who in my judgment are eminently qualified both by experience and education to fill the position of motor examiner."

Commissioner Tierney further recommends a general average of 70 per cent in all subjects instead of requiring the mark in each branch of the examination.

BROAD AND FAIR

"I propose while I am Civil Service commissioner to recommend a change in the requirements of certain important examinations with a view that they shall not be restricted or confined to any particular class, group or individuals, but rather that they shall be broad and fair, in order that all classes and individuals may receive consideration and be given open competition in any examination they are qualified to take.

"I propose further that examinations shall be corrected on a general average basis, and that

FIGHTING FOR HER MILLIONS

"UNDUE INFLUENCE"

Grant Pierce of Providence, stepson of Mrs. Davis' first husband's brother, received the largest bequest under her will, and this part of the will Mrs. Frechette is attempting to break on the grounds that Pierce used undue influence while he was acting as the drowning victim's legal counsellor. RECOUNTS OF 5 WARDS BEGUN

Recounts in the City Council elections in Wards 12, 14, 17, 20 and 21 began at 9 a. m. today in the Election Commission offices in City Hall.

Recounts were petitioned by City Councillor Herman L. Bush, defeated in Ward 12 Roxbury, by Daniel M. Brackman by 78 votes; Charles Kapian who placed third in Ward 14, Dorchester Councillor Robert G. Wilson, Jr., defeated in Ward 17, Dorchester, by Thomas Burke; Clayton Havey, defeated by Councillor Joseph P. Cox in Ward 20, West Roxbury, and James E. Agnew, defeated by Councillor James Hein in Ward 21, Allston.

Fifteen men were employed to count and tabulate votes at five tables, under the supervision of Peter F. Tague, chairman of the Election Commission.

Chairman Tague announced that the recount would not be completed until Thursday.

SEVEN INJURED IN EVERETT

A geyser of water was cascaded through Everett streets late last night when two automobiles crashed at Hancock st. and Cleveland ave. one of them overturning, the other careening into the hydrant. Six autoists and a fireman were injured.

Joseph R. Dumas of 29 Fairmont st., Everett, operator of one auto had five passengers from a whist party at St. Joseph's Church. The other auto was operated by Mark Walker of 56 Central ave., Everett.

As firemen worked frantically to extricate the passengers, a heavy door broke from its hinges and toppled onto Howard Murray, boxman attached to Engine 3. He was taken to Whidden Memorial Hospital, where the other injured persons were also treated.

Those treated were Mrs. Annie May, 60, of 82 James st., Malden; Mrs. Josephine Murray of 45 Maple wood st., Malden; Mrs. Nellie Shea of 27 Philips st., Everett; Arthur Shea of 45 Maplewood st., Malden; Dumas and Mrs. Lillian Philipsof 60 Dell ave., Melrose, were taken to the Maplewood Hospital, Malden.

HOOD IS SOUGHT FOR SWINDLING N. H. WOMEN

Clairvoyant's Name Is Also Linked With the Old Boston Blackmail Ring

William H. Hood, clairvoyant swindler under arrest in Long Beach, Cal., and fighting extradition to Massachusetts, is wanted in New Hampshire for theft from several women, investigation disclosed today.

Hood was linked in investigations with the old Boston blackmail ring yesterday. He is now held in connection with his alleged larceny of $43,000 from Mrs. Lillian A. Field of Brookline, is wanted in Franklin, Newport and Claremont, N. H., according to Inspector John F. Mitchell of Atty.-Gen. Warner's office.

The New Hampshire larcenies occurred during 1928 and 1929 and Asst. Distr. Atty. Louis H. Sawyer is communicating with authorities of that State with regard to their present wishes in the case.

KNOWN THEN AS LAVOIE

Inspector Mitchell learned that Hood was arrested in Orange for the larceny of $777 from Mrs. Kate Franklin of Claremont, but the records fail to show any disposition of the case.

At the time, Hood was known as Napoleon Lavoie and was alleged to have been a member of a group of mediums who toured New Hampshire preying upon gullible women. In the group was such famous swindlers as "Sir" Thomas Mowatt, alias Harry H. Waite, who figured in the removal proceedings against former Dist.-Atty. Nathan A. Tufts in Middlesex County.

FIGHTS EXTRADITION

Chief John S. Yaney, of Long Beach, today, notified Inspector Mitchell that Hood has engaged a Long Beach attorney to resist the extradition proceedings seeking Hood's return for trial.

Mrs. Field has identified a recent photograph of Hood.

Mrs. Field was closeted with Warden and Dist.-Atty. Hugh A. Cregg of Essex County for several hours preparing affidavits, required before requisitions papers can be submitted to the Governor of California. There will be a further conference today.

$20,000 FIRE IN LEATHER AREA

One fireman was overcome by smoke, loss of $20,000 was caused and the entire leather district was menaced for a time, when fire swept the four-story brick building at 25 South st. early today.

Lieut. John Murphy of Engine Co. 72 was overcome by smoke and was rushed to the Haymarket Relief Station. Lieut. Murphy was fighting the flames from a ladder and barely managed to reach the ground before he collapsed.

The fire broke out in a pile of leather, according to police, on the second floor of the building, which is occupied by the Ross Leather Co.

A passing automobilist sounded an alarm. The fire had a speedy start, and when the fire apparatus arrived smoke filled the entire building.

The blaze spread rapidly to every section of the building, and for a time it appeared that adjoining leather buildings would be ignited.

BOSTON MERCHANTS PUT THEIR SHOULDERS TO WOOL WEEK MOVEMENT

This is WOOL WEEK. Here are 12 men, connected with the several committees which planned New England's Wool Week movement that got under way yesterday morning. The path of the wool, from time of shearing, through the many processes to finished products in the storehouses of the wholesaler and thence to the counters of the retailer, and finally to the wearer and user, is well known to these men. Everything that is wool, they know, including the RED FLANNEL SHIRT, held by Felix Vorenberg, president of the Gilchrist Company. The red flannel shirt, subject of many a joke, is nevertheless an important factor in New England wearing apparel.

SHEARERS VIE ON COMMON

A sheep-shearing contest will take place at noon today on the baseball field of Boston Common.

The contest was arranged by the Wool Week committee to direct public attention to the importance of the wool trade to Boston.

To emphasize this fact, a flock of seven fine cheviot sheep from Maine are corralled in the course of the Boston & Maine station and another flock is corralled in Dewey sq. at the entrance to the South Station.

These sheep, with others, will be sheared at noon under the direction of Col. W. T. Johnson, who is in charge of the Rodeo Show at the Garden.

Just to see that no favorites are played, Mayor Curley will start the contest and award the prizes.

The judges will include Col. Johnson, John Birdsong, William P. Feiger, president of the Boston Wool Trade Association; Daniel Bloomfield, manager of the Retail Trade Board, Boston Chamber of Commerce, and Harry J. Blake of Blake & Kendall, wool merchants

2-Week Courtship Related to Court

Wesley L. Barrus of 171 Sycamore st., Roslindale, suing his wife, Gertrude, of Milton, whom he married after a courtship of two weeks, testified before Judge Joseph R. McCoole yesterday that his wife was guilty of cruel and abusive treatment.

Barrus testified he met his wife when he was a member of the coast guard, while attached to the Gloucester station and that they were married in Hampton, N. H., in 1927.

The case is being contested by Mrs. Barrus. It was resumed today.

One Drink and Then Judge Says "$100"

After admitting that he had one drink the night of Oct. 10, when he was arrested for drunken driving, Harry E. Aronson, Boston jeweler, of Cummings st., Brighton, was fined $100 in Lynn court today. He appealed.

He was arrested on the Newburyport Turnpike in Saugus.

Dies After Wedding

Milan, Italy, Nov. 10 — Although fatally injured in a fall while entering the church for his wedding Signor Natale Belloni went through the ceremony and died a few minutes later.

What made him get ahead so fast?

PRIEST TELLS OF CANNIBALS

Voodooism and cannibalism is still a reality in the mountains of Haiti in the West Indies, Rev. Joseph J. Williams, S. J. told the Boston College Historical Society at University Heights last night.

"Despite the efforts of the government to rid the island of the evil, they are still practised in the mountain fastnesses," said Fr. Williams, who is the author of "Whisperings of the Caribbean."

STOCKTON IN STOCK POOL

Admission that he had a one per cent interest in the 100,000 share pool in Gillette stock, was made yesterday by Philip Stockton, president of the First National Bank of Boston and one of the Gillette Safety Razor Company directors, being sued for $21,000,000 damages by the minority stockholders.

Stockton said that when objection was made to the transaction later he rescinded only half of his one per cent of the pool stock, and under questioning as to the reason, he said that he was really only half owner of the shares which he bought and that his partner in the deal was T. Jefferson Coolidge, a neighbor of his in Manchester and a business associate in the financial district.

Coolidge, Stockton said, has not rescinded his share. Stockton admitted that Coolidge was a silent partner in the deal and that the account in the pool was carried in his (Stockton's) name.

Reunion Tomorrow in Brighton Church

A reunion of present and former members of the Oak Square M. E. church, Brighton, has been planned for tomorrow afternoon and evening. I WANT TO TALK TO EVERY WOMAN WHO BELIEVES IN LOVE...

YOU'LL never know my name. You'll never see my face. But I am a woman. If you are a woman, too—if you believe in love—you'll want to hear my story. Listen!

Suppose you were, as I was, a slip of a girl—young, eager, full of dreams. Then, one mad night, you are blighted—wronged and robbed of everything that a woman holds precious and sacred. Shame haunts your every waking moment. Your days are tortured by the relentless shadow of that disgrace. Bitterly, wildly, you cry against the fate that dealt so heartless a blow. When suddenly—love, true love is offered you.

A gentle, trusting, respected man—a physician—asks you to be his wife. Could you—a tainted soul—accept? Could you blot out the memory of that terrible girlhood experience? And he—would he still desire you—if he knew? Would that one sin damn you forever or could love wipe out the wrong and bring you happiness?

I found the answer, and the surprising lesson it teaches will stir your deepest emotions. Be sure to read it! My complete story—"Could Any Woman Forgive This Sin"—appears in the December issue of True Story Magazine.

Throbbing dramas from life

You'll find in this same issue of True Story many more pulsating true stories. The strange predicament of a frantic friend who was faced with the problem of meddling in the family life of another or allowing a physician's plot to mutilate a lovely girl. The stirring revelations of what happened to a mother who dared to dictate whom her son should love. The answer a minister hurled at his cold, hidebound congregation when the happiness of the woman he adored was at stake. These are a few of the many absorbing stories waiting for you in December True Story.

And every word of these stories is true—every word has lived! Here, in these exciting pages, life is stripped—tortured souls lay bare their mistakes, their temptations, their mis-steps and hard-won victories—that other troubled hearts may take counsel and find new courage and guidance for their own life struggles.

PARADES ARE TO FEATURE ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCES

LOCAL VETS TO MARCH IN 4 DIVISIONS

Banquets and Memorial Exercises Are Planned in All Parts of the State

Armistice Day, in Boston and vicinity, will be celebrated tomorrow with the most elaborate programs in years, with parades, memorial exercises, luncheons, dinners and military balls featuring the observance.

In four divisions, with many bands and stands of colors, the Suffolk county posts of the American Legion will parade through downtown Boston in the morning, starting at Arlington and Beacon sts. at 9:30 and ending at the Common in time for the moment of silence at 11 o'clock.

EXERCISES AT COMMON

Exercises at the Parkman Bandstand which will follow the silent tribute will include addresses by national, state and city officials and military and religious leaders.

Mayor Curley will entertain the speakers at lunch at the Ritz Carlton at 1 o'clock, and in the evening the Veterans of Foreign Wars will hold exercises in Symphony Hall with Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, as principal speaker.

BANQUETS AT NIGHT

The British Officers' Club and the Republican Women's Club will give dinners in the evening, and the British Veterans' Association and the Jewish War Veterans and Auxiliary will hold dances.

Almost every community in Greater Boston will celebrate the day with parades, memorial services and the annual balls of the veterans' associations.

CAMPBELL GETS BURKE'S BERTH

Former Assistant Announces Intention of Checking Extravagance

Perfection of present accomplishments in the Boston school system, rather than experiment with innovations, will be the policy of Patrick T. Campbell, former assistant superintendent, appointed last night to fill the post of the late Supt. Jeremiah F. Burke.

In a statement, Supt Campbell said the time had come to check waste and cut expenses without lessening efficiency.

EDUCATED IN BOSTON

He added that innovations would undoubtedly bring increased expenses which would result only in greater burdens for the taxpayers.

Campbell, a Boston schoolboy and Harvard graduate, was chosen unanimously to fill the post of the late Dr. Burke at a special school committee meeting last night after the committee members cast a split ballot for the post.

Chairman Joseph Hurley, Dr. Joseph Lyons and William A. Reilly first voted for Campbell while Mrs. Elizabeth Pigeon and Francis Gray cast their ballots for Arthur Gould. When Gray learned that Campbell had been elected, he moved the election be made unanimous.

The committee also elected Edward J. Muldoon assistant superintendent to fill the vacancy caused by Campbell's advancement to the head of the school system.

Campbell is known to thousands of alumni of the Latin school, where he was formerly headmaster.

TAUGHT AT MEDFORD

Born in Jersey City in April, 1871, the son of Thomas and Mary Campbell, Campbell came here a year after the death of his father and settled in East Boston.

He attended the old Adams school and later went to Boston Latin school and Harvard University, graduated from the latter in 1893 with honors. His schooling was not easy, however, and he was forced to labor as a janitor at the Adams and Webster schools in East Boston to obtain money to pay his way.

After graduation he taught at Medford high school for four years, and was then appointed junior master at Boston Latin school. He remained there with gradual advancement until he was made headmaster in 1920. In September, 1923, he was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Asst. Supt. of Schools Augustine Rafter.

Campbell has two children, a son, Thomas, who teaches at Roxbury Memorial high school for boys, and a daughter, Edith, who is doing graduate work at Smith College.

PARISH PLAY TO AID NEEDY

"The Three Pegs," a three-act comedy, will be presented by the Young Women's Guild of the First Methodist Church, Elm and Newbern sts., Jamaica Plain, this evening at 8 o'clock. The proceeds will be given to the guild fund for the poor and needy of the parish.

The characters in the play will be Mrs H. G. Hewer, Mrs. Bruce Fett, Mrs C. J. Hedges, Miss Bertha Fulmer, Mrs. H. M. Kline, Mrs. George Ruddell, Mrs. Charles Raymond, Mrs. Kenneth Williams and Mrs. Peter Mason.

The production will be given under the direction of Mrs. Harry C Boyd. The following committee will be in charge of other arrangements: Miss Alta Gould, tickets; Bruce Fleti, properties; Mrs. Carry Longfellow and Mrs. Ruth Guthrie, candies. The music will be under the direction of H. Louise Margot.

EX-POLICEMAN HELD IN THEFT

He was Edward Sloane of Malden st., Charlestown, formerly attached to the Milk st. station. He pleaded not guilty to the charges and was held in $1100 for a hearing next Monday.

Patrolman Lawrence T. McCarthy recognized the registration number of a car reported stolen, when he saw it on Bremen st., East Boston, last night. He arrested Sloane at the wheel.

"I intend to use a key system for the marking of experience which will be more exactly made throughout and more fair, and will more relatively approximate the different records based upon the experience of the applicants.

CONDITIONS CHANGED

"I will see to it that every portion of the examination of each individual is corrected with the greatest of care and accuracy, and the question of time will in no way interfere with that plan.

"I make these statements and suggestions with all due respect to my departed predecessors and with full knowledge and appreciation of the honorable service they rendered, the Commonwealth, but also with the thought in mind that the situation and existent circumstances today present a far different situation than when these systems were inaugurated.

"My predecessors are in no way to be charged with the expectation that over 4000 would make application for this position.

"I feel as though I would be remiss in my duties as a public official if I did not, after eight months of careful study and application, submit to the citizens of this Commonwealth my views and conclusions.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is sallow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should try Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

They start the bile and help overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c.

"You must speak wix my husband. I know so little of English."

Lily Pons, diminutive operatic sensation, shrugged her shoulders. August Mesritz, for seven years husband of the little star and still greatly in love with her, explained:

"My wife is so very busy she has little time to learn the language. All day long she travels on the trains—in the evening she gives her performance and then again the trains. In between times she designs her street and stage costumes and dashes to New York to have them made."

The coloratura soprano, who has taken by storm every city she has visited, is giving her second Boston concert at Symphony Hall tonight.

"My wife gave her first concert outside of New York in this city," said the star's husband, "and she calls it her lucky city."

Miss Pons, every inch of her radiating the magnetic personality that has made her such a favorite, was clad in simple lounging pajamas of orange and gold. She watched her husband eagerly as he spoke, and made suggestions in French which he quickly interpreted.

"Our manager makes all the arrangements for us," said Mesritz. "We sometimes do not know where we are going next."

Lily Pons added:

"We are like the parcel post—put on to tag and away we go."

Miss Pons does not travel with a maid on short concert tours.

"I am her maid," said her adoring husband.

The Southern Club of Boston holds its annual Armistice Day dinner tomorrow night, at the Commonwealth Country Club, Chestnut Hill.

SKILLED HELP FOR ODD JOBS

—Coupon on Page 12

Housewives—home-makers, attention!

For the few dollars it will cost you are you willing to help the needy and also help get your houses, attics, cellars, and the surroundings, in shape for Thanksgiving and the whole winter?

The Odd Jobs Service of the Boston Evening American, in cooperation with the Municipal Employment Bureau, offers you skilled help for any odd job you can think of—if you only will give the matter a few minutes' thought.

That weekend cold snap, although it didn't last, drove home to destitute families, the heads of which are out of work, the real meaning of what is coming. Now is the time that a little practical help, thought translated into action will not only aid them in a material way, but will also encourage them to face the severe test to come.

Think of the many ways in which you can brighten your home by refurnishing the walls with paint or redecorating your house with new carpentry. There are many things a handy man could do in your home.

Don't hesitate to give him a few hours' or a few days' employment. Every little bit counts, and this is one case where both you and he will be gainers.

Cut out the coupon and mail it to 25 Church st., Boston, or call Liberty 8607, and your problem and theirs will be solved. Please do it now!

"Soaks clothes whiter," says this N. Quincy woman

"No more washboards for me! It's a waste of time and energy to scrub clothes—when you can get them whiter just by soaking them in Rinso suds. Now I don't even bother about boiling, clothes come so snowy. Colors look so nice and bright. I use Rinso's instant suds for dishes and all cleaning."

MRS. HILDA M. MILLER,
115 Hamilton Ave., N. Quincy, Mass.

Makers of 40 washers say: "Use Rinso!" Cup for cup, Rinso gives twice as much suds as lightweight, puffed-up soaps. Wonderful suds in washers, too; the makers of 40 washers recommend Rinso for safety and whiter washes.

Get the BIG package of Rinso. It's a great soap for washing clothes, dishes, floors, walls and for all cleaning.

TIPS FOR THE SIMPLE VIRGIN—HOW TO 'FEED THE BRUTE'

By HELEN ROWLAND

TELL HIM he wears "such smart cravats";
Tell him you LOVE his taste in hats;
Tell him his feet look neat in spats—
"Honey catches more flies than vinegar!"

Tell him his talk has a charming flow;
Tell him his eyes have a "wicked" glow;
Tell him his bald-spot doesn't show—
"Honey catches more flies than vinegar!"

Tell him there's "something about his smile"—
That "je ne sais quoi"—that Don Juan guile!
Tell him his clothes have "class and style"—
"Honey catches more flies than vinegar!"

Tell him his dancing-feet is light;
Tell him he's JUST the perfect height!
Tell him his judgment is ALWAYS right—
"Honey catches more flies than vinegar!"

Tell him his ear is "the swellest thing";
Tell him he walks with an athlete's swing;
Tell him you love to hear him SING!—
"Honey catches more flies than vinegar!"

Tell him his eyes are rather nice;
ASK for his priceless "good advice."
Soon it will be "old chaps and rice"—
"Honey catches more flies than vinegar!"

Tell him his jokes have a Winchell KICK;
Spread it on thin or pile it on thick
Applesauce NEVER makes them sick—
"Honey catches more flies than vinegar!"

The old-fashioned girl veiled her emotions in modesty or mystery but, when a modern girl sets her cap for a man, her designs are as easy to see through as cellophane.

What a woman never can understand is that there are times when a man simply MUST break loose and make a fool of himself.

Low Vitality Is Apt to Induce Pneumonia

By Dr. R. S. COPELAND.

THIS IS the time of the year when cases of pneumonia are all too common. It is a disease that through the last decade has stricken thousands and thousands of people, yet little progress has been made in its cure. This is particularly true of certain types.

When the disease is better understood and its prevention made possible, it will no longer be regarded as the "Captain of Death," that is the description given to pneumonia by Sir William Osler, one of the greatest physicians who ever lived.

Pneumonia is divided into "types," four types. More than half of all the cases are types of one and two. Type three is the most severe form, but fortunately only about 10 per cent of the cases belong to this group. Group four is the "miscellaneous group." About one-third of all cases of pneumonia fall into the last group and they are the most difficult to handle.

Too many persons permit themselves to get into such a rundown condition that they prepare the way for this disease. Lack of sleep, excessive fatigue, exposure to cold and dampness, lack of nourishing food—these are a few things that lower resistance and create a degree of lowered vitality that invites pneumonia.

Children should be guarded against chilling by undue exposure to severe cold and dampness. Children who are so exposed may suffer from pneumonia if they lack the necessary nourishment.

The disease is particularly common among the young and the aged. In these age groups, if the body is lacking in vitality from wrong feeding habits, undue exposure is extremely harmful. The body becomes susceptible to every infection. The germs that cause pneumonia thrive under these conditions.

Everyone should eat enough nourishing food to insure good health and strength. Sufficient sleep is of vital importance. Extreme fatigue is damaging to health, because it lowers the body resistance to disease.

Carelessness and neglect of the common cold may be followed by another kind of pneumonia. This is what the doctors call "cold pneumonia." It differs from the types I have mentioned, but it is an ailment that should be avoided.

Hints From the Beauty Box

ROUGE is cruel to a faded complexion; it shows up evidences of age. The older woman should use cheek tints of faint rose shades and apply them with discretion. The lipstick is kinder to her; she can indulge in that more freely than in cheek hair or dark pencilings along the lines of the eyelashes.

New hats aren't so good with hair done in a bun at the nape of the neck. Best to clip and curl, or roll up on a hidden barrette designed for the purpose.

Rhythmic dancing is not only an effective means of shaking fat cells from hips, tummy and thighs, but it makes for grace, slimness and poise.

BASHFUL GIRL

Lady With a Past

Venice Told That Guy Has Wife

"No. Purely in connection with my humble self."

"Oh. Well, I hope it's not too uncomfortable."

"So do I."

"Right."

Venice put down the receiver and glanced at her watch. Just time in get over to the Bankers Trust for mail before they close. She hurried out to the back entrance in the Rue St. Honore. Two letters from Nolly and one from Lola written on the Lacomia. Nolly's letters were postmarked a week apart. The operation must be over now. Venice eagerly opened the earlier one and read as she walked back toward the Rue Mont-Thabor.

August 11th.

"Darling Venice,

"The operation was a failure. At first I thought my heart would break, but the relief in being alive to tell the tale comforts me. And why should I grieve at being back where I was before? I had let my mind run riot at times though and had seen myself gaining at parties and in swimming in the summer and having lots of men attentive to me. But there, I might have missed the nice quietness Pongo gives me and perhaps he, the old dear, would have tripped me up at every turn for having him changed. Of course that's all pure bravado, Venice. I'm bitterly disappointed.

"Lola wrote some one at home who told mother about your marquis and the American who is always at your heels. I do think it's wonderful, but I knew titles would adore you.

"Do write me all about yourself —everything. Aren't you coming home soon? Your loving

"NOLLY."

Venice stumbled at a curb and reached. Poor Nolly, always to lead a dull, sequestered life. Back in her room at the Louis-La-Grand she opened the second letter. Nolly was engaged to Ernest Price!

How simply marvellous. I must cable her. Venice jumped out again, her mind singing with the happiness of Nolly.

"By Jove, Venice Muir. How are you?"

It was Lita Chase very chic in tomato-colored tweeds that accentuated the canary hair peeping from her tweed beret.

"Hello," cried Venice. "Come in the Ritz and keep me for a little cocktail."

"Won't I just!" She linked her arm in Venice's and when they found a table jammed in one corner.

"What a sensation you've caused," said Lita as soon as their cocktails were ordered. "Imagine Rane killing himself on account of you."

"He didn't. He was frightfully hard up, and his debts were growing unbearable."

"Are you fond of Guy Bryson?"

"Why," Venice asked, amused, "Because if you're not I want him."

"That's perfectly all right," said Venice. Lita talked of men as though they were new hats or cars.

"You are sporting. Is he divorced, do you know, or just separated?"

Venice sat quite still. Had she heard aright? Was he divorced or separated? He had a wife then. Or didn't Lita know what she was talking about?

"Oh, you do care then?" Lita misunderstood her silence.

"No, I don't," Venice managed. "I was just wondering about his wife. I never knew her. Don't they get along?" She felt as if some one else's voice was speaking out of her own mouth. Guy, the frank, the easy. He had been married all this time and never even mentioned it. This hurt, for she had enjoyed his friendship, and friendship is worthless without honesty.

That was that, then. Mrs. Coates' kindly warning. That explained the all things considered of Mrs. Coates at Rene's party.

"I suppose I shouldn't," Venice murmured sombrely. She was dejected. It was the old, shy Venice drinking a cocktail in the Ritz bar with a woman that made her gauche and uncomfortable.

"Don't be intricate," begged Lita.

Venice glanced at her watch. "I've got to hurry," she said in that flat, uninteresting manner of hers when gayer words evaded her.

Venice walked quickly back to the Louis-La-Grand. She felt very hurt with Guy and a bit angry. This was an element of cheating in their companionship which disgusted her.

Dining with Guy at the Cabaret she broke out abruptly. "Why didn't you tell me you were married?"

He stared at her.

"How odd. When did you discover that? It was on the very subject I had the uncomfortable thing to tell you."

"If I could have mentioned knowing your wife once in a while it would have been better."

"You're right. But you wouldn't have let me be your gigolo, Venice."

She thought a moment.

"Yes, I would have. I'd have let any one be my gigolo at that point."

They both laughed.

They shook and Venice acquiesced warmly. The hurt was gone and she realized that it was only the surprise of the thing that had rankled.

"What's your uncomfortable bit?" she asked.

"No!"

"Yes. And you're the cause."

"Guy, how dreadful!"

(Copyright, Harriet Henry.)

Ensemble in Gold and Ivory

SKETCHED IN PARIS

Molyneux has recently made this evening ensemble in gold and ivory brocaded lame for Jeanette MacDonald. The dress has a simple bodice, slightly bloused with a low rounding decolletage at both front and back. The skirt is slit up at the front and has a long narrow train. Sable colored plumage borders the sleeveless, straight-line jacket.

College Girls Opposed to Marriage! No Alarm Felt

By WINIFRED BLACK

That's the result of a questionaire sent out by a well-known school for girls in the East.

For goodness sake!

What are all these 749 girls going to do in the world that's as well worth doing as marrying and raising a family of boys and girls to carry on the work of the country?

What's it all about, anyhow, this eating and drinking, and sleeping and waking, and learning the square of the hypothenuse—if there isn't going to be anybody to go on?

Don't let's be hysterical about it, though.

Not a single thing.

I know one girl once who said that, and she really meant it, too. She meant it so hard that she frightened all the men away, and she died single—a disappointed, unhappy woman.

That girl had a sister, and the sister always said she hated men and couldn't bear the idea of marriage and wouldn't settle down and take care of children the rest of her life.

Sister had half a dozen men running after her from the time she was sixteen years old. She married at eighteen, was wido aged at twenty, married again at twenty-two and had her choice of half a dozen suitors the second time.

Those girls in that eastern college who do not intend to marry may think they mean what they say.

But they're really just following the old, old rule that made Eve run and hide behind the apple tree when she wished Adam would run after her.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, is not sticky nor greasy and does not rub off.

Fitting Out Kitchen of the Bride

By MARTHA LEE.

"WHAT DO I need to equip my kitchen for efficient housekeeping?" writes a bride-to-be from Weymouth, and similar questions have come from all parts of New England from time to time.

So today let's consider the essentials and a few of the non-essentials but handy "helpers" for the up-to-date kitchen.

KITCHEN EQUIPMENT

Coffee pot (preferably filtered), set of jars for spices, tea, coffee, etc.; five nested mixing bowls, six custard cups, grater, pastry blender, lemon squeezer, two measuring cups (1 glass, 1 aluminum), set of cookie cutters, muffin tins, two casseroles or baking dishes (1 qt. and 2 qt.), egg beater, pair of scissors, set of kitchen cutlery, two wooden mixing spoons, one corkscrew and bottle opener, can opener, chopping bowl or board and sharp knife, cake turner, bread board, tray, colander, rolling pin, potato ricer.

Flour sifter, bread box, cake box, ice pick, step stool, two wire strainers (3 in. and 6 in.), two sets measuring spoons, cake pan (10x10), cake pan (10x5), two layer cake pans (9 in.), two cookie sheets, two pie plates, (9 in.), roasting pan (15x10), large saucepan (6 to 10 qts.), doughnut cutter, two wire cake coolers, food chopper, roll of wax paper, two or three covered saucepans (2 to 4 qts.), funnel, salt, pepper and flour shaker potato masher, two frying pans, double boiler, large basting spoon, dishpan (12 qt.), vegetable brush, six dishcloths, wire dish rack, 12 dish towels and six pot holders.

Of course, to this list may be added items that do play a major part in many kitchens, such as a one-quart measure, one or more fancy molds, a tube cake pan, waffle iron, deep fat kettle, fat thermometer, candy thermometer, egg timer and steamer or pressure cooker.

Very soon I'll have a list of necessary linens, which seems to be another new question. Meanwhile, if brides-to-be or their mothers have any special household problems that I can help with, that's my middle name.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Right for Girl to Pay Fare

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEEKMAN:

Is it proper for a young man (a co-worker) to pay a girl's fare when he meets her going to work or coming home? This occurs at the average of four times a week.

No, a girl is short-sighted to allow this to commence. For, obviously, it is much easier for her to begin by being straightforward about her wish to pay her own fare. It is perfectly easy for her to do this, and she shouldn't feel, or have in her manner, any embarrassment about it.

Daily True Story

A Lucky Girl

ALL HER FRIENDS told Maisie that she was a lucky girl indeed to have made a friend like Paula.

It was just an accident that the two had met; it happened the very first week Maisie had landed a job in one of the big offices on Main st.*

Paula was in the same section, and the head of the department told her he'd consider it a favor if she'd help Miss Carter all she could.

Maisie was attractive, she had a mop of black curls that needed no marcel to enhance its glory, and her cheeks glowed with the real red of the farm. Paula made it her business to inquire where she was living and offered to share her own room with her.

That sounded good to Maisie, who soon learned that on twenty a week one must make every penny count.

But after Maisie got used to the city she began to wonder if there wasn't something to life besides working all day and sitting around talking to Paula all evening with an occasional movie thrown in for excitement.

"What I aim to do," she confided to her new friend, "is to go on the stage.

"I got looks and I got a nice figure," said Maisie, "you know that Jimmy Nesbit—he's down in the delivery department—well he told me so and it's a funny thing I never thought of it before, but look at that picture we saw last night—I'm a good deal like that girl that went to work in a store and became a big actress, I look a good deal like her, too."

Paula stared at her "You're crazy," she sniffed, "and what's Jimmy Nesbit know about it—he tells every girl that—why he even told me, but you lay off believin' all you hear."

A NEW ADVENTURE

But Maisie had higher ideas, and one day a young man who bore all the material makeup of a movie star stopped at her desk for some information, meanwhile making an inventory of her charms. "You're wasting your time here," he said, "you're an exotic bloom in a cabbage patch; ever think of going into a chorus?"

"Me?" asked Maisie with a sudden flutter of the heart. "I guess I ain't pretty enough."

"Oh, I wouldn't say that," he replied, smiling. "I'll tell you what I'll do—I'll give you a note to a friend of mine who's putting on a musical comedy, and said that you were a swell chaser," said Harry when they reached the street.

"Gee," admitted Paula, "that's what I always heard; can you beat it?"

She Lacks Love for Fiance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a girl child, have everything I want, including a car, but here is my trouble. Very soon I am to be married. Unfortunately I am not in love with my future husband, though he is everything a girl could want. But I am willing to marry him because he is the only one who knows a secret in my life, something which happened some years ago. Do you think I can make him happy, even though I won't be? I'm in love with another man.

B.

Dear B.: I am very sorry you didn't entrust me with your personal address so that I could have written you immediately and urged you with all the energy at my command, not to marry a man you do not love—no matter what it is he knows about you. Especially as you care about someone else, such a step seems to me very ill-advised.

Cracking Shell for Meat of the News

Mit Charlie Strack, who meets Count Zarynoff in a return match at the Arena on Thursday night . . . Charlie is a former Colgate and Oklahoma A. & M. football star . . . Played both guard and tackle in 1922, 1923, 1924 and got honorable mention for the All-American . . . Was an amateur grappler before turning pro and wrestled in the Olympics of 1924 and 1928 . . . Won national championship in 1924 and 1926 and was runner up in 1922, 1923, 1925, 1927 and 1928 . . . After leaving the Oklahoma Aggies Strack played pro football for the Chicago Cardinals . . . Was a great booter . . . Now we know how Charlie came to give the Count that kick in the pantses in their bout at the New England Sled Dog Club show . . . Football instunct! . . . After seeing that other, cockle-of-the-heart warming Strack-Zarynoff duel, we wouldn't stay away from Thursday night's return match for a farm.

Most fighters thrive on work. A stay in the stable finds them off in timing and distance . . . Is Ernie Schaaf one of them? . . . We'll know when the Wrentham Dynamiter crawls through the ropes against Jack Dorval, the Hunter of the Alleghenies, in the big Christmas Fund show one week from Thursday . . . Not since he started knocking them out of their brogans under the Buckley banner has Ernie been so long without a fight under his belt . . . We're strong for Joe McKenney, the B. C. coach . . . Joe has welded a bunch of minor leaguers into major leaguers . . . B. C., you know isn't buying nor coaxing them away from rival institutions . . . When Holy Cross takes the field against Harvard you'll see the best pair of flank guardsmen on the Eastern gridiron . . . Yea Bo, a "sweet" pair are Senors Collucci and Cavalieri! . . . You all recall how Captain Phil O'Connell ran and passed John Harvard dizzy, last year . . . Watch Rovinski next Saturday . . . He's the type of player that is likely to break things up any minute . . . Faster than a streak of lightning and more slippery than a greased pig . . . What boxing commissioner with throne tottering has yet written commissioners of other states urging them to write a governor in his behalf?

Paul Swiderski, who will put up his dukes against Joe Sekyra in the Arena, tonight, is a brother-in-law of Joe Malcewicz, the wrestler . . . Between Paul's fists and Joe's grunts the clan manages to keep the wolf from the door . . . Sekyra is an Idol Wrecker . . . He's the fellow Charlie Retzlaff stubbed his toe on just when Charlie was in the midst of his sensational knockout string . . . Swiderski is something of an in-and-outer . . . Down in Lousville he once gave Mickey Walker a shellacking . . . In a return match Smiling Mickey paid him back with interest . . . Paul is managed by Harry Lenny, whose brother Eddie was a bearcat . . . Swiderski vs Sekyra . . . Sounds like a Bolshevik election . . . If they only will fight that way fans will have no kick coming.

George Funk, the Boston architect, who is president of the newly organized New York Bronx team of the Can-Am League is enthusiastic over his club . . . Says the acquisition of Joe Bourgault and Bill Regan of the Rangers, Jake Forbes and Johnny Sheppard of the Americans, Ed Jeremiah of Dartmouth and Arthur Pringle and Dave Arnott, the two Ozoas youngsters has made his team . . . Looks for some great games when the New Yorkers meet the Cubs and Indians . . . Francis Gleason, the Newton youngster who got a chance to battle for dear old Harvard when Bernie White was injured in the Dartmouth game had a little attack of stage fright . . . But now he has had his baptism of fire he probably will steady down . . . You'll probably see him in the lineup against Holy Cross.

You are likely to see the fastest game that has been played at Fenway this season, when B. C. and Centre throw out skirmishing lines tomorrow afternoon . . . Nothing to get a line on Centre from this year . . . They've been playing unknowns . . . When you think of the Praying Colonels you think of Bo MacMillan . . . Also of Charlie Moran, the National League umpire, who coached the little Centre outfit of 1921 which humbled haughty Harvard . . . Also of Sully Montgomery, the Centre tackle, who turned professional boxer . . . He should have remained a football player . . . Practically all of the football stars who turned Cauliflower have been flops in the ring . . . Wonder how Steve Hamas, the Penn Stater, will do when Charlie Harvey turns him loose against real opposition . . . So far he has been fed nothing but setups . . . Only win Ernie Schaaf probably will knock him loose from his snoozings.

Of the five unbeaten and untied Eastern elevens three—Harvard, Cornell and Syracuse—face stern opposition in Holy Cross, Dartmouth and Colgate next Saturday . . . Unbeaten but tied Fordham faces N. Y. U., a great team despite defeats by Oregon and Georgia . . . On score comparisons Notre Dame, Tulane and Georgia outclass the "Eastern" elevens . . . Only an amazing pass and catch enabled N. Y. U. to score on Georgia just like an equally amazing pass and catch with a following goal after touchdown enabled Harvard to beat Dartmouth . . . Harvard is supposed to have a combined forward and lateral pass play up its sleeve to use against Yale . . . N. Y. U. used one for a 15 yard gain against Georgia last Saturday . . . LaMark ran to the right and shot a forward to Hugret, who had cut across from end to end . . . After two strides Hugret fired a lateral back to LaMark . . . No let up for that great Georgia team . . . The Crackers face Tulane Saturday and then go West to meet Southern California . . . If Georgia should complete its fierce schedule unbeaten it will be a tossup as to which is the greatest team, Georgia or Notre Dame.

If Holy Cross or Yale looked for Harvard to show its mud against Dartmouth they were disappointed—unless Harvard really hasn't any hand to show . . . According to the town clerk of Leominster, Lou Little, the Columbia coach was born Lou Picahllo . . . Didn't know Lou had the blood of Caesar's legions flowing in his veins . . . Speaking of Little, that Columbia Brown game next Saturday should be a corker . . . Little knows Temple's defeat of Villanova kept its record clean . . . The Temple boys certainly are paying back Charles G. Erny, who gave the little college the $500,000 stadium that seats 35,000 persons . . . The strange part of the bequest is that Erny is not a college man himself . . . Here's another peculiar one, a college man who thinks the newspaper boys have been too kind to his team . . . It's a Princeton man who says Princeton is only playing high-school football and thinks the papers should headline it . . . He believes the Tiger needs arousing and wants the sports scribes to do it . . . But he doesn't want his own name used . . . The world is full of the Pass the Buck boys.

Eagles Meet Unbeaten 'Praying Colonels'

By BILL GRIMES

After nine years, Centre College, familiarly known as the "Praying Colonels" returns here today for an Armistice Day encounter with Boston College at Fenway Park.

The "Praying Colonels" arrived this morning and were slated to work out at Fenway Park this afternoon. The Gold and White squad held a practise session in Cincinnati yesterday and with the exception of Charlie Lancaster, a giant tackle, and Art Ruffini, the outstanding end, they are primed for the Eagles. Lamraster broke an ankle bone in the Mercer game while Ruffini came up with an injured knee during the Georgetown College tilt last Friday night, but he may see service tomorrow.

Although the Colonels have not recently been as formidable as when they had such stars as Bo McMillin, Red Roberts, Armstrong, Weaver, Covington and their present coach, Ed Kubale, they are one of the few undefeated teams in the country.

Centre is strong defensively, due to a hard fast charging line and is fortified with a tricky offensive. The right side of the line is composed of veterans who are playing their third and final season. Incidentally Art Ruffini, Fred Arnzen and John Horkey have been a great side for several years, having been the right side of the Staunton, Ill. high school team before going to Danville, Ky.

Jim Edwards Is Centre Line Star

Charlie Barksdale, Jim Edwards and Yater Breeding will work on the left side of the line. Edwards, a 180-pound tackle, is expected to shine both defensively and offensively. He has a terrific charge and plays heads up football at all times. Barksdale is a fine receiver of passes despite the fact that this is his first season with the varsity. Breeding, a shifting runner in the Colonels' backfield. He is exceptionally fast and can cut and reverse after the style of the famous Bo McMillan. But the Eagle quint also watch Dallas Long, the 210-pound fullback.

Long is usually played in the No. 2 position about two yards back of the line, from where he lines up in the line with terrific force. Long is not only very powerful but he is fast getting off the mark and due to his speed and bulk a tough runner to bring down.

Kettler and Chief Tenakel, a full blooded Indian, are the passers and when Centre takes to the air, it sends a player down on each flank and one down the middle. With Barksdale and Ruffini going straight down or crossing and either Noe or Moody dashing down the middle, only alert defense can stop the Colonels' aerial attack.

Coach Ed Kubale, who centered for the Colonels against Harvard in 21 and 22, has only 18 players with him on this trip but such a procedure is not new for Centre. When the Colonels came here for three years to play the Crimson, they brought exceptionally small squads and in 1920 they used only four replacements and the following fall one less.

The Praying Colonels" are anxious to get placed on the schedule of some big Northern college or university and for that reason they are going to be dangerous, for they feel that a victory over Boston College will accomplish their desire

Lack of Big Men Handicap to McKenney

Since the setback by Marquette, the Eagles have improved noticeably. They have been using a new offense, which develops far more power than the old running attack. Of course Boston College is somewhat handicapped by the absence of any big ball carriers.

Joe McKenney is obliged to build his attack and defensive around small backs such as Pete Chesnulevich, Johnny Freitas, Johnny Dougan, Jiggs Lillis and Bobby Ott, all capable players but lacking in both weight and height, a serious handicap against the calibre of clubs the Eagles play.

Pete Chesnulevich was badly pummeled by Georgetown 10 days ago and has not fully recovered. He was held in reserve for three periods of the Western Maryland game and during that time Johnny Dougan took a fine pasting from Dick Harlow's charges. Dougan was a standout last Saturday, averaging about six yards per rush. He is very small but exceptionally hardy, or he would never have lasted as long as he did Saturday.

As Boston College has hung up two straight victories over Western Maryland—it has acquired new confidence and should click at its best against Center. However, the Eagles did not scout the Praying Colonels and may experience trouble during the first half trying to fathom the enemy's attack, which operates from a split unbalanced line.

Center College has always been an attraction here and tomorrow's game will draw the largest crowd Boston College has played to this season. There has been a healthy demand for tickets since the Eagles stopped Western Maryland, and if the weather is favorable there will be 30,000 at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon.

MALDEN BOYS TO SEE PERES

Malden high school football team, undefeated in schoolboy ranks, will be guest of Pere Marquette, undefeated in pro football, Sunday at Lincoln Park when the Peres meet the University of Peabody eleven.

The Malden boys are glad to get this invitation, extended by Manager Mike King, because their coach, Warren McGuirk, is an important player in that Marquette line. None of them ever saw their mentor in action, outside of the practice sessions, so they are looking forward to this occasion with keen pleasure.

Whalen believes the U. of Peabody will give the Caseys a stiff argument.

Fred "Fish" Ellis, who was a schoolboy star at Medford high and later at Tufts College, where he captained an undefeated team, is a Peabody star.

B. U. Mentor in Attack on Rogers Grid Plan

Head Football Coach Hilary Mahaney of Boston University today made his most aggressive move in the B. U. grid situation when he declared that the player control plan, introduced by Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, dean of student health at B. U., is positively dangerous to the players.

Mahaney gave as his main objection to the plan the likelihood of very serious injury to players, who are forced to enter the game from the bench at the behest of the captain without a chance to warm up.

This means that the athlete, often cold and stiff from sitting on the bench for some time, is subjected to the banging of the game when not loosened up and ready to withstand shocks which might cause injuries.

In addition Mahaney said that the player-control plan had probably cost the Terriers a victory in the game with Tufts last Saturday at the Tufts Oval. Tufts won the game by one touchdown margin.

Without wishing to detract from the victory of the Jumbos, Mahaney said that had he been on the bench he would have substituted players when necessary and enabled the Terriers to hit the weak spots of the Tufts team when a touchdown might well have been scored, to give B. U. at least a tie.

B. U. 20 Points Better Than Tufts, Says Coach

As a matter of fact, Boston U. was 20 points better than its foe last Saturday, Mahaney added.

The coach's other big objection to the player-control plan lies in the fact that many of the players are dissatisfied with the system and do not feel that they should be burdened with the responsibilities attendant on the system.

CORNELL BACK INJURED

Ithaca, N. Y., Nov. 10—Ray Hedden, Cornell back, is not likely to play against Dartmouth when Cornell battles the Green at Hanover Saturday.

Bruises received in the Columbia fray have proved serious and Hedden is listed as injured.

Dick Beyer, who played the safety position last year, is occupying No. 1 berth, with Earl Viviano, Johnny Ferraro and Phil Kline completing the backfield.

The first-string players who did not meet Alfred Saturday went through an intensive drill Coach Dobie reverted to fundamentals and then gave the regulars a test in pass defense.

Intensive workouts are planned for today and tomorrow. The squad leaves for Hanover Thursday afternoon.

BOOTH TO FACE HARVARD

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 10 (INS)—Albie Booth will play against Harvard a week from Saturday at Cambridge despite sundry reports to the contrary. Stories that the Yale grid captain was in bad shape and on crutches were spiked by officials of the Athletic Association, who said Albie suffered a muscle bruise Saturday and would be inactive for not more than three or four days. He was sporting a cane today.

Medford Man Off for A. A. U. Meeting

Benjamin B. Onthers of Medford, who is superintendent of the Medford post office when not officiating at sports events, left by auto today for Kansas City to attend the annual convention of the A. A. U., Nov. 15 to 17 inclusive, as one of the delegates from the N. E. A. A. U.

The other delegates from New England who will attend the convention sessions are President William P. Kenney of National President A. J. Lill, J. Frank Facey Hugh D. McGrath, Herbert D. Ticlm, Ben Levine and John J. Magee, the latter of Bowdoin.

U. S. Yachtsmen Give Plaque to Briton

McNamare, Guerra Tie for Bike Lead

Chicago, Nov. 10 (INS)—Wheeling into a tie one lap ahead of the field the McNamara Guerra and Letourner-Gumbeltera teams today were leading the field in the six-day bicycle race at the stadium. Previously four teams had pulled up on even terms with Cecil Walker and Harrie Horder, who led the field at midnight.

So strenuous did things become late last night that seven bikers piled up on the boards together in a spectacular collision during a jamming spree. Fifty-five laps were stolen during the spree.

Concord Grads Win

Concord, Nov. 10—The Concord High School Alumnae eleven won the girls' field hockey championship of the town edging Concord High girls, 3 to 0, on the Emerson playground court.

Illinois Ring Board Nails Mandell's Gloves to Wall

Chicago, Nov. 10—Sammy Mandell's boxing gloves were nailed to the wall for keeps by the Illinois State Athletic Commission today.

The action means the end of Samuel' fighting career, the end of the trail for the smiling Rockford kid, who fought his way to feature bouts and, went on to win the world's lightweight boxing championship.

Mandell was in the commission office and he was told that he had been placed on the retired list by Gen. John V. Clinnin, chairman of the board.

And, after Sammy had heard Clinnin's explanation, the once Rockford flash, the boxing genius of his time, agreed that the ruling was for the best.

No Markdown Ticket Sale for Malden-Medford Fray

Despite efforts of members of the school committee of both Medford and Malden officials of the schools stated today that all reserved seats for the annual Thanksgiving Day contest, this year to be played at the Medford high field, would remain at the $2 price established last year.

Some $1 seats will be put on sale, but these will be located behind the goal posts.

Last year when the tickets were advanced from $1 to $2 attendance fell off materially, with the result that the net proceeds of the game fell off from previous years when the top price had been $1 per seat.

No. Cambridge K. C., Saugus Town Team

The North Cambridge K. of C. will journey to Saugus where they will take on the strong Saugus Town team at Stackpole field, tomorrow afternoon. As both teams have clean slates, it will be the outstanding semi-pro game of the day.

CRICKARD NOT FIT FOR TILT SATURDAY

Faced with the prospect of finding a sub fullback to replace Bernie White, Coach Eddie Casey today sends his Harvard regulars through their first day of preparation for Holy Cross.

White, the veteran Crimson fullback, is definitely out of action for the tilt with the Crusaders, and his ankle an even chance of getting back into action in time for Tale.

At the same time, Jack Crickard, Harvard's outstanding halfback, is suffering many bruises following the Dartmouth game, and his ability to go against the Crusaders is doubted by the Harvard coaches and doctors.

Casey stated today that he would send "the best team available" against Holy Cross. This eleven will probably see some of the sophomore backs in place of the regular Harvard ball carriers.

Casey Expects Hardest Fray of Season

Casey said that in his opinion Holy Cross will prove to be Harvard's hardest obstacle to an undefeated season. Nothing will be held in reserve by the Crimson strategists, despite the fact that Yale comes to the Stadium the following Saturday.

Every player on Harvard's first team drew a day off for the first workout of the week at Soldiers Field yesterday. Jack Crickard followed the practice in street clothes.

Coach Casey had much fault to find with the blocking and tackling of his players and the entire session was devoted to fundamentals. Teams B and C held a scrimmage for almost an hour with the second varsity.

Frank Gleason, former Country Day boy, is being groomed for the fullback berth in place of Bernie White for the Holy Cross game and this young player will receive plenty of special tutoring this week. It is likely that he will be in the starting lineup Saturday.

Harvard's collection for the unemployed netted almost $6000. The university authorities had hoped for a more generous offer than this. In the Holy Cross game Harvard will call more attention to the needs of the jobless.

An unknown donor in section 31 in the Stadium tossed in a $100 bill as the hat was passed. It was the only one of its kind, however. The $5918.92 total will be equally divided between Presidents Lowell of Harvard and Hopkins of Dartmouth, to use as they see fit for the benefit of the needy.

Capacity Crowd for Army-Irish Game

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 10 (INS)—When Maj. D. D. Fleming, [illegible] are managers of athletics at the U. S. Military Academy here, finish counting applications for tickets today for the Army-Notre Dame-Yankee Stadium tilt Nov. 28, he discovered that, as usual, the game would be played before a capacity crowd.

Practically all the second allotment applications, numbering about 10,000 seats, will be rejected and refunds made as soon as possible. Each mail is bringing a flood of applications, all of which will be returned.

Carnera Signed to Box Guehring

Berlin, Nov. 13 (AP)—Primo Carnera, Italian heavyweight, has been signed for a match here November 15 with Ernest Guehring, boxer recently returned from an American tour, promoters announced today.

Carnera was guaranteed 30,000 marks (about $7200) and Guehring 20,000 marks (about $4800), the announcement said.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

In developing your golf it will be helpful if you keep in mind that golf is so much what you think at the moment you are to make a shot, though wrong thinking at that particular time, as I have shown, can spoil that particular shot. It is the thinking you do between your shots, the thinking that goes on while you walk down the fairway or perhaps while you are studying golf at home, that constitutes your main line of thinking with regard to your own play. You may accept it as axiomatic that you cannot think bad golf away from your golf course and play good golf at your golf course. That's one pun that doesn't mix. Remember the player who thought about a [illegible] mer, and shot slices all summer. Think straight, about your own golf and you may discover, perhaps greatly to your benefit, that you've been doing exactly that yourself. You may not be able to make perfect shots, but at least you can make them in your imagination. And they must be made in the imagination before ever your muscles can make them.

Dogleg Holes Are Test of Good Golf

After the short 13th there are the two perennially mean doglegs, both of which bend to the right. The 14th hole can be shortened by taking a trip into the woods, but if played down the middle it requires a long drive and a good approach shot to get home for the hole is 415.

At the 15th it is possible to get home with a medium mashie by shaving close to the woods on the right. This green is elevated in the back and an ideal one for a

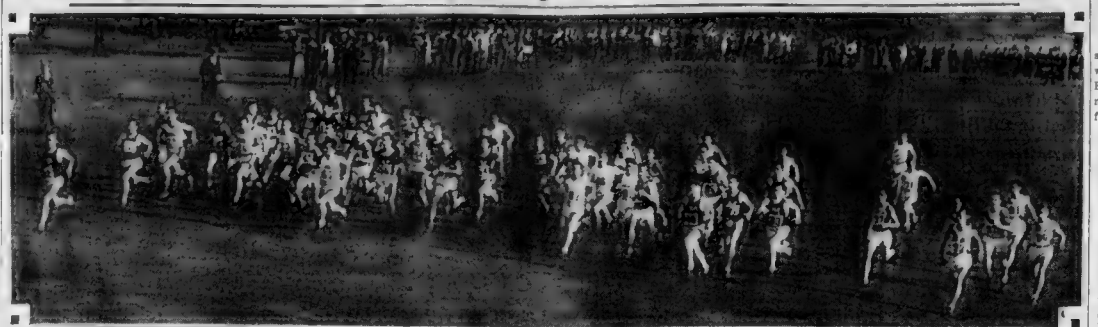
Breaking From the Barrier in Big College Chase Over the Franklin Park Course



Here's the field just as the leash was slipped in the 19th Annual N. E. college cross country championships over the Franklin Park course yesterday. Individual honors went to Bates, which won first and second places in the Varsity race. Team laurels went to New Hampshire.

Blue Hill 18 Hole Golf Links Open Tomorrow

After five long years of patient waiting on the part of its members, the Blue Hill Country Club will open its 18-hole layout tomorrow, celebrating the occasion with a member and guest tournament.

Although it has required five years to complete the Blue Hill course it was worth the time and the cost. The Blue Hill Country club is one of the most beautiful courses in New England. Situated in the Blue Hills [illegible] which it derives its name it undoubtedly will be one of the best and most popular courses in the section.

The Blue Hill Country Club has been built along the most modern lines plans including [illegible] such an expense [illegible] club opened as a nine hole layout. Two years ago three more holes were opened, and this past year a third nine was [illegible]. Although it was announced that the course would be ready for play [illegible] they came in so rapidly that it was decided to allow the members one day to [illegible] course and tomorrow, Armistice Day, was selected.

Besides the fact that Blue Hill is only five years old, it boasts of wonderful greens for the turf is exceptionally rich. Many of the hazards are covered with a velvety grass unlike any texture in this vicinity.

Blue Hill Officers Stiff Golf Trial

The Blue Hill Country club officers of the stiffest tests of golf in New England. It is anything but a links layout, but still is one of real merit, being a one well-balanced course. [illegible] par four holes, ranging from 415 to 445 yards, which provide the two long and testing holes for those to get home at par over, only the exceptionally long hitters can get home in two on any of the par five holes.

Of the four holes which will be played for the first time tomorrow, two are dogleg, which promise to become the most popular on the entire course. Until the new clubhouse is erected on the site back of the present 11th tee the course will be played as originally laid out. After playing the first 11 holes the members and guests tomorrow will start out over the new five holes.

The 12th of the new holes runs parallel with the present 11th, measuring more than 400 yards. Here members and their friends are in for a treat for the 12th hole is a dogleg [illegible] up a hill to a green cut into a

On the card it measures 525 yards but there is little hope of the better than the average golfer getting home under favorable conditions and if played into a head wind, there is not a chance in the world of getting down in par figures unless via the one-putt route.

Schoolboy Notes

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Although Clark School should win handily from the Lynn G. E. eleven at Lynn tomorrow afternoon, a big crowd will turn out to see the ex-Lynn English boys play ing with the Hanover prep eleven

On the Clark eleven are Tony Geniawicz, George Moriarty and Dennis Cross, all former Lynn English luminaries. Geniawicz plays fullback for Clark and is just as much of a terror to opponents as he was a year ago.

Another member of the Clark eleven is John Messina, who won all-scholastic fame at Medford high. Geniawicz and Messina were two of the best backs ever developed in Greater Boston and both are going to enter Dartmouth.

Some decision will be made today as to the day which East Boston and Hyde Park, toughest teams in the city loop, will clash. The game was billed for Thursday, but alumni of both schools want it played tomorrow, as many will get a half-holiday and be able to see the battle.

"Okie" O'Connell, South Boston pitch hack, has fully recovered from a shoulder injury and will be back in the Pennsula lineup soon

Believe it or not, there isn't an undefeatable and untied schoolboy eleven left in this vicinity. Norwood held the honor until Saturday when it was bumped off by Quincy, 12-0.

Salem Malden, Everett, Melrose and Hyde Park, however, have not been defeated although they have been tied.

Two green school rivalries will be renewed this week. Andover and Exeter meet at Exeter, Saturday, and St. Marks and Groton clash tomorrow in an Armistice Day game at Southboro.

A classy twin-bill is listed for Boston College Alumni Field tomorrow with English meeting Mechanics and Dorchester tangling with Trade. The whistle will send the teams into action at 9:30,

Contestants failed to establish any new time records but the spectators were given plenty of thrills as the bronco tossed their riders.

Jimmy Nesbit of Tucson, Ariz., missed the Boston time record for steer wrestling by a fraction of a second. Jimmy tossed his opponent, "Jimmy Londos," in 10 2-5 sec.

During the steer wrestling event it appeared that a world's championship wrestling contest was being staged at the Garden with the roaring of the audience, as the cowboys sought to throw the steer with a headlock

Bout With Carnera Is Loughran's Goal

"My main objective," Loughran said, "is to force Primo Carnera into a meeting with me. My bout with Carnera belongs to New York and I want the fans to know that I am ready to sign immediately."

The Philadelphia Adonis said he did not think he would encounter much trouble winning a decision over Paulino.

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

Bobby Goldman, who managed Al Mello into the welterweight championship of New England, pulled me into a corner outside of Billy Ames' office in the Boston Garden.

"I dropped down to Joe Beston's Gym in Quincy to see Jack Dorval work out with Hans Berkie," said Goldman. "Berkie is a rough, two handed fighter who keeps going every second he's under fire. Hans looked pretty good himself, but Dorval was marvelous.

Mr. Boston

"I was amazed at the way Dorval tossed punches and stepped around. He is one of the finest looking heavyweights I ever looked at. He seems to have everything.

"Dan Carroll told me that Dorval didn't look so hot when he first started training, but that he has been getting better every day. If he keeps improving, I will probably place a bet on him to win from Schaaf when they clash at the Boston Garden a week from Thursday night."

That Dorval Boom

What is it, buddy, that has caused the whole town to start talking Dorval? Every place I go somebody tells me what a great fighter Dorval is, and that he has an even chance to win from Schaaf when they clash at the Garden.

Dorval, of course, is impressive physically. He is six feet three and a half inches tall, has a reach of 77 inches and weighs 220 pounds. Fight fans, as well as the boys in the racket, like their scrappers big

In addition to being big, Dorval has a splendid record. He has beaten first-class heavyweights like Otto Von Porat, Babe Hunt and Benny Touchstone.

I believe the fact Dorval has a great left hand is what has caused the fans to swing to him

Dick Dunn, general manager of the Garden, tells me that the Schaaf-Dorval bout will draw the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a boxing bout indoors in this city. I believe the fact this attraction has been offered at $1, $2 and $3, has tended to increase interest in it.

In these depression days, boxing clubs cannot expect to get fancy prices for even the best kind of matches. Old John Public hasn't got as much jack as he had in boom days.

Let's have more of these popular-priced shows.

Griffiths Bout Off

The only bout Schaaf has to concern himself with right now is his return match with Griffiths, which he will meet Tuffy Griffiths, holder of Chicago on Dec. 3, has been indefinitely postponed. Nate Lewis has wired Johnny Buckley that Tuffy has had his appendix removed.

Jack McCarthy of Roxbury is expected to appear in the semifinal to the Schaaf-Dorval bout. McCarthy looks like one of the most promising heavyweights in the country. He will probably take Jim Maloney's old spot with local fans.

Tom Kanaly calls my attention to the fact that the Jewish Olympian boxing tryouts will be held at the Arena next week from tomorrow night. There will be contests at 118, 126, 147 and 175 pounds.

I'm going to drop in at the Legion dance at the Hotel Bradford tonight. A part of the profits will swell the Christmas Basket Fund of this newspaper.

SEKYRA IN ARENA GO

FAVORED OVER SWIDERSKI TONIGHT

Jack Conway Picks Sekyra to Beat Swiderski

By RINGSIDE

Joe Sekyra, Dayton heavyweight, has been installed a slight favorite for his 10-round bout with Paul Swiderski which will be staged by the Argonne A. A. at the Arena tonight.

Sekyra has been one of the most talked of heavyweights in the country since he defeated the highly touted Charley Retzlaff in New York. Retzlaff had been wrecking all opposition up to the time he collided with Sekyra. The latter proved that a good left hand can more than offset a wild right hand sock.

Swiderski Beat Hunt at Braves Field

Sixteenrail had Mickey Walker on the floor seven times when they collided at Louisville. If he beats Sekyra, Swiderski intends to demand another match with Walker.

An eight round semifinal, which will bring together Baby Jack Renault of Cambridge and Jackie Laverne of Malden, is expected to prove one of the features of the show.

In a six round bout, Pete Herman of Roxbury and Jimmy Sculley will meet for the second time, while there will be the regular assortment of four rounders.

ELI, HARVARD MENTORS TILT

New Haven, Nov. 10—Dr. Marvin A. Stevens, Yale's head coach, today accepted the challenge of Harvard's coaches for a football game at Harvard Stadium, Friday, Nov. 20, at 1:30, the day before the Yale-Harvard varsity game.

The challenge was made Harvard coaches and authorities, W. Eske Cart of the Harvard Athletic Association.

Coach Stevens objected to one of the conditions. Harvard stipulated that there were to be four eight-minute periods. The Yale mentor wants eight four-minute periods.

The Praying Colonels from Centre College, Kentucky, play Boston College at Fenway Park tomorrow afternoon. To prayer, the Colonels hope to add good works enough to down the Eagles.

SPORTS REEL

The Daily Dozen

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Notre Dame has proved the shorter working day practicable The regulars play only one or two periods. Then the subs go to work to win their letters, and the game.

The only reason they have subs on the Irish team is because only 11 men are allowed in the same game at the same time.

The difference between a regular and a sub at South Bend is the same as the difference in brands of bootleg rye. The same dynamite but different labels.

Gold rivals of Notre Dame might just as well concede victory by a conservative score, say 40 to 0, and then go ahead and play some other team.

This procedure would save time and money, wear and tear, risks and reputation.

In every swimming meet, at least a half a dozen records are set. Well, it seems that many. Instead of swimming records they ought to be called "good resolutions."

Mr. Weissmuller, could I interest you in a pair of water-wings?

Germaine to Face Ventres in Mat Go

At Ventres of Kansas, world middleweight wrestling champion, is going to have plenty of opportunity to prove he is champion when he tackles Ted Germaine of South Boston, in Mechanics Building tomorrow night. Ventres, in meeting Germaine, is tackling one of the trickiest middleweights on the mat.

BRUINS READY FOR FIRST CONFLICT

By JOE CASHMAN

If the Bruins fail to win their opening game of the season against the Maroons in Montreal next Saturday night, it won't be for lack of preparedness.

Manager Art Ross will take his squad to the Canadian city tomorrow and put them through two stiff workouts on Forum ice before sending them into battle

The difference in size between the Boston Arena and Forum surfaces is responsible for the Bruins' early getaway. The Maroons' rink is so much larger than the Back Bay ice palace, where the Rossmen have done all their preliminary work, that the natives would be licked ere they started Saturday unless they practiced in Montreal beforehand.

Other Hockey Clubs Have Jump on Bruins

Ross doesn't expect the Bruins to get off to a flying start this year since all the other clubs in the league have been on the ice one to three weeks longer than the local players, but his decision to leave for Montreal tomorrow indicates that he is going to fight to the limit for every verdict right from the opening bell

The same players who went to Springfield and beat the Indians of the Can-Am League in a charity game last Saturday night, will make the trip to Montreal.

Since Ross expressed satisfaction over the showing of each and every one of them in the Springfield tilt, it is likely that they will lineup in the same way against the Maroons.

That means that the first forward line will be composed of Weiland, Clapper and Touhey, the second of Barry, Oliver and Galbraith and the third of Chapman, Boyd and either Cook or Frank Owen. Owen and Shore and Hitchman and Joe Jewra will alternate on defense, with Thompson in goal.

Maroons Likely to Bother Boston Team

The Maroons have had little success in whipping the Bruins during the past few years, but this season it may be different.

The Montreal outfit is now managed by Sergeant Cleghorn, former Bruins' captain, who is one of the smartest hockey men ever and boasts of several new and reputedly star players. It should be strong for the opening game with the Bruins will rest two days and then make their first home appearance of the season against Detroit in the Garden a week from tonight.

STRACK TO FACE ZARYNOFF

Charlie Strack, rough heavyweight wrestler from Oklahoma A. & M. College, will tackle the colorful Count George Zarynoff in one-half of the double windup of Paul Bowser's show at the Arena on Thursday night.

Another newcomer, Charlie Leahman of Ohio University, will tackle Ed George in the other half of the double windup. Leahman is doing a lot of work, and Olivet and Cal seen him in action, declare that George will find it pretty tough going

Amherst End and Guard Out for Year

Amherst, Nov. 10—Injuries received in the Trinity game ended play for th season for A. P. Mason, varsity end, and George Morse, substitute guard of Amherst. The final game of the year with Williams is next on the Amherst list.

Jim Curtis, speedy wingman, who has been retarded all season by a lingering injury, will go to the varsity in place of Mason

Much of the power of the Amherst eleven due to the dirigible leadership of Warren Morse back. Williams plans to use him as quarterback against Williams

Leetch, LoCasio in Billiard Match

H. L. Cooper of the 20th Century billiard room downed H. Davis of Murray's Washington st. room, 30 to 22, in the opening match of the round robin series of the state championship three cushion billiards tournament, at the 20th Century room.

Tonight at the 20th Century room, the second match of the round robin is slated with A. Leetch of Stanley's Recreation playing Carl LoCasio of the Faneuil billiard room.

Dr. Freeland Home First at Pimlico

Pimlico, Nov. 10 (US)—Walter J. Salmon, the New York sportsman, won his third running of the five of the Baltimore Handicap, when Dr. Freeland carried his pink and blue colors to an impressive victory here.

Networks Quiet Two Minutes Tomorrow

By N. F. T.

When the clock strikes eleven tomorrow morning, most radio transmitters in the United States go silent. Network key stations of both NBC and CBS will not be heard for two minutes. Broadcasting as an industry, bows with other world endeavors, to honor Armistice Day.

* * *

President Hoover then speaks, after which an appropriate program of homage is being carried by all stations with National and Columbia chain affiliations. A special American Legion presentation, with Henry L. Stevens, commander of the organization, also goes out on the waves at 9 p. m. tomorrow night. General Pershing will be the principal speaker.

* * *

VOICE OF LYNN

Our adjacent city of Lynn is proud of Selma Johanson. Her soprano voice is in big demand on NBC network programs. Miss Johanson now works with The Salon Singers, The Family Party, Olive Palmer Hours, as well as the Seth Parker Neighbors network feature. This Lynn lassie has just been engaged for special vocal work this coming Friday night at 10 p. m. and she travels to Toronto, Canada for the broadcast.

Contest winning announcements never fail to attract people. Countless listeners will doubtless tune in WBZ at 10 p. m. tonight to learn who has been awarded the big prize in cash. Carrol J. Swan, board of judges chairman, will have arranged for the winner to be introduced on the air. Other winners will also be made known during the half-hour period featuring Joe Rines melody and Warren Hill, master of ceremonies.

* * *

Now radio rumor spreaders want us to believe Mickey Alpert will soon be heard on WEEI.

BRICKBATZ AND BOKAYS

If any doubt exists as to the popular following of The Gossipers (WWAB nightly at 8) their studio turnout last week should dispel it . . . These two cronies have no sponsor at yet, a circumstance hard to reconcile . . . One of them (Jack Shannon) seeks an expression from the dook here as to what is honestly thought of their efforts . . . Thus comes the requested opinion that few if any current local programs have so much to offer in the way of human interest and entertainment quality . . . Morgan T. Evan, Motor Vehicle Inspector, said a creditable mouthful for auto plints (WBZ at 7:45) last night . . . One fan loving listener writes to say Morton Downey and Kate Smith ought to exchange voices . . . Biggest studio kick your Uncle N. F. T. gets is watching Arthur (WNAC) Leary go into high gear and take all Buckminster corridors corners on one leg . . . John (WBZ) McNamara wouldn't accept a two-dollar bill from a friend the other night . . . Asked if he was superstitious, John claimed not, pointing out that the chap owed him FIVE . . . Vic (WEEI) Whitman would rather set his mind dead against a program, admitting that it was good afterwards, than to dish out consoling false flattery on a mediocre feature . . . Carleton Dickerman and Eddie Gosbourne likewise . . . Must be WEEI training, always known to be thorough.

PRESS ALIBIS

Ever so many ear cuppers want to know why radio writers don't pan Graham McNames more. That's an extremely hard question to answer. After all, Graham is a circulation builder for newspapers, and the same must be said for Ted Husing. Both boys cause people to buy sport finals so as to get an accurate account of big athletic events. Graham and Ted are a great help that way. More power to 'em.

* * *

There is something stirring in good old American music of ear days. Symphonic rendition of "Carolina Through Tennessee Tanting Tonight," "Yankee Doodle" and "Dixie," played during the Auburn-Alabama last night (WEEI) at 9:30 appears to be about the most colorful arrangement yet scheduled. Two weeks from last night (Thanksgiving week) the same program salutes Massachusetts in the sponsorial "Parade of States" series.

Personalities on the Air

"Everyone wants to become a Rudy Vallee," said John McCormack, in town Sunday for a concert.

Well, not exactly. They all want to become McCormacks and Carusos but when they get to the Vallee stage, the shekels come pouring in, a-la-by Ruther

The Irish tenor also suggested radio censorship. If judged on the same standard as books or movies, radio would have to operate on a part time basis.

By all rights of logic and fair play first to be eliminated would be advertising talks. In that case sponsors would depart, there'd be no one to pay the bills and radio would close down. Which, from many standpoints, would be successful censorship

To become an announcer one must go through certain strange rites. Although the job merely calls for reading aloud three or four hundred commercial talks a day, the applicant has to do everything but tilt the mike on his nose

He has to sing, recite, talk with pebbles in his mouth, a la Demosthenes, and even talk extemporaneously about a subject suddenly thrust at him. It might pertain to chemistry, physics, child health or the Denmark button industry

Those who get by to this point are usually stumped by the question "Why do you want to become an announcer?" They never know.

And the funniest part of it all is that men who've been announcers before the lights came into being, freely admit they couldn't pass.

WILL PROSPERITY OR POLITICS WIN OUT?

By B. C. FORBES

Most people and most organizations, realizing that a serious emergency existed, have acted accordingly. Bankers have taken emergency action by co-operating for the benefit of worthy institutions weakened by hysteria among depositors. Industrial managers have gone farther than they ever went before in adopting emergency labor measures, often at the expense of profits. Wage-earners, too, in many instances, have favored the widest possible division of work in preference to full time for some and total idleness for others.

Financiers, business men and workers alike have exhibited a spirit of co-operation in order to mitigate as far as possible the hardships of depression.

Will our politicians likewise exercise a similarly praiseworthy spirit of co-operation? Will they place the common good above self-seeking ambitions? Will they be motivated by humane patriotism rather than by narrow, political considerations? Will possible partisan advantages be foregone for the sake of the greatest good of the greatest number?

In short, will our lawmakers prove big enough to practice as broad statesmanship as has been practiced during the distress by capital and labor?

This question is agitating the minds of many responsible citizens now taking unusual measures in order to play their part in overcoming stagnation and hastening the return of normal conditions for business and labor.

Let us hope that those who should prove statesmen will prove statesmen.

Federal Tax Exemption Assailed

This column has been asked oftener than once to start a campaign against allowing all those on the federal payroll to escape paying income tax. It isn't clear to all taxpeyers why the men who levy an income tax on others should exempt themselves from paying anything. Seeing that the number of federal tax-eaters multiplies at an alarming rate, this question becomes one of increasing importance.

Many corporation executives, it is pointed out, were the first to impose upon themselves a reduction in salary. In not a few cases salaries have been reduced by corporations that have not reduced wage rates.

"Will our lawmakers prove equally as self-denying?" is asked.

Hurricane Over, Debris Remains

"The hurricane is over!

"The other day in talking with half a dozen gentlemen who asked my opinion about the situation I used the expression 'The hurricane is over, but the wreckage remains.' It is now necessary for us to clear up the wreckage and rebuild the financial structure, which means that we must now all turn in with optimism and energy about the future.

"The people should now recognize the fact (and your paper should urge it), that they should spend more and not hoard.

"Your paper should urge that all receivers of closed banks everywhere—State and National institutions—immediately pay off the depositors as rapidly as can possibly be gotten together by the receivers, so that the depositors of closed banks will have money to spend. There is probably anywhere from half a billion to a billion and a half billars tied up in closed banking institutions. 'Receivers are hoarding this money until they can pay 30, 40, 50, or 60 per cent, instead of distributing it as they should. It seems to me that as soon as 10 per cent of cash is received the receiver should be forced to distribute that 10 per cent so that the depositors may be able to put it into circulation for spending.

This suggestion is hereby cordially endorsed, not only in the interest of prosperity, but in the interest of suffering bank depositors.

Gifford's Pessimism Criticized

A reader sends an editorial: "You cannot fill a dinner pail by weeping into it!" He urges its reproduction in this column.* Here are its main points:

Among the most destructive forces in the United States are the regular panic-parties conducted over the radio by Walter S. Gifford's unemployment committee. Every few days, some trembling all-is-lost-or arises and pours a song of despair into millions of homes—and then business is expected to pick up right away . . . America wants no weepers and wailers; they never accomplish anything; never will. And allowing them to spread fear and despair over the air is downright foolishness."

To Late to Await the Worst

One still meets an occasional calamity-howler who proclaims that worse times than anything yet experienced are in store. One such pessimist has six million dollars. I am told, which he hopes to invest in securities at lower prices than any yet seen. It will serve him right—and all of his kind—if they have to pay dearly for their abject lack of faith in this country's future.

I wrote some weeks ago "Securities are not being sold, they are being given away." This will not always be so. Courage in the end always triumphs over cowardice. This species of history will repeat itself.

Hears:

That in spite of the difficulty share prices are having in negotiating the 115-117 level indicated here on Saturday, the list as a whole stands up well. For the present, then, it would be well to count on further upside demonstrations offering additional opportunities for profit taking.

War Talk

The reported spread of Sino-Japanese hostilities is giving impetus to brokerage speculation as to how the market would receive the patches telling of open warfare. One of the more widely read services feels that the immediate reception to such news would be a sharp selloff followed by a rally. Another goes so far as to outline the groups most likely to benefit. Besides cotton and grain it seems certain a good demand for silver, copper and chemicals would be noticed and shares in these sections are naturally the ones to buy if war on a large scale is looked for.

The pool operating in Electric Autolite expects that the new motor models will stimulate the company's business noticeably to enable it to make a good third-quarter statement

Rails

While the performance of the rails in the week's initial session was more reassuring the group has a good distance to go before it can be considered as in line with the industrials. Most statisticians agree that the breaking of the June axes by the industrials alone would not be a positive signal that the trend had been reversed. Chief among the carrier troubles are normally low freight movements together with involved wage discussions. Neither of these aggravations is clearing fast enough to warrant large scale bull activities.

It is not at all unlikely that the rails will again be brought forward. However, strength in this section will facilitate the distribution of industrials and it should not be followed.

Boardroom Briefs

One sub-division of the chemicals which is only too obviously being pushed up on a false basis is that embracing powder companies. . . The June low on the 30 industrials was 119.90, the high for the present move, on Monday was 119.15 . . . Supply of canned goods is down and in some quarters available supply well below known demand . . . International Salt is likely to be a big gainer by the new duPont synthetic rubber process, which requires a large amount of salt . . . International Salt has invested in benefits saved from a sizable write-off at the year end by the current bulge in prices . . .

Traders who are determined to make the most of the rally and insist on holding out for higher settlements are cautioned to at least protect accounts with stop loss orders.

COMMODITIES GIVE MARKET GOOD CHEER

By FRANK H. MELOON

Setting new highs almost daily, the various grains, along with silver, continue to give good cheer to the stock market. Profit taking has been pretty well withstood in all the markets, though sometimes it has appeared in very heavy volume. J. P. Maher, former financial editor of the New York American, in his Chicago Daily market letter for a big stock exchange house, says:

"Technical restrictions prevent bad news from having normal influence on the stock market and good news from arousing activity to have exaggerated effect. As a result the long side condition is offer best trading opportunities, but the weakened technical structure carries constant danger of sharp drop whenever unexpected bearish development occurs."

General Tire & Rubber Co. of Akron, O., New England with the purchase of Yale Tire & Rubber Co. at New Haven. President William O'Neil entered the tire industry soon after being graduated from Holy Cross, possesses the enviable distinction of heading a company which has never passed a dividend. The O'Neil family were in the chain store field before entering rubber, which has always had the reputation of being a "prince or pauper" industry, and Mr. O'Neil has had the pleasure of dispensing princely sums since the company has been concerned.

Mr. O'Neil tells us that incorporation of the Yale company to handle the consignments of Yale products as a subsidiary of the General Tire and Rubber Co. has already been authorized by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

In connection with adding prices in the grain markets, we frequently read estimates of just how much each cent rise increases the bulk buying power of the wheat and corn farmer. This increase will be greater than statistical only if the farmers cash in on the advance, which they have not done in the past. Recent experiences, however, may make the farmer of 1931 a very different man than his predecessors. It remains to be seen.

* * *

While many factors have helped the big speculators to put the grains finally on a definite trading factor to their success has been the fact that grain values have been so low. We have seen it pointed out that the nations now clashing are "rice eaters." We have not seen the fact mentioned that the northern third of China is prone to substitute wheat for rice in its dietary program.

Last week was the first in three in which New York Stock Exchange leaders, taken in a broad group, showed a advance for the week as a whole. The market value of 50 representative stocks, listed on the New York Stock Exchange at the close of business for the past week, was $13,312,428,309, an increase of $1,074,076,591, or 8.28 per cent, as compared with the market value of $12,238,352,712 at the close of the preceding week. At the close of the like week a year ago the value of these stocks was a market value of $18,475,148,553, indicating a decrease during the year of $5,162,720,260, or 27.94 per cent

National Service Companies distributing ice and fuel in larger New England cities and in West Chester County, State of New York, has declared a quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the 3½ convertible preferred shares and a dividend of 75 cents per share on its $3 convertible participating preferred shares. Both dividends are payable Nov. 16

Missouri Gas Net for Year Greater

Net for retirement and dividends of Missouri Gas & Electric Service Co., one of the companies of the Middle West Utilities System, for the 12 months ending September 30, 1931, was $114,877.25, compared with $113,402.97 for 12 months ending September 30, 1930. Balance available for dividends was $231,480.15, compared with $220,900.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

STOCK market is a most peculiar affair at the moment. Some of the supposedly most astute operators and banking interes's were taken entirely by surprise in the development of recent strength which for some stocks has carried prices up very substantially.

Major factors in the market are understood to be a group of very powerful and influential speculators who had reaped a bountiful harvest from the bear market. Such operations might logically have been expected to provide leadership in turning the market, since the former bull leaders were all pretty well debunked and deflated.

New Bull Leaders Aligned in Wheat

Operations of the present market, controlling group have been closely aligned with the remarkable bull campaign in wheat; there has been a suspicion that wheat's upturn was maneuvered in order to stimulate stocks. Therefore, the action of wheat is exercising unusual influence upon stock prospects.

Whatever the interplay, it is a fact that some of the big interests usually associated with major moves in the stock market this time are absent from the constructive side.

Silver Snatches Center of Stage

Speculation in silver was reported today to have reached unprecedented proportions, with the metal suddenly assuming the center of the entire market picture.

War prospects have provided the dominant note for the markets, the latter seemingly discounting the familiar war orders which inevitably spring from open warfare between modern nations.

Short Interest in Central Squeezed

Sharp run-up in New York Central this week was reported due to a sudden squeezing of the short interest. The stock has been a favorite short sale for pessimistically inclined traders and over the last two weeks the short account in the issue had been substantially increased.

Merger Move Denied by National Biscuit

Chart Position of Worthington Impresses

General Motors Has Substantial Comeback

At 30, General Motors had recovered almost 40 per cent above its lowest price of 25¾ on June 1. This comeback is rather substantial, especially when contrasted with the poor report for the third quarter, and the likelihood that fourth quarter returns may be even more disappointing than the September period.

Selling which had taken place in Motors for months was predicted on expectation of a dividend reduction. This action was based entirely on income prospects.

Forecast Given Here Correctly

Prior to General Motors last dividend action it was forecast here that the regular payment would be voted by directors "for another quarter at least." The board, however, was actuated mainly by a desire to maintain the somewhat more cheerful sentiment which had been developed in the markets and in industry.

There is no reason yet to assume that the motors $3 rate fate is secure, and it is likely that any further advance in the stock will meet increasing profit-taking.

National Bellas Business Improves

Trade information is that the retail business of National Bellas Hess in October was the largest in more than a year and a half. However, there has been little or no encouragement from the mail-order business of the company thus far. A pickup in the latter would be significant at this time

Steel Consumers' Demands Larger

Trend of activities of the United States Steel Corp. the past few weeks has been important. If the upirend continues it will have considerable influence on sentiment among steel buyers, in the opinion of some authorities. The corporation has been able to show an increase for the past week, whereas the tendency in the past three years at this time has been downward. Part of the increase might be due to the fact that there has been some improvement in demand from consumers since the early part of October, as deliveries are being made on part of the orders placed last month.

Adams Express Dividend Prospect

Adams Express directors meet late in this month for action on the dividend. The company has been paying $2 25 cents quarterly. Because of the fact that income has been reduced on the widely diversified list of industrials and railroad stocks held, there has been a feeling that unfavorable action might be taken. This attitude is reflected in the low price of the stock which is selling to yield more than 10 per cent at current levels

Continental Can Expanding Activities

It is evident the management of Continental Can has continued its effort for the expansion of business in the future. The latest step, by which the company has arranged with the largest interest in France for the receipt of royalties from the French company on its output of tin plates and cans, is viewed as important. Continental Can has been able to do quite well this year despite the general business conditions in many other lines.

Gold Dust and Commodity Prices

Advances which have occurred in some commodities this past few weeks, if maintained until the end of the year, will have quite some effect on the lowentory positions of a number of companies and may work to eliminate the necessity of many write-downs in this item in the balance sheets. Gold Dust is one of the organizations which has been credited with wide forward buying and there have been reports recently that the company made purchases for a year's need of flour, farina, oats and wheat. This will be of advantage to the company in the future.

Bull Pool Active in Steel Common

Most aggressive trend in months is reported to be operating in U. S. Steel common. Prominent among those specified as members of the group are individuals generally credited with having turned the tide in the bull movement when the rise in grains began to revive the speculative spirit. A large Stock with the pool reported to be active in the market for U. S. Steel is also represented as participating in the present aggressive sponsorship which experienced little difficulty in marking the issue one of the active leaders.

Steel Performance Invites Distribution

Evidence began to appear that the performance of U. S. Steel was further substantiation in the case of recent favorites, many of which are perhaps entering the process of distribution at the present time. Some of last week's outstanding performers seemed to be meeting a heavier supply yesterday, indicative, it was held, that one of the biggest wheat bulls was cashing in profits.

Red Metal Price May Suffer Drop

Fear is spreading that if the international copper conference breaks up without an agreement, the price of the metal may drop to five cents a pound.

Texas Corporation Low Price Ratio

Changed conditions in the oil industry hold much promise for Texas Corporation, financial observers believe. They regard current market prices unrestrictive to the company's investment value and feel that the common is selling on a low earning ratio, despite its prevailing quotation of around 37½ a share and last years earnings of $4.50 a share. The latter figure represented a decline of 60 per cent from the 1929 equivalent of $4.80 a share.

Increase in Value of Crude and Refined

Brightest prospect in Texas Corporation's status is said to exist in the increasing value of its crude and refined oil inventory, owing to the advancing market prices for both products. A striking commentary on the deflated condition of the oil share market is found in a statistical study showing that 16 representative issues dropped more than 71 per cent in the last year, or more than the 67.5 per cent decline of 65.5 per cent in the industrial average.

Otis Elevator Business Good

Effect of the low volume of new office building construction on Otis Elevator operations is being largely offset by a large amount of replacement work, according to reliable reports. The volume of secondary orders is estimated at a high rate, due to the remodeling of old structures heretofore without elevator service and an increasing demand for replacing obsolete and unsafe equipment with more modern types.

STOCK PRICES MOVE LOWER IN BOSTON

Stock prices were moved to lower levels in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Changes were limited largely to fractions. Boston & Albany was as exception and moved up over a point. Pennsylvania eased fractionally to 32¾

Easter nGas & Fuel preferred was a point lower at 81. New England Telephone dropped 2 points to 129 and American Telephone was nearly a point lower at 145. Edison Electric recovered a point loss sustained at the opening

Fractional losses were shown for American Woolen preferred, Anaconda, Stone & Webster and United Shoe. Gillette was unchanged from previous closing levels. First National Stores advanced a fraction to 84¼.

Springfield will receive bids until noon, Nov. 13 for $1,000,000 notes to be discounted Nov. 16, and payable April 15, 1932. Discount to be figured for 151 days on the basis of 360 days in a year.

Rubber Seat Sells at $1500, Up $100

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)—The membership of Ralph Midwood in the Stock Exchange of New York has been sold to Timothy P. Brosnan of Thompson & McKinnon for $1500, an increase of $100 over the previous sale.

—SPECTATOR—

Says:

Considering the fact that the market has already pushed ahead for five consecutive sessions, and in eight of the last nine trading days, it would not be surprising to witness some period of backing and filling take place at no great distance from current levels.

Big Gain

The vigor of the advance in this period can best be realized by the fact that, as measured by the Dow-Jones industrial averages, the list has chalked up a gain of 21 points, the bulk of this advance attained in the past five sessions.

Offhand, one might say that the upturn has been too rapid, with the probability that a resultant reaction will wipe out much of the fruits of this improvement. Yet that hardly takes into consideration the remarkable change in sentiment which has taken place in important financial circles

Bond Movement

Even if one is tempted to disregard the spectacular advances in such commodities as wheat and silver, for their effect upon security values, it is not so easy to dismiss the turn for the better in bond prices, which have now moved upward for eight consecutive sessions.

With the balance of the month relatively free from any earnings reports or dividend meetings of importance, it is well too early to say just where important resistance will develop to the market's drive toward higher levels

MARKET VIEWS OF BROKERS

Whitney & Flwell—We remain conservatively bullish.

Shields & Co.—Market leadership does not appear anv better than on the several occasions additional gains were forced over the last 18 months.

Hornblower & Weeks—With the market having already recovered about 50 per cent of the ground lost during the decline from the June highs, we repeat our suggestion above the chance waiting more favorable buying opportunities before re-entering the market.

LONDON STOCK MARKET FIRM

London, Nov. 10 (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's speech last night at the Lord Mayor's banquet was well received by the stock exchange today, but it did not bring much increased business, for it is realized that much remains to be done to straighten out continental finance.

Gilt edge securities, domestic and transatlantic issues generally maintains their price levels, but German bonds were down two points. Foreign exchange was slightly against London, the pound on New York being $3.79 and on Paris 96.56 francs.

STOCKS EASIER IN WILL ST. DEALINGS

New York, Nov. 10—Pivotal shares generally displayed an easier tone as a result of profit taking in today's dealings on the New York Stock Exchange.

There were several maximum losses of 1 to 2 points, embracing such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, American Smelting, Products, National Biscuit, North American, Sears, Standard of N. J. and others.

TRADING IS MODERATE

The Far Eastern crisis continued to be the focal point of speculative interest, especially in the silver market. That commodity opened higher in London, but the gain was moderate. The rise here is attributed largely to speculation in which there has been a considerable measure of public participation.

Premier MacDonald's speech last night continued no references to the Manchurian situation, but he did state that the government intended to stabilize sterling. There was, however, no information as to what the tariff policy is to be.

The Prime Minister stressed the need for international understanding and cooperation, especially between Germany and France which he said, must reach an agreement on what is to be done before and later when the Hoover moratorium ends." There was no mention of the tariff in King George's speech at the opening of parliament.

FACT ON COPPER

Other news of interest to Wall Street was the Interstate Commerce Commission's order for eastern railroad merger plan hearings early next year and the report that the International Copper Producers had virtually agreed on a monthly production of 55,000 tons, although the Katanga Company was said to have objected to such a plan.

Some brokerage house circles felt that the stock market should pause to undergo a tecnical reaction before further operations for the advance could meet with much success.

Pittsburgh special says Mahoning Valley steel mills are increasing operations each week. They are now at highest rate in two months. Greater demand for steel ingots by automobile manufacturers and other consumers put five more open-hearth furnaces into operation Monday and brought number of idle workmen back into the mills.

PROFIT TAKING ON BIG CURB

New York, Nov. 10—Curb stocks ran head-on into a heavy wave of profit-taking in early dealings today, with the resultant reaction carrying the market in general to moderately lower levels. However, good support was uncovered on a resale down basis and the list was able to maintain an encouraging undertone.

American Gas and Electric proved most vulnerable in the utility group, sliding down 2 points. Electric Bond and Share was off ½ point. American and Foreign Power warrants off ¾ point, and declines of similar proportions were prevalent elsewhere in the list.

Cities Service eased off to 8¾ for a loss of ¾. Oils were dull and moderately lower, with Humble off a point and Standard of Indiana down ¼.

Great Atlantic and Pacific Stores continued to give an outstanding performance in the specialty division, swinging up to 189 for a new gain of 2 points. This was largely offset by a dip of 2 points by Aluminum.

Grains Are Easier in Chicago Market

Chicago, Nov. 10 (INS)—Grains opened irregular today. Wheat was unchanged to ⅛ o down, corn ¼ to 1⅛ c lower and oats unchanged to ⅛ o up.

Prices:

Wheat—Dec. 65⅛-⅞. March 70, May 70⅛-71, July 71⅝-72.

Oats—Dec. 28-28⅛. May 31-31⅛. July 31¼.

LITTLE ANNIE ROONEY

IT'S A TERRIBLE THING— HOW DID IT HAPPEN?
NO ONE KNOWS— THE DRIVER AND TWO PASSENGERS WERE KILLED!
ANY BODY SAVED?
OH, YES— A FEW ESCAPED WITH SERIOUS INJURIES— SEVEN WERE TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL.
SHES STILL UNCONSCIOUS
HAVE THEY FOUND OUT WHO THE CHILD IS?
NOT A CLUE— NOT EVEN HER NAME! — IT'S STRANGE THAT A CHILD HER AGE WOULD BE TRAVELING ALL ALONE!

Armistice Day Thoughts

When Will We War Again?

Let your prayers go out tomorrow, Armistice Day, for repose of those who have given their lives to their country in past wars.

Let your supplication be that your country will be spared war for many generations to come.

We went into the last war because Germany thought we were too weak or too proud to fight in defense of our rights upon the sea.

It cost the lives of many thousands of our fine young men.

It cost bodily hurts and mental anguish which many other thousands will carry through life to their graves.

It cost other vast expenses which will be a lien upon the public treasury for years into the future.

It cost us the dislocation of our sensible policy of political independence and all the foreign hatreds which since have been lodged against us.

All this terrific loss would have been avoided HAD THEY BELIEVED WE WERE READY TO DEFEND OURSELVES AND TO PROTECT OUR RIGHTS.

They keep away from you WHEN YOU'RE READY. The bullies among nations respect you as the bully in the schoolyard respects his equal or his master.

The wealthy, BUT UNDEFENDED, nation has been regarded as legitimate prey by the strong and avaricious throughout history.

Can there be any doubt whatever that these truculent, cocky Orientals would prefer to wage a war upon the White Race than upon each other!

The heroes we honor on Armistice Day here in Boston and throughout New England are worthy of every last particle of homage we can bestow.

Not a single life among them should have been sacrificed to UNPREPAREDNESS.

So, as we mourn those who are gone, let us derive some salutary lesson from their sacrifices for ourselves and our country.

George Washington, Father of Our Country, advised us that to be prepared for war is the best guarantee against war.

He warned us to beware of foreign political alliances, because these are the breeders of war.

On Armistice Day, with all it implies, let us get back to first principles.

The Dollar Supreme

The timid souls who were impressed by the short-lived speculative propaganda against the dollar should read the address delivered before the New York Advertising Club by Professor Edwin Walter Kemmerer, Princeton University authority on world finance.

The heavy flow of American gold to Europe, following the suspension of gold payments by Great Britain, was easily explicable. It was altogether salutary as tending to a better distribution of the world's gold supply. Our own store of gold had risen to almost embarrassing heights. We met all drafts from every quarter without hesitation and without reluctance.

The amount withdrawn, however, constituted an unprecedented movement of gold, and European speculators in foreign exchange seized the opportunity to spread false and ridiculous rumors that the gold standard in this country was in peril.

These adventurers have since paid dearly for their temerity. The outflow of gold has not only ceased, but published figures show an increase in the monetary gold stocks of the country.

Professor Kemmerer is not deceived as to the true effect upon Great Britain's financial position of her suspension of gold payments. He calls attention to the insuperable difficulties Great Britain will experience in an endeavor to carry on international financial operations through the medium of a paper money standard.

"IT WILL DEPRIVE LONDON FOR A LONG TIME," says he, "IF NOT PERMANENTLY, OF HER PREMIER POSITION AS THE WORLD'S MONEY MARKET CENTER."

"This position," says Professor Kemmerer, "is now being offered to New York. Have our bankers enough knowledge of international finance, enough experience, enough financial leadership, to take the position that London is now passing over to us? It is our opportunity and our responsibility."

Professor Kemmerer sees in Britain's action a surrender to New York of London's century-old domination as a money center and his appeal that we "ABANDON FEAR, GAIN CONFIDENCE AND QUIT HOARDING," should carry strength and cheer throughout the country.

Capital Silhouettes

GOVERNOR PINCHOT, in calling the Pennsylvania Legislature in extraordinary session to consider the unemployment relief problems, sets an example that should have been set by President Hoover to the entire sisterhood of states. It'll be mighty small comfort to the jobless American, shivering in the breadline in February, to reflect that along about next summer the relief measures enacted by Congress will be getting ready to start commencing to become operative.

* * *

HOUSE DEMOCRATS make it pretty clear that if they are behind the cashier's cage in the next Congress they will cash no political blank checks for President Hoover.

* * *

THE ONE PROGRESSIVE who is in a strategic position just now is Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Senator Norris is of the opinion that if nominated he would sweep the West. Mr. Roosevelt is a very long-headed citizen who clearly perceived the tremendous political advantage of hailing from New York, and has been convinced of it all his life.

* * *

Perhaps more of that quality dubbed human interest will be found in the personnel of Max West's audience—especially at first nights—than in the steel trap worldiness of her lines. It offers a polyglot, pathological patina. There are women in masculine attire, men with bloodshot eyes and mine-

"Aiding" the Jobless!

While more than six million jobless roam the streets of the nation looking for work, the Administration at Washington comes to their "aid" by planning to dump into their ranks more than seven thousand from the enlisted force and civilian personnel of the Navy.

* * *

The sweeping reduction of the naval establishment which the President plans will have a crippling effect upon the effectiveness of the Navy and add a heavier burden to relief committees the country over.

The proposed reductions are in addition to reductions that have been going on for months as a result of Mr. Hoover's orders against re-enlistments.

* * *

Even independent Republican papers like the New York Evening Post are moved to protest against the "scuttle" policy of the Administration.

In the interests of national security Congress must take a hand and investigate thoroughly the naval policies of the Administration and the condition of the nation's first arm of defense.

New York Day by Day

Broadway Enigma

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—Mae West has become Broadway's greatest enigma—the bad good little lady. As she said in a curtain speech: "I hope you do not think I'm like the roles I portray. I neither smoke nor drink." And added with coy wistfulness: "In fact I'm just a Campfire girl."

To see Miss West swagger through the hard boiled sophistries of her half world dramas, it is quite easy to visualize her as a product of the seamy side. There are thousands of Mae West stage types in real life, blonde mistresses who live hard, dangerously and by the help of shyster accomplices.

Yet those who know say she is merely a brilliant young lady, with the brilliance, perhaps, of the electric light, who has capitalized sins of the world to wear as a cloak and to discard as easily. Off the stage, she is a mild-mannered home body.

Born in Brooklyn, she began her footlight career in baby parts, graduating to vaudeville singing with Harry Richman and Whispering Jack Smith as accompanists. But it was as a playwright and actress in her police-closed play "Sex" that brought her first page notoriety.

This was followed by "The Drag," threaded with a perverted theme and banned from the Rialto. Whatever one's critical opinion of Miss West's histrionic ability or her material, there are few who can deny that in the smart routine of her risque lines she packs a dramatic punch.

I have rarely seen a more electric moment in the theater when as "Diamond Lil," in her play by that name, she chirps to a street salvationist with a side-of-the-mouth defiance: "D'you can be had?" It may be mawkish drama, but "good theater."

In her newest opus she is the glossily taut harlot whose careless amours range from a champion pug to an ebony hued policy king. She epitomizes her outlook on life to her maid with: "Bring my negligee, the kimona days are over. And toss that celluloid manicure set out the window."

* * *

None is so arrogant in sudden affluence as the Tenderloin trollop. Miss West dramatizes this magnificently when, as the new mistress of a black gambler, her maid announces a soiled dove companion of her street walking days in the Forties. "Show the fluewie up," she snaps with unwinking brightness, and disinfect the halls.

* * *

Perhaps more of that quality dubbed human interest will be found in the personnel of Max West's audience—especially at first nights—than in the steel trap worldiness of her lines. It offers a polyglot, pathological patina. There are women in masculine attire, men with bloodshot eyes and mine-

in, steps, pastyfaced shadowy creatures with fever-bright eyes, overdressed dolls of the West Seventies, freshly barbered gambling house runners, gunmen and their molls—and all the rest of the strange creatures that clot in silence about shady hotel entrances after midnight. A Mae West premiere is apparently their night of nights. It is a set of spotlight seekers as pronounced as the fortunates of the Horse Shoe Circle at the opera, bowing and waving to each other, with a similar familiarity.

* * *

Harry Silvey, passing a large line of horse drawn carriages at the side of the Plaza the other afternoon, saw an aged driver gazing dreamily at a drifting dirigible overhead. Finally he sighed: "If it ain't one thing it's another in this racket."

* * *

And perhaps you've heard Lisle Bell's query as to what a hen says when she lays a square egg? Give up? She says: "Ouch!" And I forget—Joe Laurie, Jr., I think—who simulled: "As quick as Gandhi can undress."

* * *

* * *

* * *

An excited gentleman just phones to hurry across the street to an apartment in the Waldorf. "A beautiful lady is dying to meet you," he breathlessly adds. Sometimes I think it must be the way I brush my hair.

Just Folks

Thomas Alva Edison

Impossible was king when he was born;
Man feared to dare beyond his outer wall;
Life followed paths the cattle feet had worn;
Progress and thought, like travelers forlorn
Had halted by the wayside; over all
The world gray dullness settled like a pall
Against this tyrant of the human mind
Whose subjects live forever in the past,
Courageously his daring dreams he cast,
Toiled day and night the better way to find,
Broke barriers down, and by the works he wrought

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Lift Up Mine Eyes

ONCE, I LIVED IN A DESERT COUNTRY.

Before the memory of man, a great sea had covered that place. Now, where the waters had been, there was a vast, blistering desolation. Not a shrub or a tree . . . nor the song of a bird . . . nor the comforting chuckle of brooks. Even the wind, sweeping unhindered over the grim, empty miles, was noiseless. Something hideous about a wind that makes no noise—swooping, at you, ghostly silent, from the hollow air. A hard place to live.

And our work was as monotonous and grim as the place. We were mining. A poor little mine, run on a shoestring of money. Now and then a fleck of gold in the grudging grey ore. Usually the skip brought up only discouragement. Tons of that. Ugly work, mining, if we're getting nowhere. Harsh sounds, harsh clothes. Dust caking on your eyelashes, on your cracked lips . . . after a while dust caking on your soul. And all around those flat, dead miles that, in time, seemed to be sprawling on top of one's spirit, like some great, gray monster, pressing out all the joy and hope.

A terrible place! I do not know how I could have endured it without the hills.

At one point on the horizon, far off, the hills rose abruptly from the desert. They could not be seen by day because of the constant cloud of stinging gray dust. But, with evening, the air cleared. Suddenly—there they were! . . . tall and shining and seeming very near, in that transparent air.

Every night I sat for an hour on the dump and watched them. The dump was a great pile of sterile ore which we had brought up from the mine. It was as though all the disappointments, the broken dreams, the heartbreak, the bitter drudgery, had turned to rock, and were piled there beneath my feet. Endless hours of labor—for what? And all around me spread the dreary earth—colorless—without sound—

But the hills were not colorless. They were a wall of flame! And color quivered them like a song. Hot floods of rose and copper drenched their slopes . . . their gullies dripped with shadow, dark as wine. Behind, the sky—that through the day was like a tight, white lid . . . opened its endless reaches of clear green.

Then the night came. The earth dissolved. The gold and scarlet softened into amethyst. Star wreathed, the dark hills stood, tall sentinels above the plain.

And watching, sometimes I felt grateful—tears. I could go on . . . stand anything . . . as long as there were hills.

And there came back to me those words, once written by another troubled soul.

"I WILL LIFT UP MINE EYES UNTO THE HILLS, FROM WHENCE COMMETH MY HELP."

Looking back, I have realized more and more, how like life is to that flat, dreary place. The endless, gray monotony of many days. The heartbreak pile of broken dreams. The stupid toil—and all for what? Is life worth while, if this is all it holds? All of us, drudging through life, wondering that.

Then suddenly, lifting weary eyes, we see the hills! The tall, proud hills that men have built above the dreary plain. Built with their tenderness, their sacrifice, their courage. The hills left by the poets, the adventurers, the scientists, the priests—and all those countless, nameless ones who dared to dream.

Do not lose hope. Our life is not a meaningless gray waste—a mocking hollow where we thought we would find gold. There are the hills that other men have made.

LIFT UP YOUR EYES TO THEIR LOVELINESS!

1. How many troops were raised for the War of 1812.
2. Who was commander-in-chief of the army at that time?
3. How long did the War of 1812 last?
4. Who was President at this time. Who was Vice-President?

Answers to today's test:

1. Congress ordered out 25,000 regular troops and 50,000 volunteers. A national loan of eleven million was authorized. 2. Henry Dearborn of Massachusetts. 3. Two years. 4. Madison was re-elected in the autumn of 1812 with Elbridge Gerry of Massachusetts Vice-President.

Wanted! An American Policy for Americans

By Claude G. Bowers

WITH THE PRACTICAL certainty that the Democrats will control the House of Representatives by a bare margin of two or three votes, the ill-wishers of the party are prolific of advice and warnings. One writer warns them that they will be discredited if within ninety days they do not announce a definite program, in all its details, for the solution of every single problem brought upon us by the blundering policies of those in power. The Administration, with a party majority in the Senate and, until this hour, in control of the House, has not submitted a single constructive thought on domestic problems, but it is to be vindicated unless the Democrats, within ninety days, present a complete program to drag us out of the morass into which the "only party fit to govern" has plunged us. We suspect the country will not demand such a speedy disentanglement of the miserable mess of the present Administration and of the party still prevailing in government.

We do not hope for a miracle within ninety days, but we are not gravely concerned over the constructive capacity of the party which has triumphed so signally in the elections. It has demonstrated the finest constructive ability seen in America in two generations. There was more intelligent constructive statesmanship shown during the Democratic domination of 1913 to 1917 than was exhibited during the fifty years before.

With the Republicans in possession of the Presidency and the Senate, and with the House Democratic by a margin of two votes, the Democrats, if wise, will not be stampeded by any demand that they undo all the economic blunders of the last two Administrations in ninety days. That is impossible.

Mr. Hoover Still Has Obligations

The Democrats in the House are not in possession of the Governments most of their plans would be vetoed by the President; the necessary investigations, preliminary to action, would require ninety days. But the Democratic House should seriously consider the revision downward of some of the more outrageous special - privilege schedules of the tariff act that was bought and paid for by campaign contributions. We have this on the authority of Mr. Grundy.

The best service the Democrats, situated as they are, can render to the party, will be to concentrate on service to the country—this country. This has not been the fashion in governmental circles during the last three years.

Mr. Hoover still has obligations; broken pledges to be honored; and the country will expect him to put forth his program to lead the country out of the depression into which his Administration has plunged it.

The Demand of Common Humanity

When Congress meets, it is to be assumed that America and Americans will get more consideration than they have been getting during the adjournment. By the time it meets we shall know whether or not enough money has been subscribed by individuals to relieve the people's Government from doing anything for the millions who are in misery and threatened with starvation. We do not believe that the money asked of individuals is enough properly to care for the millions of women and children who have nothing; but even the money asked is being found with the utmost difficulty.

And if it is not found, the Government of the United States is not going to permit starvation. Senator Borah is right. All that is needed, in excess of what is subscribed, must be appropriated. That is the demand of common humanity.

And with 7,000,000 breadwinners out of work, Congress will consider the wisdom of a prosperity loan to create work—work, which done, will increase the wealth of the Nation.

Mr. McAdoo Has Something to Say

Congress should also want to know the details of the conversations and understandings between Mr. Hoover and M. Laval. With protests against the burdening of America with the debts of fourteen nations rolling in, the Administration is inclined, by vague explanations, to side-step. But the propaganda goes on. Mr. Houghton, the President's former Ambassador, and others, are busy with pencils showing that for us to pay the debts of fourteen nations will not cost each American much, and the answer is that if it will not cost Americans much, it will not cost the Europeans more. If it is insignificant for us, it is inconsequential to them, and they have sixty years to pay.

William Gibbs McAdoo, who made the loans and collected the money for them from our people, has just said, in a fascinating book of reminiscences, called "Crowded Years":

"Cancel these debts, and the result will be that Mr. Everyman and his wife and children will have to pay the colossal sum."

And he tells us what was told the American people when the loans were made:

"When I went to the people of the United States on a long speaking tour in the first Liberty Loan campaign, I had to explain with meticulous care to every audience I addressed, that all advances to foreign powers were loans which would, from time to time, be repaid to the United States, just as the United States itself would, from time to time, repay the money it was borrowing from its citizens to enable it to make loans to these foreign powers. It was on this specific point that our people wanted to be informed and assured. I do not overstate the fact when I say, that if the American people had not been convinced of the good faith and honor of the borrowing governments, the United States would never have been able to sell its bonds to its own people for the purpose of making these foreign loans."

The American people are demanding "good faith and honor" from their own Government—that, and a red-blooded defense of American interests, and more concern over the plight of the American people. They want Washington to discover America.

Star Chambers Will Not Suit

There is a general feeling that the interests of America are being neglected by the Administration. The man who demanded money from the farmers of Iowa to feed the Belgian and French children thinks it shocking to take money from the same source to feed the hungry children of America. That has sunk in on the people.

The recent disclosure that the present President advised using America as a recruiting ground for the armies of the allies instead of making an American army to fight under the American flag has shocked not a few.

The understanding in Europe that the Administration is prepared to shift the debts of 14 nations from Europeans who got the loans, to the backs of the Americans, is resented.

There is no enthusiasm for the plans of the Administration that will weaken the American navy, our greatest instrument of defense in critical times like these, and Congress may want to investigate just what is being done to the navy.

The President's hand-picked jury to pass on charges against the President will impress no one. Star chamber sessions of the committee will not suit.
